FROM THE MONITOR, NUMBER

WHILST notorious and recent continue glaring in the Eye injured and deluded People vain must be the Effort, howe less the Hope to stifle the ble Clamour raised against bad Men and by sures, by delusive Harangues, subtle Cautious plausible Excuses? If the best concerted and the most meritorious Commanders in our Armies have been suspected of Remission the Discharge of their Duty: How much more reasonably are those Men, whom the Command of their Sovereign had invested with the Command of the late Expedition, to be after the unexpected and ignominious Event

" In the first Action at Sea with the French the Revolution, who could behave with greater Courage and better Conduct than the Earl of Torrington? Yet he was so per-

" by the shattered Dutch, and their Court-ship that notwithstanding, upon Examination by the Privy-Council, he proved, beyond

" dictation, that he had done all in his Power to annoy the Enemy, and to save the Fleet from superior Force; he was put under Arrest, confined for several Months, till a Court-martial cleared up his Reputation with the

" Admiral Ruffell's Victory at La Hogue was sufficient to protect his Character from imputations of Neglect to improve the Advantage of the Battle, only because he returned in time to refit his damaged Ship, and to re-

" Stores of Provision and Ammunition, and to remain on the Coast of France. His Ministry impeached him in the House of Commons, and though he proved, by his Actions, that he did not deserve such Treatment, and was justly acquitted and thanked by that House, the King removed him from his Employment.

" The Loss of the Smyrna Fleet off Mary's filled every Mouth with Exclamations, that the Nation was plundered and abused, that after immense Sums were drained from the Subject, they were idly squandered away in merical Projects, or embezzled by the

" of the Court. The King opened the next Sessions with remarkable Expressions.—I am ashamed to meet you here; and I would heartily wish our Satisfaction were not lessened at present, sitting upon the Disadvantages we have

" this Year at Land; and the Miscarriage of Affairs at Sea. I think it is evident, that former was only occasioned by the great Loss of our Enemies, which exceed ours in all Particulars, what relates to the latter, which has been great Disgrace upon the Nation, I believe it extremely. And as I will take Care that who have not done their Duty, shall be so I am resolved to use the utmost of my Endeavour, that our Power at Sea may be rightly improved in the future.

" The House of Commons entered into an Examination of the Commanders, to find out the Cause of those Miscarriages for want of Unanimity, their Efforts fruitless.

" Capt. John Norris's Inactivity at land, when he should have fought the Squadron under Mr. Pent, was censured in Parliament as a high Miscarriage, to the service of the King and Kingdom; resolved that the said Miscarriage was the Admission of the Land Officer of Council of War on that Occasion, ruled the Commodore, when he proposed an Attack of the Enemy, richly laden and manned.
