BALTIMORE.

FRIDAY, MAY 16, 1862.

From the London Standard, April 23.

SPECULATIONS CONCERNING COTTON.

Mr. Cobden, who with Mr. Bright has been mainly instrumental in shaping the American policy of the Coalition Cabinet, tacitly acknowledged in his recent letter on the law of blockade that he, and those of his way of thinking on American matters, have been in error. The war has not taken the precise turn he believed it would. The planters have not done exactly what he considered certain, and the early forbearance of Lord Russell brings forth briars and thorns instead of wheat. Mr. Cobden's reputation as a great American authority being accordingly at stake, nothing short of wholesale backing out remained, and the exhibition is really painful. He is in the right, and always has been in the right, and Manchester is distinctly to understand from him that its present and prospective difficulties have been fastened on it by those who urged the Government to issue the neutrality proclamation. That proclamation, in the opinion of Mr. Cobden, has done all the mischief, inasmuch as it has made the Federal Government feel unkindly toward us, and as it, besides, has led the Southerners to prolong the war. But, let it be only answered that the proclamation of neutrality has had no warmer advocates in and out of Parliament than those who act and think with the Radicals below the gangway, and Mr. Cobden's sophistry is at once demolished.

Non-intervention, as a principle, is, to us an Americanism, a plank in the platform of Birmingham, Rochdale, and Manchester, and to hear the impending ruin of the manufacturing districts charged to its application must shock the admirers of the great economist. It must, in fact, destroy their confidence in public men, for from first to last the cotton representatives and the cotton lords have insisted that the only way to bring the present war to a speedy and happy close was to give the North its own way in everything and submit meekly to all outrage. What Mr. Cobden and Mr. Bright and their followers prophesied was, unconditional surrender of the South when the grand army of the Potomac was fairly put in motion; and it never entered into their heads that the platters were proof against the seduction of the almighty dollar. But now that peace has not come, and now that peace has not answered, Mr. Cobden takes to sounding his own and their praise, and leaves the Cabinet to do the best it can.

The recent Federal invasion of the cotton States threatens the entire destruction of the American cotton trade. This is the point matters have already reached, and should Generals Grant, Buell, and Halleck occupy Alabama, Mississippi, and Louisiana, all uneasiness about the opening of the South-ern cotton ports may be hushed at once.—The cotton States have only to be invaded to compel the planters to make their way hastily into Georgia or Texas, and leave behind them their blazing store houses, and huts, and mansions, that the living portion of their estates may at least be saved. For now there is not a planter in the cotton States, nor, indeed, an inhabitant of the South, who, in the presence of a Federal force, can feel secure in person or possessions; and until, therefore, an amnesty has been declared or the Federal Government and Congress are once more right on the slavery question, not a man will remain in the invaded States who can find the means to leave.

Before the whole population of the South the experience of Federal clemency in Missouri has been proclaimed, which practically amounts to the confiscation of all the property of suspected persons, the employment of their negroes by the Federal generals, and possibly the sending of the planters to headquarters on the Potomac, in a chain-gang of Rebels. Until recently the case was otherwise, for the Federal forces, contending in the mountain ranges of Virginia and Kentucky, made little headway against the enemy, and when successes were achieved it was not always easy and perhaps never politic in those places to oppress or wrong the people. In Missouri and Tennessee and the cotton States, where the great mass of the people, if not all, are against the Yankees, there is no motive for such a course, and it is even felt necessary to make examples of the recusants. Hence the severity in Missouri, the consequent alarm in Tennessee, the burning of towns and villages, and the possible panic in the cotton States, where the whites are few in number and the slaves numerous.

It appears certain, then, that a cotton famine must soon be faced. Tennessee, during the last year of the cotton trade, shipped upwards of 400,000 bales from Memphis and the minor ports; and the now threatened lower cotton States—Alabama, Mississippi and Louisiana—shipped upwards of 2,200,000 bales from the two ports of Mobile and New Orleans. Three-fourths of the whole American cotton trade, therefore, trembles just now in the balance of Federal success in the West, and the 400,000 bales which Tennessee before produced may never be produced again. The Tennessee planters, with their negroes, after wasting their unsold cotton crop of last year, and flying before the enemy, are believed to be in full retreat across the Alabama and Mississippi State lines to a place of safety.

The 2,200,000 bales of the three other States will be only saved from a like fate by the repulse of the Federal army, now bent on reaching the Gulf ports before the sickly season. And as probability is for the present as strongly on the Federal as on the Confederate side, it is consequently on the side of the destruction of all the cotton now in store. Nor does the evil stop there. This season Tennessee will grow no cotton, nor will any one of the cotton States, whether the Federal forces succeed or fail, as the whole cotton crop of last season was thrown away, and the determination of her Majesty's Government and Parliament removes all further motive.

What, then, is to be done when our present stock of cotton fails, as soon it may do? Four millions of the population of these islands, who directly or indirectly are said to be dependent on the cotton trade for the means of living, will necessarily become partially if not wholly unemployed, and can scarcely be expected to wait patiently until Manchester is forced to exert itself to obtain an adequate supply of our great manufacturing staple. In the meantime the attention of Parliament may well be turned to our now gloomy prospects, that cotton cultivation may be promoted in our possessions, and means taken to mitigate the evil which abstract theories of supply and demand cannot keep from us, if unhappily it should turn out that the planters of Alabama, Mississippi, and Louisiana, like the planters of Tennessee, have already burned their plantations and fled to a place of safety.

THE GUERILLAS IN WESTERN VIRGINIA.

The Parkersburg Gazette of Saturday says:

"On Wednesday last (7th) a gang numbering about 300 made a descent upon the town of Arnoldsburg, the county-seat of Calhoun county, and succeeded in surprising and capturing the Federal forces there, consisting of one company of Colonel Rathbone's Eleventh Virginia regiment, under Lieutenant Parrott, together with a large amount of ammunition, stores, &c.

"They then proceeded to Spencer, Roane county, it is reported, and took that place. Capt. Bakey's company of the Eleventh Virginia was stationed there. Its fate is not yet known. The bushwackers were commanded by Hays, Downs and Silcott. Lieutenant Parrott lost four men. On Thursday Major Trimble, with 200 men, came into Arnoldsburg, re-took the place and all who had been taken by the Confederates, and moved on and re-took Spencer, with all that was valuable. We learn that eighteen Confederates were killed, and several wounded, with some prisoners.

"On Friday morning the scouts from the 6th Virginia came in and reported Hays, with 300 men, marching down the west fork of Little Kanawha, towards Burning Spring."

EXCITEMENT AMONG LAWYERS—THE CASE OF EDWIN JAMES.—There was an unusually large attendance of lawyers at the General Term of the Supreme Court this morning, in anticipation of certain proceedings in the case of Mr. Edwin James, Q. C.* It appears that the New York Law Institute recently held a meeting and appointed a committee, consisting of Messrs. Daniel Lord, Murray Hoffman, William C. Noyes, Charles Edwards and Henry A. Cram, to investigate the circumstances of Mr. James' admission to the New York bar and of his displacement from the English bar. This committee held a meeting and propounded certain inquiries to Mr. James, who, in reply, questioned their authority to interrogate him on the subject-matter, besides asking them other questions. It is understood that the committee will report adversely to Mr. James, and ask the Supreme Court to investigate the matter. As yet, the question has not come into Court, but it is believed that it will take the form of a motion in a day or two. The whole subject has created the liveliest interest among the profession, and is a fruitful topic of gossip around the courts and in the law offices.—From the N. Y. Post, May 13.

STILL ANOTHER TRIUMPH.

BALTIMORE, May 1st, 1862

I have experienced so much benefit by using PEARSON'S MEDICATED TAR DROPS, that I believe it not only a duty but a pleasure, to make it known to others. I was afflicted with a Sore Throat and Dry Cough, which debilitated me so that I could get no rest. My friends told me that I had the consumption. I am now happy to inform you that your MEDICATED TAR DROPS have cured me.

I find that your MEDICATED TAR DROPS are counterfeited, and I caution the afflicted to be on their guard. This is really a charm that so efficacious a remedy should be injured by unprincipled men. I am glad, however, to see that your signature is now on each package, and I advise those who purchase to bear that in mind.

Yours, truly, HENRY FISHER, No. 15 North Bond street.

PEARSON'S MEDICATED TAR DROPS are prepared and sold by GEO. PEARSON, No. 5 Liberty street, Baltimore. Sold also by the principal Druggists at 10 cents per package. m10 tf

LAUGHING GAS. DR. COLTON, who gave the Exhibition in the Cooper Institute, New York, will give a LECTURE WITH A GRAND EXHIBITION OF THE NITROUS OXIDE, EXHILERATING or

LAUGHING GAS,

AT THE MARYLAND INSTITUTE, MONDAY EVENING, MAY 19th,

A STRONG RAILING will be erected around the Stage, to prevent those under the influence of the Gas from coming in contact with the audience.

TWELVE STOUT MEN will occupy the Stage, to guard the Gas against accidents or injuries.

TWELVE GENTLEMEN have volunteered to inhale the Gas.

SIXTY GALLONS of Gas will be made and administered. AS NONE but entire strangers to the Gas will be allowed to inhale it, there need be no apprehension of any improprieties.

THE EFFECT of the Gas is to develop the leading traits of character. Some will laugh, sing, dance, declaim, etc. Dr. C will be the last to inhale it.

DR. COLTON will endeavor to manage the Exhibition in such a manner as to deserve the patronage (as in Philadelphia) of the clergy of Baltimore and Government. Those who love an even flow of hearty laughter will be gratified.

To add variety to the entertainment, Dr. C. has engaged the celebrated TREMAINE BROTHERS.

Who will commence the evening with a brief and brilliant Concert, in which they will sing a selection of patriotic, sentimental and nice songs.
