CHRISTMAS, 1870.—Poet and Philosopher, moralist and dreamy theorist, are busy with the death-throes of another year. One more year, with its untold record of human experiences, just closing its final chapter; one more leaf of life's history just turning, the full meaning of which may not be read or fully understood till the angel shall stand, with one foot upon the land and another upon the sea, and proclaim that time shall be no longer.' How the mind is filled with sad, reflective thoughts! and everything around, above and beneath us—the 'sere and yellow leaf'—the chilly atmosphere—the withered shrub—the deserted nests of our familiar little sparrows—all, all only tends to increase the seeming incubus. But just as the mind is ready to give way to these melancholy wanderings, our ears catch from the distance the first faint tintinnabulations of the merry Christmas Bells. Soon the full chorus will be upon us, and merry little feet with their musical pitpat will be thronging our thoroughfares, and curious little eyes will be peering in at the holiday windows. How we are compensated for all that can make us feel sad during the year by these gleeful holidays. We pity the man or woman whose heart is not made lighter by them. Neighbor, let a beneficent Heaven operate a little on your selfish natures, just for these few days—it will do you good. Unselfishness is the very essence of divinity. If you have no children or friends to open your heart to, (which may Heaven forefend) remember, 'The poor ye have always with you,' and they are one of Heaven's best gifts to some of us.

To our kind friends and patrons we extend a hearty greeting, and wish them, one and all, a 'merry Christmas and a happy New Year.'

Our Baltimore Letter.

BALTIMORE, Dec. 22, 1870.

The general tenor of despatches received by the cable is such as to justify one in saying "the war is over." The Provisional Government of France, fully alive to the importance of keeping the masses in ignorance of the real state of affairs, has for a long time professed to disbelieve the reports of German success in every direction, and would magnify any little affairs with the pickets that resulted favorably to the French arms into a battle, and in a glowing manner to announce the same to the public.—While on the other hand it was observable all through the war with what perfect brevity King William informed his queen of the result of the heaviest battles, not one of which was lost by the Germans during the entire struggle.—The French in Paris cannot and do not realize that their great nation, heretofore so successful in the force of arms, has been so ingloriously beaten at every point, and so great even yet is their confidence in the "grand military nation," that the capitulation of their capital will not occur until every mouthful of their provisions has been consumed, unless compelled so to do by a bombardment by King William, which, however, it is said, will not now be ordered, since, in the defeat of the army of the Loire, the possession by the Germans of Paris only deferred to the short length of time it will take its inhabitants to devour what few provisions they have left. It is indeed a sad spectacle to see the once proud and prosperous nation of France thus humbled to the dust through the ignorance and cowardice of Napoleon the Third.—King William has accepted, and on his return to Berlin will be crowned with the title of Emperor of Germany.

A cable despatch informs us that King William, after the complete settlement of the present difficulties, will compel Victor Emanuel to vacate Rome, and to restore to the Pope all the temporal power of which he has robbed him. Taking advantage of the struggle between France and Prussia, King Victor steps in and deprives or attempts to deprive, Pope Pius IX of a small temporal kingdom, the government of which by the Pope and his successors has been acknowledged by the world from time immemorial. Since the arrival of the Italians in Rome, that city has been converted into a pandemonium rivaling hell itself. The barbarities practiced on the priests, nuns and students are enough to chill the blood, and their total disregard of the most degrading vows. The Catholics of every country are entering their protests against the usurpation, for the property destroyed by Victor Emmanuel, and the money he has stolen from Rome, did not belong to the Pope, but to the millions of Catholics throughout the world, who donated it to the support and use of the Pope, whom they recognize as their common father. The Pope will not accede to the least of their demands, and so he excommunicated those who have in any manner taken active part in or endorsed these fiendish acts. A crusade against these usurpers would find many thousands active supporters in this country alone, and there is no saying what the sympathy and activity of the American may lead to.

The resignation of Gambetta is announced in a recent telegram. He intends to return to Italy, where there is just now a splendid field open to him, the work of which will be congenial to the feelings of the rascally old reprobate. Every time I think of him I am reminded of the old woman's opinion of a crowing hen—"Eat neither for God, devil nor man."

The heavy northwest winds which have visited us during the past week have caused some trouble to our larger sea-going craft, by blowing out the water from the river to such an extent as to make navigation difficult, if not dangerous.—The North German steamer Baltimore, which left on Wednesday last for Bremen, got out into the bay with great difficulty, and a ship for Liverpool was compelled to move down below Annapolis with only a portion of her cargo, there to take on the rest, while a large foreign steamer coming up the river ran aground, and had to be lightered before she could reach the city.

On Tuesday of last week, a 'convention for the encouragement of immigration to the State of Maryland,' was held in this city. There was a large attendance, every county being represented with the exception of Wicomico. In my humble opinion, Maryland needed immigration five years ago just as much as she does now, and if the political complexion of the 'convention' were not so clearly defined, I would say it was strange. The feelings of the members of the present convention are known to be strongly inimical to the colored population of the State, (with the exception of one or two who are no doubt working for the best interests of their German fellow-countrymen in the Fatherland,) and this is one of the first practical steps towards carrying into effect their oft repeated threat to 'drive all the d—d niggers out of the State.' This threat was only uttered after they had waited and watched whether Congress was in earnest in their efforts for the good of the former slaves, and whether the colored people really would remain free and obtain the rights of freemen. When these facts are ascertained, it is suddenly found out that the State requires and must have white labor, even though an appropriation of $200,000 be asked for from the Legislature to enable half a dozen of these members, or their friends, to take a trip to Europe—for which little jaunt the already overburdened taxpayers of the State have to pay. And all this for party prejudice; for the threat above written is the foundation stone of the whole 'convention.'

Senator Schurz, of Missouri, on Friday last, delivered a very bitter tirade in the Senate against President Grant and Senator Drake, also of Missouri. The attack was personal altogether, and Mr Schurz took advantage of about the last occasion that would permit itself to abuse Mr. Drake, who has just been confirmed as Chief Justice of the Court of Claims. The principal charge against the latter gentleman was that he was a pro slavery man fifteen years ago. Mr. Drake replied to Mr. Schurz the day following, entirely discomfiting the Senator who hopes of taking the whole German element of the country over to the Democrats in 1872—buncombe as foolish as it is wicked.

Senator McCreery, of Kentucky, last week asked leave to introduce a bill for the restoration of the Arlington estate to Mrs Lee, wife of the late Gen. Lee, which was very promptly and properly refused. The estate was forfeited and sold at public sale for non-payment of taxes and bought by the United States, and is in the same condition as thousands of acres in other parts of the South. After it had become government property, Secretary Stanton ordered it to be made a national cemetery, and thousands of corpses were interred there, both of Union men and Rebels, the majority being those of soldiers who had fallen in defense of the capital.

The old and well known Barnum's Hotel of this city, of some forty four years standing, was sold at public auction on Thursday last by order of the trustees. The property was purchased by Capt. Augustus Laughlin, for himself and the other heirs, for the sum of $300,000. The matter has for a long time been before the courts, during which the building has become somewhat out of repair. Now, however, it will immediately be put in first rate order, and resume its old position as the hotel of the city.

In the Criminal Court on Friday last, the cases of some eighteen or twenty colored men, indicted for perjury for swearing falsely before the officers of registration, were called to trial, and were all acquitted except six or eight, which were continued to the January term in consequence of the pressure of other business.

In the U. S. District Court the same day, the grand jury returned a presentment against Richard M. Bowerman and Thos. J. Wilson, for conspiring to defraud the United States Government.—The charge against these gentlemen was the embezzlement of government funds whilst officers in the Baltimore Custom House, an account of which was given in these columns at the time, and which was trumpeted through the Democratic papers as a robbery of the greatest magnitude. Both gentlemen gave bail in the sum of twenty thousand dollars each for their appearance from day to day to answer the charge in court.

Our city was visited last week by a number of the city council of Cincinnati, reaching here from Washington. The party had previously visited New York and Philadelphia, passing through Baltimore on their way to Washington. They were taken in charge by our Mayor, city council and other city officials, and after having been dined, wined, and feasted to their hearts' content, were taken to the Northern Central Railway and sent home rejoicing.

We have had the turning point in our mild weather, and may now 'look out for squalls.' The said turning point was a rather heavy storm of snow on Saturday night last, which, however, did not remain with us long, the earth being too warm to receive it.

The close proximity of Christmas is evinced by the gay holiday dress in which we find our toy and variety stores, and the very large crowds of people thronging them, all intent upon purchasing some moments for loved ones. So, wishing the readers of the Gazette a 'Merry Christmas and a happy New Year,' and that the editor thereof may possess an unlimited list of subscribers with which to begin the incoming year, I will close. Yours, &c., H.

THE LITTLE CORPORAL MAGAZINE for January is received. It is small praise to say that this magazine has no superior and few equals in the world, for children of all ages, and for older people with young hearts. The new serial began in this number opens admirably, and the whole number is as full of good things "as an egg is of meat." The illustrations are exceedingly creditable.—$1.50 a year, and beautiful premiums for clubs. Address Sewell & Miller, Publishers, Chicago, Ill. The November and December numbers of '70 are sent free to all new subscribers for 1871 sent before January 1st.

The Immigration Convention.

This convention met in Baltimore on Tuesday last, pursuant to call. Gov. Bowie was elected President, and the usual number of Vice Presidents and Secretaries were chosen. All the counties were represented except Caroline and Wicomico. A committee of five from the city of Baltimore and one from each of the counties represented, was appointed to prepare business for the consideration of the Convention.

After a recess the committee on business made the following report:

Your committee respectfully report the following conclussions upon the questions submitted to them:

Whereas. It has become of the greatest importance to the State of Maryland to give a practical direction to the development of the resources of the State, and to bring our lands into the market and to encourage immigration, the committee hereby recommend the continuance and support of the International Immigration Union as a central organization, with branches in the different counties of the State, to act in concert with the main body, the President of each Association to be by virtue of his office, a Vice President of the International Immigrant Union; the county organizations to control their own affairs where those are of a strictly local character, and the citizens of Maryland are urged to become members of the central organization as well as of those instituted in the counties.

Your committe further recommend, that the Branch Association report once in three months, or as often as may be deemed proper, to the central organization in Baltimore, and to give such information as may be promotive of the objects in view.

Your committee further recommend, that a committee be selected by the President of the Convention to prepare an address upon the subject of the development of agriculture and on the other resources of the State, and the encouragement of immigration, to be presented to the people and the next Legislature of Maryland, with a view of promoting the objects of this convention.

After the reading of the report, a very spirited debate arose among the delegates and some pretty hard words were bandied among the members.

Colonel Earle, of Queen Anne's, wanted to saddle the expenses of bringing immigrants into Maryland, upon the State Treasury, and with that view offered a resolution that "a demand should be made upon the next Legislature in such tones that it would make an appropriation of $200,000 to promote immigration." Mr. Clarke, the $10,000 President of the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal, thought $200,000 would not be too much. Indeed he would vote for appropriation of $2,000,000 if he had the casting vote upon such a proposition" before the Legislature, to bring into our State the German, Irish, French and Chinese.

Mr. J. J. Duvall, of Prince George's, said that he regarded it as a mistake that the report of the committee only looked to the inviting of immigration from abroad. He thought that we should invite immigrants from the Northern States.

Mr. Marbury said that he regarded his colleague's suggestion as eminently proper. We want men to buy and till our lands, and we don't care where they come from. We fought against the Northern people in old slavery times and now we are prepared to join hands with them, we are most willing to sell them our lands if they only give us a fair price.

Mr Treiber wanted the Legislature to adopt a system of paid agents by the State to operate in different parts of Europe for the exclusive benefit of the State.

After a good deal of confusement and debate, Mr. Treiber's resolution, with Mr. Earle's amendment, was adopted and the convention adjourned, subject to the call of the President.

How will Maryland tax payers fancy such an immigration expense.

PRESIDENT GRANT'S VIEWS ON GENERAL AMNESTY.—A Washington despatch of Monday to the New York Tribune says:

The President said yesterday that the omission to make any reference to the subject of amnesty in his annual message was accidental. He intended to have stated his views freely upon the question, but in the hurry of making up the document in time to send it to Congress, he omitted to do so. His purpose was to call the attention, in the first place, to the general misapprehension prevalent in the country, that a large number of people are disfranchised in the South by the Fourteenth Amendment and by the legislation of Congress. The belief, which has been fostered by the Democratic newspapers, is wholly an error, for in fact no man has been deprived of the right to vote by the action of Congress or by the force of the Constitutional amendment. All disfranchisement has been by virtues of laws enacted by the Southern States themselves, through their Legislatures, for which Congress is in no way responsible. This fact, the President thinks ought to be more generally understood.

He proposed, in the second place, to have discussed the propriety of removing the disqualifications from holding office imposed by the Fourteenth Amendment. His views of the matter is that the people of the South ought first to accept the Fourteenth Amendment and Fifteenth Amendments, and give evidence that that they fully acknowledge their validity, before asking for amnesty under the provisions of the first of these Amendments. The only power has to grant amnesty is by virtue of the authority conferred by the Fourteenth Amendment, and so long as the Democrats at the South resist that Amendment and deny its validity, it is manifestly inconsistent for them to ask for a removal of disqualifications under its provisions. Until these Amendments are acknowledged and respected as binding, the President thinks the public sentiment of the country will be averse to granting amnesty; but when the attitude of the late Rebels change in this respect, he believes that a sweeping amnesty should be promptly accorded by Congress. The President expresses his regret that he omitted to set forth these views in his Message, as it was his full intention to have done.

☞ An election took place in the First Senatorial District of Pennsylvania (Philadelphia) on Tuesday to fill the vacancy in the State Senate occasioned by the death of Mr. Watts. Dechert, the Democratic candidate, was elected by a majority of 1,313, and the result gives the Democrats a majority of one in the Senate. The Republicans, however, still hold the House of Delegates, and have a majority on joint ballot, which will enable them to elect the State Treasurer next month.

HOW TO BE HANDSOME.—Most people like to be handsome. Nobody denies the greater power which any person endowed with it has over those who have not. Yet how few there are who have what they do possess to the best advantage! Many a face has been made beautiful by the mere word kindness. And there are scores of agencies which any one can use to improve their good looks—paints and washes, and cosmetics, including a plentiful anointing with dirty hair oil.

Now, not every one can have good features. They are as God made them; but almost any one can look well, especially with good health. It is hard to give rules, in a very short space, but in brief these will do:

Keep clean—wash freely and universally with cold water. All the skin wants is leave to act freely and it will take care of itself. Its thousands of air holes must not be plugged up.

Good teeth are a help to good looks. Brush them with a soft brush, especially at night. Go to bed with the teeth clean. Of course to have white teeth, it is needful to let tobacco alone. Every woman knows that. And any powder or wash for the teeth should be very simple.—Acids may whiten the teeth, but they may take off the enamel or injure it.

Sleep in a cool room, in pure air. No one can have a clean skin who breathes bad air.

But more than all, in order to look well—wake up the mind and soul. When the mind is awake, that dull, sleepy look passes away from the eyes. I do not know that the brain expands, but it seems to. Think, and read books that have some sense in them. Talk with people who know something, hear lectures and learn by them.

This is one good of preaching. A man thinks and works, and this is the result. And if we listen, and hear, and understand, the mind and soul are waked up. If the spiritual nature is aroused, so much the better. We have seen a plain face really ennobled by the love of God and man which shone through it.

Men say they can't afford books, but men can afford what they really choose. If all the money spent in self-indulgence (or intellectual indulgence) was spent in books (or self improvement) we should see a change. Men would grow handsome, and women too. The soul would shine out through the eyes. We were not meant to be mere animals.

PETTY MEANNESS.—Poultry, at this season of the year, is in great demand, and poultry venders resort to every expedient to increase the weight of that which they have to sell. The latest dodge of fish has come to our knowledge is that of filling the throats of the poultry with offal, and selling it along with the poultry itself at the full market price. A friend of ours purchased a goose at one of our stores the other day in which had been stuffed five gizzards, three necks, and the extremities of several wings.—Now this is downright cheating and rascality, and the merchant who sold the goose, if he knew from whom he purchased it ought to expose the penurious wretch. Gizzards and wings and necks are all very good in their place; but when it comes to paying full price for the offal it is out of place. What will not the sordidness of some individuals lead them to?—American Union.

SERIOUS MISTAKE.—An aged lady named Fowler, residing in Gardenhour court, started to visit a next door neighbor in the same house on Friday night last, but instead of so doing made a serious mistake, her escapade from which with her life is most ridiculous. Separating the two premises is a low board fence, and in the dark Mrs. F. climbed upon what she supposed was the fence, but when she went to jump down she continued to descend until finally she took up in the bottom of the well—Fortunately there was but little water in the well, having escaped unhurt by the fall, she was able to call assistance by her cries, when she was extricated in a rather damp condition.—American Union.

A WONDERFUL MICROSCOPE.—Rev. Daniel Wise, D. D., editor of the New York Sunday School Advocate, thus speaks of the celebrated Craig Microscope:

"Its simplicity, cheapness and great magnifying power struck me with surprise. Then I was examining a fly's eye by its aid, and was struck with wonder at the skill and power of the Creator which is displayed in its structure.—When I saw a statement in an advertisement the Craig Microscope magnified one hundred diameters, and could be bought for $250. I thought it was one of the humbugs of the hour, for I had paid $20 for a microscope not long before. But now I find it to be a really valuable instrument which I should like to see introduced into the families of our readers in place of the manifold, useless toys which please for an hour and is then destroyed. This microscope would both amuse and instruct them and I advise every boy and girl who wishes to know the wonders which lie in little things to save his money until he has $2.75 which will pay for the microscope and the postage when sent by mail."

As a holiday this microscope, being ornamental, instructive, amusing and cheap, and never loses its interest,—Agents and dealers supplied on liberal terms. A. J. H. Ross, 315 Locust St Louis, Mo.

GREAT FORTUNES,
And How They Were Made. By J. D. Cole, Jr. New, fresh and original. Beautifully illustrated and beautifully bound. It shows how a poor school-master became a great banker, a butcher's apprentice the wealthiest man in America, an unknown mechanic a millionaire in seven years, with manp more such examples, how energy, talent, and patient industry have always met with success when properly exerted; how money can be made honestly and without sacrifice of principal. Send circular, etc., and notice my extra terms. Geo. Maclean, Publisher, 719 Sansom St. Philadelphia,

The Magic Comb will change hair or beard to a permanent black or brown. It contains no poison. Any one can use it. One sent by mail for $1. Address MAGIC COMB CO., Springfield, Mass.
