HELMBOLD'S COLUMN.

TO PHYSICIANS.

New York, August 15th, 1868.

Allow me to call your attention to my

Preparation of Compound Extract Buchu.

The component parts are BUCHU, LONG LEAF, CUBEBS, JUNIPER BERRIES.

MODE OF PREPARATION—Buchu, macerated in Juniper Berries by distillation, to form a fine gin. Cubebs extracted by displacement with spirits obtained from Juniper Berries; very little sugar is used, and a small portion of spirit. It is more palatable than any now in use.

Buchu, as prepared by Druggists, is of a dark color. It is a plant that emits its fragrance; the action of a flame destroys this (its active principle,) leaving a dark and glutinous decoction. Mine is the color of ingredients. The Buchu in my preparation predominates; the smallest quantity of the other ingredients are added, to prevent fermentation; upon inspection it will be found not to be a tincture, as made in Pharmacopœas, but is a Syrup—and therefore can be used in cases where fever or inflammation exists. In this, you have the knowledge of the ingredients and the mode of preparation.

Hoping that you will favor it with a trial, and that upon inspection it will meet with your approbation,

With a feeling of confidence,
I am, very respectfully,
H. T. HELMBOLD,
Chemist and Druggist, of 16 Years' Experience.

(From the largest Manufacturing Chemists in the World)

November 6, 1869.

"I am acquainted with Mr. H. T. Helmbold; he occupied the Drug Store opposite my residence, and was successful in conducting the business where others had not been equally so before him. I have been favorably impressed with his character and skill."

WILLIAM WEIGHTMAN,
Firm of Powers & Weightman,
Manufacturing Chemists,
9th & Brown St., Philadelphia.

Helmbold's Fluid Extract Buchu

is the great specific for Universal Lassitude, Prostration, &c.

The constitution, once affected with Organic Weakness, requires the aid of Medicine to strengthen and invigorate the system, which HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU invariably does. It no treatment is submitted to, Consumption or insanity ensues.

Helmbold's Fluid Extract of Buchu,

In affections peculiar to Females, is unequalled by any other preparation, as in Chlorosis, or Retention, Painfulness, or Suppression of Customary Evacuations, Ulcerated or Schirrus State of the Uterus, and all complaints incident to the sex, or the decline or change of life.

Helmbold's Fluid Extract of Buchu and Improved Rose Wash

Will radically exterminate from the system diseases arising from habits of dissipation, at little expense, little inconvenience or exposure; completely superseding those unpleasant and dangerous remedies, Cold Iron and Mercury, in all their diseases.

Use Helmbold's Fluid Extract of Buchu

In all diseases of these organs, whether existing in male or female, from what ever cause originating, and to whatever of how long standing. It is pleasant, acts in unison with nature, restoring the order, "immediate" to which and more strengthening than any of the preparations of Bark and Iron.

Those suffering from broken-down or delicate constitutions, procure the remedy at once.

The reader must be aware that how ever slight may be the attack of the above diseases, it is certain to effect the bodily health and mental powers.

All the above diseases require the aid of a Diuretic. HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU is the great Diuretic.

Sold by Druggists everywhere. Price $1.25 per bottle, or 6 bottles for $6.50 Delivered to any address. Describe your symptoms in all communications.

How to Manage Wives.

"How shall you manage your husband"
I will tell you, my dear, (I can)
He's really a wonderful creature,
That troublesome animal—man.
Yes, really a wonderful creature,
Inconsistent and dreadfully queer,
But you'll soon know the secret by learning
The rebus PRESENT, my dear.

If he stays out too late in the evening,
Partaking of supper and wine,
Don't prove him a base fabricator,—
When he comes, he asks the time.
For he will surely tell you the truth dear
And a moment before—rang on the—
When it struck he had "counted it over
Just three times before it had done."

And then if he hat in the morning
Is smaller by far than his hat,
Don't hint by the accompanying
That his lordship went tipsy to bed,
But rather regard the occurrence
A phenomenon passingly queer,
With a strange look of mystification
In your eyes, if he's watering, my dear.

And don't fail to sew on his buttons,
And mend all his clothing with care,
Don't tease him for money for shopping,
Don't frown when he totters a bear,
Don't talk him too often, my dearest,
That your head is aching with pain,
Lest he whisper way down in his bosom,
"O, I wish I was single again."

Don't tell him that Mary, the housemaid,
And Ann, the obstreperous cook,
Refuse to receive your suggestions,
With even so much as a look.
Don't tell him how very annoying
You so often have found it to be
To be told to "get out of the kitchen,
And don't come a botherin' of me."

But always look cheerful and happy,
And strive to look pleasant and gay;
Than a frown there is nothing more potent,
In driving one's husband away,
And then you must ever keep striving,
You will find it an excellent plan
But whatever you do, dear, remember,
That your husband is only a man.

The Pickled Watch.

The other day we met Wiggins, and he had a silver cased watch—hunting case at that. We had known Wiggins five and twenty years, and never knew him to carry a watch before. We asked him where he got it. He gave us a nod and a leer, and said he wouldn't tell us.

"Last fall," he commenced. "I killed the old brindle cow, and put the best part of her into the beef barrel. She was fat, and the beef was nice, and I had high onto a full barrel. I did not want to make it very salt, so I set it out in the shed, where the frost might touch it and keep it. And you'd better believe it made good eating.

"One day my wife says to me—says she—'Wiggins, pears to me our beef is going mighty fast.' I went and looked and sure enough, it was going—going rather faster a I thought it ought to.—'I've noticed it for weeks, unaccountably this long time,' says my wife. 'Somebody is stealing it. Why dont you set a trap?'

"But my neighbors was all good hearted kind folks, though one or two of them might be just a little inclined to poke around where they didn't belong, and I didn't want to hurt 'em. I concluded, however, that it would be best to put the barrel with what little beef was left down cellar, and did it.

"Well when the beef was used up, and I went clean to the barrel, I found this watch in the pickle. It looked to me like Tom Scarmans watch. Tom had worked for me considerable, and I had seen him have the watch on one very much like it. When I saw Tom I showed him the watch, and he said right off it was his.

"How did you loose it?" said I.

"I carried it in my pocket without any chain, and must have dropped it out when I was stooping."

"Well," said I, "then you must have been stooping over my beef barrel, for I found it in the pickle."

"With that Tom looked kind of sheepish; and I guess he saw the twinke in my eye.

"Let me look at that there watch again said he."

"He looked at it a little while, and then he handed it back to me."

"On the whole, Mr. Wiggins," said he, "I guess that aint my watch," after all. It must be somebody else. And with that he walked off.

"I carried the watch to a jewler and he found that the cases had shut so tight that the works hadn't been pickled a bit; and for a dollar he cleaned it up in good shape and set it a running. It's a first rate time keeper, and I reckon that who ever took my beef paid all it was worth.

Love at First Sight.

I heard a good story at table to-day an illustration of the perils to which our sophisticated youths are subject, owing to our fashion of promiscuous bathing.

A young gentleman, a naval officer, went in to take his cold-tide dip opposite the Stevens House the other day, and, as a matter of course, went in among the girls, where he made himself useful and ornamental by ducking them to their hearts content. With limited gallantry, however, he confined himself to the younger and prettier neighbors. Clinging to a rope close by was an obese and elderly lady, who made frantic efforts to immerse herself, and looked longfully towards the son of Neptune, as if wishing her share of his attention, which did not come. At last, after another spasmodic effort and failure to moisten all her tightness she hailed the sailor saying.

"Please, sir, give me a duck, won't you?"

He ducked her and hooted her till she was thoroughly satisfied and toddled up upon the strand gratified and delighted.—She turned to thank the gentleman who, with his shoulders on the breakers, was receiving breath after his exertion. With a winsome look, she asked to whom she was indebted for such a lovely ducking.

"Your name, sir, if you please?"

"Most happy, madam," said the officer, stammering, as an unusually bright ray of shot him slightly; "most happy, madam, but upon my honor I have'n't a card about me."

I am told that he bathes no longer in our neighborhood, and that when he goes in at all he makes an observation first and carefully avoids the fat ones.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Not the Person.

A few evenings since a rather seedy looking individual appeared at the central police station in MOUNT VERNON and inquired if we could be honored with an interview with the chief of police, and being replied to in the affirmative, was shown into the private office.

"What can I do for you?" inquired the official.

"Are you the chief?"

"Yes."

"Can I speak to you privately?"

"Yes—speak out."

"Will no one hear us?"

"No."

"Are you sure."

"Yes."

"Well, then, listen; as I was crossing Calvert Street last night, about o'clock I saw a woman approach the bank with a baby in her arms, looking carefully around all the while to see if she was followed, and then went right at the edge of the water—"

"Threw the child into the canal?" exclaimed the appalled officer, his face white with horror.

"No," replied the visitor, "washed its face."

"See here, my friend," quietly remarked the chief, "I am not the person you want; the lookalike is outside."

CHAFF.

Why is an old maid like a dried up lemon? Because she ought to have been squeezed, but wasn't.

Gen. Spinner is called the "man that writes a name on the greenbacks that looks like a string of eels."

A little boy being asked "what is the chief end of man?" replied, "The end what's got the head on."

'Let us remove the temptation from the path of the youth,' as the frog said when he plunged into the water, upon seeing a boy pick up a stone.

Three things a lady cannot do—1. She cannot pass a millinery store without stopping. 2. She cannot see a piece of lace without asking the price. 3. She cannot see a baby without tissing it.

We hear of a farm in a neighboring town where the grasshoppers have eaten up all the crops above ground, now set on the stumps and fences with hoes over their shoulders, waiting for the next potato crop.

Philosophy says that shutting the eyes makes the sense of hearing more acute. A wag suggests that this accounts for the many closed eyes which are seen in our churches every Sunday.

"You flatter me," said a thin exquisite the other day to a young lady, who was praising the beauty of his moustache.—"For gracious sake, ma'am," interposed an old stripper, "don't make that monkey say flatter than he is now."

THE EAST WIND.—Why should the wind coming from the east over an ocean of water depress the human body, while that which comes from the west across a continent enlivens the spirits and gives courage and vigor? Be this as it may, it seems as if some people never felt any kind of wind that was not east. They are always "out of sorts." The weather is always just what they don't want. I met one of these men a while ago, a farmer, who raised all manner of crops. It was a wet day, and I said—

"Mr. Nayling, this rain will be fine for your grass crops."

"Yes, perhaps; but it is bad for the corn, and will keep it back. I don't believe we shall have crops."

A few days after this, when the sun was shining hot, I said—

"Fine sun for your corn, sir."

"Yes, pretty fair; but its awful for the rye. Rye wants cold weather."

Again, on a cold morning, I met my neighbor and said—

"This must be capital for your rye, Mr. Nayling."

"Yes, but its the very worst weather for the corn and grass. They want heat to bring them forward."

So the man lives in a perpetual east wind. Nothing suits him, and it would be impossible for providence to give him weather about which he could not grumble.

CHEAP WHISKEY.—A certain barkeeper, having been frequently refused payment by loafers after they had finished their whiskey, concluded to bestow a dose of best leather on the next customer.

A case soon occurred.

He jumped over the counter and administered a severe dose to the aforesaid.

'What's that for, boss?'

'To pay for the whiskey, you scoundrel,' responded the barkeeper.

'Well, now, that ain't darned cheap,' exclaimed the recipient. 'Just hand out the bottle; I guess I'll take another round.'

LUNACY.—An editor who was evidently insane, or had a strong and vivid imagination recently got off the following appropriate item, if true:

I had a dream the other night,
When everything was still;
I dreamed each advertiser
Came up and paid his bill
Each wore a look of honesty,
And smiles were around each eye,
As they handed out the stamps,
Saying, "How is this for high?"

☞ An old farmer said to his sons:—"Boys don't you ever speculate, or wait for sothin' to turn up. You might just as well go and sit down on a stone in the middle of the meddar, with a pail under your legs, and wait for a cow to back up to you to be milked."

☞ Quite a laugh was raised in one of the courts by an official, who, when the chairman called out for the crier to open the court, said, "May it please your honor, the crier can't cry to day, because he is dead."
