THE EASTERN SHORE ABROAD.—The Eastern Shore of Maryladd, for so many years, almost unknown outside of the State, and supposed by many on the Western Shore, to be about the size of a tenacre lot, is being brought to the notice of different sections of the country. Its adaptedness to fruit, to the growth of wheat, corn, vegerables and the splendid wild foul which frequent our waters in their season and the rich luxuries embedded in the Chesapeake and its tributaries, the delisious shad which abound during the spring months and the fine rock and white perch, which can be had at almost any season of the year, are being brought to light by Rail Roads and different avenues calculated to develope the resources of this highly favored land. Frequently allussions are made to this section by extreme Northern papers and the most recent we give below:

"A line of railroad is now nearly completed which promises to add largely to the commerce and business prosperity of New York. The effort to obtain a direct southern route by railroad without going through the city of Philadelphia—which has so often been attempted and failed—is near accomplishment. The Vineland railway, which runs from Atsion, on the New Jersey Southern railroad, to the Delaware Bay, will be opened in a few weeks. It is entirely graded with bridges all built, and the iron is laid for 16 miles. At the Delawrre it is proposed to cross by boat, a short passage with deep water and connect with Maryland and Delaware railroad at Smyrna. This road is now building to Oxford near the Chesapeake bay. The rails will be all laid by the first of January. These roads will complete a direct line from New York to the fine wheat and fruit lands of South Jersey, Delaware and Maryland, and to trade and cotton regions of the Southern States, and will give New York and New England a new route for both freight and passengers going South."

MR. EDITOR: I take the pleasure in commending the perusal of the speech made by Rev. Dr. Morsell, rector of the Protestant Episcopal Church in Smyrna, Del. The address was before the Peninsula Convention of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and is published by the permission of the author. It is gratifying to see such a spirit evinced by a brother of another denomination as is manifest in the speech, accompanying this note, which I beg you to publish.

Respectfully yours
GEO. A. PHOEBUS

Easton, Nov 30th, 1870.

REMARKS OF DR. MORSELL.

Before the M. E. Convention, in support of a resolution in favor of a Peninsular Bible Society.

Dr. Morsell said:—Mr. President:—This is a very timely matter—namely, the recasting our Bible Society work and the moulding of it into a new form for the work is at present ineffective.

I rejoice that there is ground wherewe can stand in common as fellow Christians That common ground is here—the Bible—our common rule on Faith and practice. We may differ about interpretations, but we all hold to the word of God; and if there is anything that proves the Divine origin of the Bible it is that in the midst of diversity of beliefs and multiplicty of creeds we yet hold with one hand and heart to the word that gift of God to the church. There is that divinity in the wold that holds to itself the heart of the universal church. Standing then upon one common platform holding an intelligent Protestant Christianity, believing in a free, and unbound Bible, (for the Reformation was the breaking of those chains imposed upon it by one language, giving to every man the Bible to his own tonuge) standing, I say, upon this common Bible ground, we need not fear rationalism on the one hand, nor infidelity upon the other; nor do we fear revision. The translation we have has preserved the purity of the language and imparted a sacredness to it; and while we are willing to admit that improvements can be made in the translation the existing errors are not fundamental and a united church need not fear no revision or criticism.

I am glad to find a new movement is in contemplation to secure the spread of the scriptures over this peninsula. This is in keeping with the rising importance of our territory. It used to be said that a man was going out of the world when he was going to the Eastern Shore; and it seemed so. It seemed cut off from the States. From some points there was no communication. Steamers were passing all around her, some even going to Europe, but if you desired even to leave for the Eastern Shore you then realized that you were out of the world. But now the Peninsula is beginning to have a place in the world. Delaware is in the world. I am a part of it; I am beginning to feel like a native of it. The peninsula is becoming a fact and these Resolutions would make it of greater importance The Peninsula is becoming an acknowledged fact abroad, The Diocese of Maryland has been divided into two parts Easton and Maryland proper. But when this was first talked of people said.—"Why, what do you want with a Bishop on the Eastern Shore? Are you not enough half starved ministers there already?" But the importance of this Peninsula has been made manifest upon them, and now we have an Easton Diocese.

Some time ago a merchant in New York, with whom I was talking said to me "You have no idea how busy this part of New York was a few weeks ago." "And" said I, "what made it so?" "The Peninsula peach trade," was the reply. Yes we are getting into the world, and the Peninsula is a fact acknowledged at home and abroad.

I know this Peninsula should have been ours, and if we had been as we should have been these M. E. Churches would have been P. E. Churches.—Had it not been for this M. E. Church this territory would have been given over to heathenism. I reiterate it in your presence, as I have said it in missionary meetings in our own church; and I glory in the fact that you have built up such a church among us. I am fast learning to follow the example of a beloved minister in our church whom I heard say, "I never pass by a Methodist Church that I do not pray for the success of its pastor." In my own church and before my own people, I said a short time ago. "Why should I not pray for Brother Ritterhouse and his congregation? Does he not influence the largest part of the people of this town? Is he not a minister of our Lord Jesus Christ? Shall I not pray for him? Perish forever in the fires of Christian love such bigotry and narrowness as would not." I say to you in the language of Paul "Brethren pray for us."

The history of Methodism is a great and glorious fact—I speak it as an Episcopalian, John Wesley was one of the wisest men. I have often wondered how with such an amount of enthusiasm he had the same amount of common sense. The methodists of to day have his wisdom;—a wisdom not equalled by that of the Pope and his followers. You have planted a church at every cross roads, until you have taken possession of the Peninsula. And you are doing a wise thing here. This Convention will give permanance to your work on this Peninsula. Bro Quigg deserves the thanks of every Christian and of every Methodist in particular for that Report on the history of Peninsular Methodism I am exceedingly fond of that kind of history. The publication of that Report will be a great thing in your history and will be interesting to all true Christians because its facts illustrate the growth of the kingdom of Christ.

I never was in a loveleast in my life till the other night. It moved me to tears. I have been very happy in my own church and in your church and through the whole of this Convention.—I do not know why I talk to you thus this morning, unless it is that God has put it into my heart to do so. I am giving you my experience. I feel that I am addressing fellow work-men in the Vineyard of the Lord. Men who can sympathize with me. That I am addressing men who can roar above denominational distinctions. We are in common "children of God by faith in Jesus Christ." There is the unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace. By the joys which we have all felt we are "heirs of God and joint heirs with Jesus Christ."—And though I have not the experience which some of you claim, I know we are all "called to be saints."

The formation of a Peninsular Bible Society would still further cement our union. Let us go to work and make it effective, and under the inspiration of a Peninsular Bible Society the Sussex County Bible Society will not be able to stand alone.

There never was a weaker body than the Kent County Bible Society with the exception of the President, Secretary and a few of its members. It is like the lame man lying at the pool of Bethesda—waiting for somebody to put it in.

I am glad that the next session of the Society will be held in my church.

Our Baltimore Letter.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 30, 1870.

Important news from the Franco-Prussian war is somewhat scarce, no battle of any magnitude having taken place during the past week or so. Skirmishing is incessant along the entire line of the contending armies, but with no material result. The Prussians are confident of reducing Paris in a very short time with the aid of the terrible enemy—starvation; while reports from the besieged city state that horseflesh and vegetables are plenty, and they will sacrifice every horse, and suffer to the direst extremity before capitulating. The wild animals of the magnificent Zoological Gardens have been taken by the provisional government and issued to the inhabitants as food. That old "blowhard," Garibaldi, has been soundly thrashed by the Prussians, and it is a lamentable fact that, while so many hundreds of brave and valuable men have fallen never again to rise, that worthless renegade manages, somehow, to get out of his scrapes with a whole skin. The French generally detest him, on account of his intense hatred of their religion, and several threats to shoot him have been made in case he attempts to command certain regiments. His force consisted of a few scalawag Italians.

Cabla despatches seem to indicate that the Russian question will be settled without recourse to arms. Russia insists on a council of the great powers to consider her demands, and it is generally believed she will be gratified. With the possession of the Black Sea and the Dardanelles, Russia would be the greatest military power in the world.

The Mayor last week returned to the Council the ordinance increasing the salary of the Councilmen from a dollar and sixty cents to five dollars per day, with his veto, together with his reasons therefor. On the question being put as to whether the ordinance should pass, notwithstanding the Mayor's objections to the contrary, fourteen votes were cast for and five against—one being absent.—So the arrangement falls through for lack of the three fourths vote required by law.

It is a toss up to which is the most muddled, Jones's Falls or the Commission appointed to provide for the future control of that classic but sometimes unruly stream. The Commission was appointed shortly after the flood of '68, at a salary of twenty or twenty-five hundred dollars each per year, since which time they have done nothing but quarrel and wrangle among themselves—one objects to every proposition made because his friend's plan was not accepted, and another won't sign an order for pay unless the City Surveyor comes down with a "divey" of what he is supposed to "knock down" from his employees.—(You know, the Surveyor is allowed ten dollars per day for each of his assistants, from which a fellow might make considerable 'margin' by paying forty five dollars per day—but then, you see, the 'margin' would look pretty slim when divided up among two or three.) There is no doubt that the public are sick and tired of their constant quarreling, and are so anxious to do away with them that several of our most interested property holders offered to serve as a Commission without pay. At the last session of the Commission, a resolution was passed preventing the reporters of the city journals making public any of their proceedings other than directly affects the subject for which they are paid to consider. If this order had been passed the first day of their session, much discredit to themselves and wonder of the public might have been prevented. Meanwhile, the residents along the line of the falls are quiets as lambs since the advent of the next flood, quietly whistling to themselves Dan Bryant's applicable air, "What can't be cured must be endured!"

The old Gaslight Company of this city was sold last week to parties from Brooklyn, N. Y., for the sum of three millions of dollars. An effort was made by the city to become the purchaser, but the majority of the stockholders were anxious to sell immediately, and perhaps thought the Brooklynites could better afford being bled than the city. So now that we have two gas companies, (the People's being the second) the consumer should reap the benefit of the competition—quite a novelty for this city in the gaslight line.

Thanksgiving day was bright and beautiful, and he must have been fastidious indeed who desired more pleasant weather than we had on that day. Religious services were held in all of the churches of the city, and in the afternoon the streets were crowded with people in their holiday attire—business generally having been suspended. Of course, there was much demand for poultry for a thanksgiving dinner, which fortunately was held at reasonable prices.

The steamer Saml. J. Pentz, which has for some time past been running on the Potomac between Washington and Acquia Creek, arrived here last week disabled. She will be immediately repaired and resume her route on the Potomac.

Our 'city fathers' not being satisfied with the result of the taking of the census by the United States Marshal's force, which makes us almost a fourth rate village, concluded to have the operation repeated, and the police force of the city are now inquiring into the number and sex of our residents.

The city Hall is beginning to assume respectable proportions, and when finished will be quite an imposing structure. The new Fountain Hotel also is being pushed rapidly forward, upon the completion of which we will be fully prepared to accommodate any number of visitors to our city. In this connection I might mention that Mr. John T. Ford has commenced the demolition of the buildings on the site of which he will erect his grand opera house, which is proposed to be made second to none in the country.

The Schenatzen Park was crowded on Thanksgiving Day, and much lager consumed, and a good time had generally, by our Teutonic brethren.

We are to have a new public square in the northern section of the city, an improvement greatly to be desired, both on account of the comfort of the people and the enhancement of the value of property in its neighborhood.

A meeting in aid of the women, children and non combatants in France and Germany was held here on Monday night last. The movement is under the auspices of the Society of Friends, and promises success.

The North German steamer Baltimore arrived here last week from Bremen.—During the voyage she was chased for four hours by a French war steamer, but escaped in consequence of her superior speed.

The City Council has adjourned to the third Monday in January next, probably to reflect in solitude over the Mayor's veto of their ordinance to increase their pay.

We are now enjoying splendid Indian Summer, the weather being as soft and balmy as early spring—in fact, a brisk walk on the sunny side of the street causing an unpleasant perspiration.

Yours, &c., H.

A WONDERFUL MICROSCOPE.—Rev Daniel Wise, D. D., editor of the New York Sunday School Advocate, thus speaks of the celebrated Craig Microscope:

"Its simplicity, cheapness and great magnifying power struck me with surprise. Then I was examining a fly's eye by its aid, and was struck with wonder at the skill and power of the Creator which is displayed in its structure.—When I saw a statement in an advertisement the Craig Microscope magnified one hundred diameters, and could be bought for $250. I thought it was one of the humbugs of the hour, for I had paid $20 for a microscope not long before. But now I find it to be a really valuable instrument which I should like to see introduced into the families of our readers in place of the manifold, useless toys which please for an hour and is then destroyed. This microscope would both amuse and instruct them and I advise every boy and girl who wishes to know the wonders which lie in little things to save his money until he has $2.75 which will pay for the microscope and the postage when sent by mail."

As a holiday this microscope, being ornamental, instructive, amusing and cheap, and never looses its interest,—Agents and dealers supplied on liberal terms. A E H Ross, 313 Locust St Louis, Mo.

GREAT FORTUNES,
And How They Were Made. By J. D. McCabe, Jr. New, fresh and original. Profusely illustrated and beautifully bound.—It shows how a poor orphan boy made $40,000,000, how a poor half blind sailor became a great banker, a butcher's apprentice the wealthiest man in America, an unknown mechanic a millionaire in seven years with many more such examples; how energy, talent, and patient industry have always met with success when properly exerted; how money can be made honestly and without sacrifice of principal. Send for circular, etc., and notice my extra terms.—Geo. Maclean, Publisher, 719 Sansom St., Philadelphia. 4w
