FROM A LATE PUBLI

AN extraordinary Instance of the Providence of God, in the Punishment of the Poor, is here related. A poor Man, who had been rendered himself universally hated by the Government to raise a considerable sum of Money, for the relief of the Poor, was at last reduced to extreme Poverty; but fearing lest the Languedoc should give Information, he resolved to search for a Cave, in which he might hide himself, and escape the Pursuit of his Creditors. He dug a kind of a Cave in his Wife's large and deep, that he used to garden; at the Entrance was a Door, which on shutting would fasten of itself. Foscue was missing; diligent Search was made; the Ponds were drained, which human Imagination could find; but all in vain. In a short time was sold, and the Purchaser began to make some Alterations in it, the Door in the Cellar, with a Key inserted to be opened, and on going Foscue lying dead on the Ground, him, but no Candle in it, which he farther, they found the vast Wealth. It is supposed that when Monf. Foscue the Door by some Accident shut after the Call of any Person, he perceived had gnawed the Flech off both his Subsistence. [Thus did this Miser his own digging, in the midst of his himself, and the Prejudice of the State.]
