"Look Here Upon this Picture, and on This."

How remarkable are some of the contrasts in human events which history records; and yet, in the hurrying bustle of life, how prone we are to overlook them. The present limits the vision of many—the past is forgotten—and the future, with its coming progeny, completely ignored. It is sometimes, how-ever, instructive, and may have the effect at least of stimulating reflection to call attention occasionally to some of the more striking incidents which have occurred; and by placing them in juxtaposition with events which may be transpiring around us, the opportunity is afforded for more thoroughly appreciating the true character of history—that is, philosophy teaching by example. And, surely, amid the numerous and important events which every day now discloses, not a few may be selected, which, in their significance, justify a passing comment. What have we recently witnessed in the Federal Capital? A citizen of Massachusetts, a Mr. Wendell Phillips, in the lecture-room of the Smithsonian Institute—an institution under the control and management of the Government—violently and fanatically urging an universal and complete emancipation of the slaves throughout the country; denouncing the holding of human beings in bondage as the foulest and most infamous of crimes, and defiantly scoffing at all constitutional impediments which happen to stand in the way of the accomplishment of his insane and wicked policy. And if report speaks correctly, the President of the United States and some members of his Cabinet were seen, attentive listeners, on the rostrum from which these sentiments were delivered. And afterward, in further commendation of the opinions and views thus delivered, we find Mr. Phillips the recipient of honors ordinarily reserved for the most eminent and distinguished—received upon the floor of the Senate and cordially greeted by the Vice President, the presiding officer of that body, who vacated the woolsack for the purpose, as also by others who thus publicly endorsed the Lecturer. What are the well-known and freely expressed sentiments of the Senators from Massachusetts? Prominent propagandists of emancipation, who in the intensity of their fanaticism are not slow to avail themselves of the present desolating war, as affording a pretext for the accomplishment of the scheme to which they have long devoted themselves with unfaltering zeal and untiring perseverance—men who doubtless would not hesitate to re-echo the opinion of Mr. Bingham, of Ohio, that to treat a negro as property "is an infernal outrage." And where, in this country, is this insane dogma so frequently and persistently ventilated and so cordially received as in the Athens (?) of America? How often has Faneuil Hall, which closed its doors with grating sound upon the great expounder of the Constitution for fearlessly maintaining its provisions, resounded with approving plaudits in behalf of negro emancipation! And where as in Massachusetts has this insane fanaticism flourished with such rank luxuriance? She, of all the States in the Union, has been pre-eminently distinguished (?) by her rabid advocacy of this destructive and pernicious dogma. In striking contrast with all this, how boldly and prominently stands out the following incident taken from the past history of that State, and which clearly shows the spirit of Puritan intolerance which has governed her people, and which, unfortunately, has descended to the present day, though now exhibited in matters of politics instead of religious creeds. In quoting this passage the phraseology has been modernized:

"Whereas, Daniel and Provided Southwick, son and daughter to Laurence Southwick, have been fined by the County Courts at Salem and Ipswich, pretending they have no estate, resolving not to work; and others, likewise, have been fined, and more like to be fined, for siding with the Quakers and absenting themselves from the public ordinances. In answer to a question, what course should be taken for the satisfaction of the fines, the Court, on perusal of the law, title, 'arrest,' Resolve, That the Treasurers of the several counties are, and shall hereby be empowered, to sell the said persons to any of the English nation at Virginia or Barbadoes."—Massachusetts Records, vol. 4, p. 301; 1657.

Messrs. Editors:—Last week the pupils of the Western Female High School were regaled by the verbose declamations of one Captain Evans, and to-day another son of Mars took possession of a teacher's room, interrupting the regular routine of recitation and study.

Will you inform the public if strangers are allowed more privileges in our schools than are conceded to our own citizens, and if the Commissioners are cognizant of the fact?

NEMO.

From the New York Express.

PARTIALITY IN THE PRESS CENSORSHIP. The following appeared in the Tribune of Friday:

"A RIFLED SHOT.

"Mr. O. R. Burnham, of this city, has shown us some shot of a new description. Some of them have four air holes extending from the front of the shot spirally backward, and coming out on the sides near the base. The air rushing through these holes is intended to give the shot a spiral motion, even when fired from a smooth-bore gun, and when fired from a rifled gun, to insure its continuance point first, a point in which the Parrott gun is found to be defective. A few of the shots are cylindrical, say three inches thick of metal in an 11-inch shot, with a 5 inch hole down the centre. Along the sides of this hole are four spiral flanges, extending an inch inward. These shots are to be fired under water at the Merrimac; it is supposed that their form will offer less resistance to the water than the ordinary form in proportion to the weight of the shot. The flanges will certainly give them a rotary motion. The shots shown us were mainly 11-inch, and were shipped for Fortress Monroe yesterday."

If the like had appeared in the Journal of Commerce, the editor, probably, would be sent to Fort Lafayette, for it is a palpable violation of the following:

"To the Editor of the ——:

"SIR—The Secretary of War directs me to say to you that it is very desirable at this time not to give publicity to any improvement in projectiles or other means of overcoming the iron-clad vessels of the enemy.

"Respectfully, &c.,

"E. S. SANFORD,
"Military Supervisor."

A WARNING TO VISITORS ON OUR LINES.—On the 25th ultimo, William Ayers, of Philadelphia, in company with others, (mostly from New York,) took the stage to Manassas, and thence they went to Warrenton. Venturing too far, Stewart's cavalry caught some of them (Mr. A. among the number) and sent them to Richmond. No tidings of Mr. A. were received by his family or friends until Friday last, when they learned by letter from Richmond, by way of Fortress Monroe, that he was a prisoner. The letter was dated April 1st.—Washington Republican.

In our issue of this morning will be found the spring and summer opening advertisement of Mr. GEO. MCKENDREE TEAL'S Merchant Tailoring Establishment, N. E. corner of Baltimore and Frederick streets. Notwithstanding the depressed state of trade, Mr. Teal has purchased a large and general assortment of goods of the finest quality, which will enable him to please the tastes of the most fastidious.

MARRIED.

On the 12th instant, by the Rev. Father Slatery, LOUIS KALBUM to Miss MARY ANN MITCHELL.

On the 8th instant, by the Rev. Mr. Cooper, Mr. ISAAC J. WILLIAMS to Miss JANE E. ADAMS, both of Somerset county.

On the 12th March, 1862, by Rev. Henry Elbert, THOMAS H. WALKER, of New York, to Miss CHARLOTTE C. BROWN, of Baltimore, Md.

DIED.

On Monday, the 14th instant, ADA, only daughter of John H. and Almira Tolling, aged 7 years and 7 months. The relatives and friends of the family are invited to attend her funeral on this (Tuesday) afternoon, at three o'clock, from her parents' residence, Pennsylvania avenue.

On Saturday, the 5th instant, JOHN WHITE, Esq., in the 81st year of his age. For many years he had withdrawn himself from business and general society, but by his own fireside he enjoyed the affectionate intercourse of those near to him, and a small circle of attached friends. To the last he was vigorous and cultivated intellect retained its force, and the strongest tribute to his memory from those with whom he has just parted, is their keen sense that their loss is irreparable.

On the 12th instant, AGNES, wife of Wm. Morrow, in the 64th year of her age.

On the 12th instant, NATHANIEL MEGINNISS, aged 65 years.

On the 7th instant, Mrs AMELIA HOYD, in the 70th year of her age, relict of the late Jeremiah L. Hoyd, of Queen Anne's county, Md.

In Harford county, on Thursday, 27th of March, 1862, ELIZABETH A., wife of William N. Coale, aged 30 years and 6 months.

SPRING AND SUMMER CLOTHING OF THE FIRST QUALITY.—We would call the attention of our readers to the Merchant Tailoring Establishment of Mr. GEO. MCKENDREE TEAL, N. E. corner of Baltimore and Frederick streets, who is now offering for sale a fine assortment of Ready-Made Clothing, made under his own instructions, expressly for spring and summer wear. This gentleman has already obtained among his numerous customers a high reputation for having Broadcloths, Cassimeres and Vestings of the first quality, as well as cheapness, neatness and durability of workmanship. We take pleasure in recommending him to the notice of our friends and readers. ap15 tf
