The Charity Concert.

MESSRS. EDITORS:—I was one of the large assemblage of persons at the Charity Concert on Monday last, and was delighted with the fine performance of the chorus and orchestra on the occasion. I could but regret that at the conclusion, when the "Hallelujah Chorus" was given, my enjoyment—and I doubt not that of many others—was marred by the noise and bustle of persons leaving the room during its performance. I have read somewhere, I believe in Burns, that at the first performance of the "Messiah," when the chorus struck up "For the Lord God Omnipotent Reigneth," the audience were so electrified that they spontaneously rose from their seats, and remained standing until the chorus was ended; and it is now the custom in England for the audience to stand while that part of the music is performing. No higher homage could be paid to this sublimest effort of the mighty genius of the composer. We notice that the Concert is to be repeated on Monday next, and we would call the attention of our excellent conductor to the circumstance, and request that he would either place it in some other part of the programme, or allow, as is done in Boston, some few minutes to intervene before the performance of the last chorus, so that those who are anxious to leave the room may do so without interfering with the enjoyment of others. AN AMATEUR.

FROM FORTRESS MONROE.

Serious Damage to the Transport Mississippi—Capture of a British Schooner for Attempting to Run the Blockade.

FORTRESS MONROE, March 6.—The steamer Mount Vernon, which arrived here yesterday, brings intelligence of a serious disaster to the steam transport Mississippi, chartered by the Government to carry troops to Ship Island, which sailed hence with General Butler and staff on board a few days since.

On Friday morning last she got on Frying Pan Shoals and stove a large hole in her bows. She was hauled off the same afternoon by the Mount Vernon, and being provided with water-tight compartments, was found not to be seriously injured, but that she could proceed to Port Royal, where her troops can be disembarked and her damage repaired. Her Captain, named Fulton, is suspected of intentionally running her ashore, and the vessel was therefore placed in charge of one of the officers of the Mount Vernon, who will take her to her destination.

The Mount Vernon left the blockade off Wilmington on Monday last. The steamer Fernandina was still there, and the sloop-of-war Jamestown was blockading New Inlet. The steamers State of Georgia, Gemsbok and Albatross were off Beaufort.

The Mount Vernon has not received a mail for forty days.

The Mount Vernon captured a prize on Friday last—the British schooner the British Queen—which was attempting to run the blockade. She was sent with a prize crew to Philadelphia. The crew of the schooner were brought here by the Mount Vernon.

The transport steamer Constitution sailed hence to-day.

The steamer Suwanee arrived here this morning, and is expected to leave for Hatteras to-night.

The steamboat Fiora arrived here from New York this morning. She carries the Revenue flag and is bound bound for Port Royal.

The flag of truce which was sent out yesterday afternoon returned without having any communication with the enemy.

ARCHBISHOP HUGHES AS A CANDIDATE FOR THE PAPACY.

Correspondence of the London Star.

PARIS, Friday, Feb. 14, 1862.—Of all the projects said to be agitating the Imperial brain, that of nominating Archbishop Hughes to be successor of his spiritual father is the newest and, to some, the most astonishing, while to others it is only a further proof of the resource and penetration of the Third Napoleon. The project has not been widely circulated as one fully decided by the Emperor. But it is sufficiently talked of in some circles to be worthy of mention, however, under all the reserves which must be made in respecting the on dits of Paris. The different interviews which the Irish-American Prelate has had with his Imperial Majesty would in themselves have been sufficient to give rise to an extraordinary amount of gossip; but when it was generally understood that he was asked several times to lunch at the Tuilleries, and positively blessed the Emperor's wife, but nothing the possessor of a Cardinal's hat, and a little later the occupant of St. Peter's Chair? I have a few moments since heard a renowned journalist taking for granted the rumors on this subject, expatiating with apparent pleasure on the number of birds the knowing Emperor would kill by translating Archbishop Hughes from the see of New York to the see of Rome. The Americans, and, of course, the discontented Irish, would be flattered and converted into warm imperialists by such a step, and a man of enlightenment and very liberal ideas, in no way inclined to side with despotic princes and reactionary governments, would be secured as the spiritual superior of the Ultramontane bishops who give such a deal of trouble to the Emperor. There is in all this talk one thing certain, which may be put forward without any reserve whatever. It is that the Emperor was prodigiously pleased with the famous representative of American Catholicism, and after the audience granted him expressed his appreciation of his capital qualities and sterling good sense. Archbishop Hughes was about a week ago in Paris, but I understand that he has not yet taken his departure for the centre of the Catholic world, of which he would certainly make one of the best and most popular Popes that ever word the triple crown, as well as one that well understands that statesmen, as such, have no business in discussing creeds and imposing them on others.

THE PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE.

The New York Tribune thus alludes to the Message sent to Congress on Thursday by Mr. Lincoln:

We never printed a State paper with more satisfaction than we feel in giving to our readers the Special Message of President Lincoln to Congress yesterday, by which he recommends the passage of a joint resolve proffering National co-operation and pecuniary aid to each and every State which shall see fit to inaugurate the Abolition of Slavery within its borders. This Message constitutes itself an epoch in the history of our country. It has no precedent; we trust it may have many consequents. It is the day-star of a new National dawn. Even if it were no more than a barren avowal by the Chief Magistrate of the Nation that it is highly desirable that the Union be purged of Slavery, it would be a great fact, of far weightier import than many battles. But it is not destined to remain unfruitful. Congress will be more than ready to welcome and act upon it. It will lead to practical results, and these the most important and beneficent. The 6th of March will yet be celebrated as a day which initiated the Nation's deliverance from the most stupendous wrong, curse and shame of the Nineteenth Century. Years may elapse before the object boldly contemplated in this Message shall be fully attained; but let us never harbor a doubt that it will ultimate in a glorious fruition.

We believe our neighbor of The Herald lately suggested the re-election of Abraham Lincoln as President of the United States. We heartily second the motion. Mr. Counsellor Brady, likewise, at a recent Tammany festival, predicted that Mr. Lincoln would prove himself a good Democrat before the expiration of his present term. We congratulate the Counsellor on the speedy fulfilment of his prophecy. The world does move!

The transmission of this Message to Europe by to-morrow's steamer seals the fate of the rebellion in every Christian land. Dahomey is the last hope of the traitors in their eager quest of recognition and of allies. No civilized nation will think of entering into alliance with Jeffdon in view of this glorious demonstration that "Union and Liberty" are indeed "one and inseparable." Long live the American Republic!

From the Continental Monthly.

EXPERIENCES OF A UNION SOLDIER.

Going to war is no child's play, as many seem to suppose. Once sworn in as a private, you become a tool, a mere thing, to do another's bidding. I do not say this to discourage enlistments—far from it. I am only speaking the truth. "Forewarned, forearmed." If there is a hard life upon earth, it is that of a common soldier; he may be the bravest man in the army; he may perform an endless amount of daring deeds, but it is seldom that he gains a tangible reward. He does all the fighting, he performs all the drudgery, he is plundered by the sutler, he lives on pork and hard bread, but he gets none of the honors of a victory. As Bigelow says:

"Lieutenants are" the lowest grade that help pick up the coppers."

Although we have been in service six weeks, we had but just received our uniforms that morning. My pants, when I put them on, were about six inches too long, and the sleeves of my blouse ditto. After marching all night in the rain my trowsers only came down as far as my knees; they shrank two feet in twelve hours. Many of the men threw away their shoddy uniforms after wearing them one day, as they were totally unfit for use. They tore as easily as so much paper, and were no protection whatever from the weather. Somebody, I don't pretend to say who, made a good thing when he furnished them to the Government. No doubt they were supplied by some loyal and respectable citizen, who would not knowingly cheat his country out of a penny. We have reaped a bountiful harvest of such patriots during the past year. May the Lord love them!

The writer gives a very spirited account of engagements in which he participated at Philippi and Grafton, and says:

"By my soldiering experience I learned some things which it would have been impossible to learn had I never 'gone for a soger.' First, I ascertained—shall I say from my personal experience?—that a man dressed in soldier-clothes can stand twice as much bad liquor as one clothed in the garb of a citizen. Secondly, that to be a good soldier a man should be able to go at least forty-eight hours without eating, drinking, or sleeping, and then endure guard duty all night in a drenching rain, without grumbling or fault-finding. Thirdly, I think I have discovered that the martial road to glory is a hard road to travel.'"

ABOUT THE MARYLAND ELECTIONS.

We clip the following from some extracts from despatches forwarded to Earl Russell by Lord Lyons, and lately republished in the New York Times. The despatch from which this was taken, bears date the 4th day of November, 1861:

I went on to say that there was another matter which caused me still more serious alarm. The numerous military arrests of British subjects, and, I was pained to add, the ill-treatment to which in some instances British subjects had been exposed, constituted in my eyes a grave danger to the cordial relations between the two countries. I mentioned the case of the nine seamen so unjustifiably treated in Fort Lafayette, and said that there were, I was afraid, instances in which the crews of British vessels captured for alleged breach of blockade, had been placed in irons or subjected to other indignities. These things had, I know, made a very painful impression upon her Majesty's Government. They would have a great effect upon public opinion in England; the English people did not enter far into abstract questions of national dignity, but they felt very strongly on the subject of the treatment of their fellow-countrymen abroad; nothing inspired them with so strong or so lasting a resentment as injuries and indignities inflicted by foreign Governments on her Majesty's subjects.

Mr. Seward replied that he had already sent me a written answer respecting the nine seamen, and that as to the recent arrests, they had almost all been made in view of the Maryland elections; that those elections would be over in about a week's time, and that he hoped then to be able to act at liberty all the British subjects now under military arrest.

The Exeter News Letter says:—Every visitor at North Conway must remember the very old lady, who it has seemed to us never does anything but escort her cow to the green pasture which borders on the Saco; always treating the animal as affectionately and seeming to love her as warmly as if she were part and parcel of herself. A lady meeting the twain began asking the old lady questions about the animal, and among other things, if she had given her a name. "A name," replied she indignantly, "why, of course I have. Her name is Nelly Marcy!" "How came you to give her that name?" "Why, just because Nelly Marcy is the sweetest and most beautifullest lady that comes to these mountains. I named my pig, which I love next best, for Miss ——, who was always with Nelly; but my cow, that I love better than anything in the world, I name for her who always has been so kind and sweet to me, a poor old woman." Nelly Marcy is now the wife of Gen. McClellan—and is, we are told, the same sweet, amiable woman who won the heart of the old lady at North Conway.

Oberlin, Ohio, has a new sensation. Two young ladies, attending school there, were poisoned by a third, who was jealous of the attentions paid them by young gentlemen, and complaint was lodged against her before a magistrate. But ere she could appear for trial, she was assaulted by some men in disguise, and so roughly handled that she has since been unable to leave her room.

Robert H. Carroll, a Washington county volunteer, who fell in the recent charge at Bloomery Gap, was interred the other day at Claysville, on the Hempfield road, on the very spot where, seventy years ago, his two grand-uncles fell by the bloody hands of the remorseless savage. Carroll was a brave man, and his death was a source of deep regret to all who knew his worth.

Office (old stand), No. 139 West Fayette street, between Park and Howard, and
No. 55 Baltimore street, south side, three doors east of Gay.
We take the liberty to inform our customers and public generally, that we have combined with our FRENCH SCOURING A FANCY DYEING ESTABLISHMENT, and will be able to execute any work entrusted to our care, in the new branch of our business, to the entire satisfaction of our patrons.
To our old customers we tender our thanks for their patronage so liberally bestowed upon us for many years, and respectfully solicit a continuance of the same. For our new establishment we request a trial. Having fitted up the same with the latest French Dyeing apparatus at a considerable expense, we have obtained the services of a gentleman, whom we have given an interest in the business, who has had considerable experience in the largest and most celebrated dyeing establishments in France and in this country. Possessing a thorough chemical knowledge in the art of fancy dyeing, we are confident that we will be able to please all who may favor us with their custom.
N. B.—We ask the particular attention to the fact, that we are alone in possession of the French scouring process, which has given universal satisfaction.
By this process we are enabled to cleanse ladies, children and gentlemen's clothes of velvet, silk, wool or mixed goods, without taking the garment apart, and will effectually remove all grease spots without shrinking or emitting the slightest odor or injuring the garment in any manner.
Respectfully, FISHER BROTHER & Co.
