BALTIMORE.

FRIDAY, MAY 9, 1862.

FROM FREDERICKSBURG.

Correspondence Philadelphia Inquirer, May 6.

THE CONFEDERATE "SITUATION"

The accounts given by deserters from Rebeldom agree in establishing the fact that matters are ripening into a condition of unavoidable confusion and panic among the Southern soldiery. The term of enlistment of the Tennessee troops having expired, it has been without the power of their military authorities to prevail upon them for an extension of their time. Two regiments had, on the 16th ult, thrown down their arms, and would remain no longer. The utmost vigilance was used in preventing the desertion from their ranks of impressed Virginians, notwithstanding which, some daily make their appearance among us at this point. A large proportion of these have been Northern men, and are mainly from Pennsylvania.

Little doubt now exists but that the Confederates are contemplating a stand of defence at "Guineas," about twelve miles from Fredericksburg. This we learn from various sources, and it is asserted positively by the desert rs who daily arrive. A force of from fifteen to twenty thousand Confederates are entrenched at that point. This is the drift of statements made by several intelligent Pennsylvanians, who, on Wednesday evening last, deserted from the Confederates at Guineas.

FREDERICKSBURG.

This city presents a dejected but suggestive picture of the war. It is at present, as it has been since the arrival here of our troops, as was properly termed by one of its inhabitants, "between wind and water"—neither occupied by our troops nor those of the enemy. The inhabitants have, in a great measure, fled, either from sympathy with the Confederate cause or fear of the consequences of bombardment, as it is freely reported by the Secession clan that the city will be burned at any rate. It is a matter of regret that a portion of our troops could not have, ere this, been stationed in the city as a guard of occupation, at least, which would have had the effect of imparting a feeling of security to the Union citizens, while the minds of many of the timid inhabitants, who have been led to regard the "Yankees" as monsters, would have an opportunity of judging as to the absurdity of the bugbear. All business is at a stand-still, if we except the baking community, which is busy in supplying a few active tradesmen with bread, cakes, pies, gingerbread, &c., who are driving quite a trade with the soldiers on this side. Confederate spies not unfrequently visit the city in disguise, and it is said that attempts have been made to carry away men to be impressed into the Secesh ranks.

Meanwhile the work of constructing a temporary bridge, near the ruins of the railroad bridge, progresses slowly. For this purpose a number of canal boats have been brought to the spot, and a pontoon train has arrived which furnishes a supposition that in course of time we shall occupy the city.

The valley of the Rappahannock is just assuming its charming features in the appearance of the green tints over hill and field. The pink blossoms of fruit trees, and the paler hue of fresh budding forest leaves, convey to the eye a sense of returning summer. A ride for several miles down the river affords a refreshing respite from scenes incident to the war which has desolated the country, over which we have passed. Here, but of late, the tramp of the war horse has not been heard, and we breathe in once more a deep and sweet feeling of repose from the rigors of war. Vast fields are already receiving the seed corn, and the ploughman is busy in preparing the ground. The farms are in many cases left to the care of the overseers, who regard themselves as neutrals, so far as the war question relates, and they are going about their regular spring business, apparently unconcerned about the war, while the actual owners are in Richmond or at other places in the "Southern Confederacy." Some few families have possession of their estates in persona, with the exception of the male members, who are away, of course.

The following incident will convey a striking illustration of the character of some of the "gentler sex" of the "first families:" Two of the officers connected with the First Pennsylvania cavalry called, in accordance with instructions from their superiors, at the mansion of one of the families in question, with a view of gaining some information, as well as to negotiate the purchase of forage, &c. The Lieutenant was met at the door by a servant, and after having learned that the lady of the house was in, was about to step inside, when the person in question emerged from a side room, and, with an air of haughty bearing, unceremoniously checked the advance of the Lieutenant, who, with cap in hand, was about to convey the object of his visit, but was peremptorily pointed to a position on the portico, accompanied by the remark that "no hireling marauder should cross the threshold of that house." The Lieutenant retired to the spot designated and again attempted to relate his mission, but was unable to catch the ear of the "fair creature," who proceeded to convey, in brief but pointed epithets, her ideal of Union soldiers, the "cream" of which was that, in her estimation, they should be dealt with as cut-throats, and that she did not want her presence desecrated by "Northern plunderers." Our non-plussed Lieutenant, desparing of effecting any trade with the lady, under the circumstances, turned on his heel to retire; but, feeling exhausted, mustered courage enough to request a glass of water. The "lady," as she swept into her parlor with a suggestive curl of the lip and a wave of her hand, pointed to a neatly dressed negro woman, and replied, "my servant will give you water."

THE RIOTS IN SCHUYLKILL COUNTY.

Special Despatch to the Philadelphia Inquirer,

MINERSVILLE, May 7.—Under the orders of Gen. Patterson, one hundred and sixty men of the Grey Reserves, under Captain Charles S. Smith, of Company A, left Philadelphia this afternoon to suppress disturbances in the West Branch coal region. The military was constituted as follows: Fifty men of Company A, Lieutenant Commanding James D. Keyser, Second Lieutenant, G. F. Delleber; forty men of Company C, Lieutenant: Atwood Smith commanding, and Lieutenants Herring and Gardner; twenty-one men of Company B; fifteen men of Company E, and fifteen men of Company H.

The volunteers consisted of ten men of Company K, and nine of G.

The train of cars left the depot of the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad at quarter-past three o'clock. Colonel Ellmaker accompanied the battalion in citizen's dress as far as Norristown, and then returned. A commissioned officer of Company I (Lieutenant Speel) donned the uniform of a private and accompanied the expedition.

Before leaving the city thirty rounds of cartridges were furnished to each man, and it was understood that the different companies in the city were to assemble at their respective armories in the evening and to be prepared to follow the expedition if so notified by telegraph.

The train with the troops arrived at Minersville at nine o'clock, without hindrance, in care of Superintendent Wilder, of the Minehill and Schuylkill Haven Railroad, who afforded your reporter great facilities for obtaining information.

The strike commenced on Monday morning, when the miners and laborers at the new mines—Hewett's, Forestville and Thomaston—numbering fifteen hundred (1,500) men refused to work. This morning they stopped the pumps which keep the water from the mines, many of which are now overflowed and damaged. They have held meetings daily, insisting on an advance as follows:—Miners 10 cents per wagon, laborers twenty-five (25) cents per day. The works are all owned by the Forest Improvement Company, which is now furnishing large quantities of coal to the Government.

The capacity of the collieries is about four hundred thousand tons per annum, and they were all in operation up to the time of the strike. They are all nearly below water level, and unless the pumps are worked great destruction may ensue. The strikers have their headquarters about two miles from Minersville, but as yet have committed no outrage except stopping the pumps. The Reserves took supper in Minersville, and at ten o'clock marched to Forestville and Heckscherville with Sheriff Raub. Twenty-five volunteers from Pottsville are already at Heckscherville.

No difficulty is expected on the march, but it is very probable that several more companies will be required. The strikers refuse to allow any man to work, but efforts will be made to start the collieries' engines under the protection of the Reserves.

The affair is much more important than at first appears, from the fact that the supply of Government coal will be partially stopped; and that, if the strikers succeed in their demands, all the operators in that region may be compelled to pay higher rates than the Government contracts will allow.

The Reserves have divided themselves into two bodies. It is possible that the strikers may resist the starting of the pumps, and that a collision may ensue. They are well supplied with arms if disposed to use them. No injury has been experienced by the Mine Hill road, the management having won friends throughout the entire region.

The French Court has gone into mourning for the death of the Princess Marie Sidonie, Duchess of Saxony. The etiquette on such occasions is of the strictest kind, and has had to be frequently observed of late. Since October last, the Emperor and Empress have had to be mourners, on various occasions, for 77 days. The Empress has been to Fontainebleau to give the necessary orders for the reception of visitors, who are to remain with the Imperial family during their residence there. The Court intends to leave Paris on the 10th of May.

RELIABLE NEWS.

BALTIMORE, March 29, 1862.

Mr. Geo. Pearson—Dear Sir: Being troubled with a severe SORE THROAT and COLD (which settled on my lungs), I tried your MEDICATED TAR DROPS, and can speak very flatteringly of their having relieved me in a few hours, and curing me in three or four days. I cheerfully recommend your justly celebrated Tar Drops to all similarly affected, who will find them pleasant, simple, very efficacious, and the cheapest remedy I ever used. Yours, very truly,
W. HARRISON HOENER,
