CITY INTELLIGENCE.

THE NEW UNITED STATES COURT HOUSE.—Our citizens will be glad to learn that the work on the new United States Court House has been resumed, and its completion will be pressed forward with energy and despatch. Mr. N. Osborn is the contractor, and A. B. Young, Esq., the architect. The superintending architect was A. Snowden Andrews, Esq., but as that gentleman is absent from the city, a vacancy exists, which will be filled in a few days. The building will be constructed with brick and grey granite, the exterior being entirely of granite, and when completed will be one of the most imposing edifices in the city. The building will front 60 feet on Fayette street and 100 feet on North street. The principal entrance will be on Fayette street, where there will be a large Grecian-Doric portico with steps extending to the line of the sidewalk. The building will stand thirty-five feet from the building line on North street, and there will be a main entrance ornamented with Doric columns surmounted by Corinthian caps. Along the building line, running from the north end of the lot on North street to the portico on Fayette street, a beautiful iron railing, supported by granite columns, will be erected, and the space between the railing and the building will be sodded, and laid off in walks. The basement floor will be one foot ten inches below the bed of the street on Fayette street. A spacious hall will divide the building, to the right and left of which there will be rooms, which will be devoted to the following uses: one small court-room, two for the District Attorney, one for the Clerk, one for the Judge, two for the Marshal, and one for the Janitor. There will also be other essential apartments. On the main floor the principal room will be that for the Court. It will be 64 feet long by 55 wide, ornamented with iron columns and pilasters, with Corinthian caps. The ceiling will be finished with deep-set panels and stucco work, with stucco cornice. The height of the room will be 26 feet 3 inches, and the general finish will be of the finest order. On this floor, and connecting with the court-room, will be the Judge's private room and library; the Clerk's room, and one for a library for the attorneys. Between the main story and the one above, directly over the portico and all the rooms other than the principal court-room, there will be apartments which will be used as Clerk's room, Clerk's record-room, Grand Jury room, and three detention rooms. The latter will have iron doors and iron grates in the windows, to prevent the escape of prisoners. The first floor will be supported by groined arches, and the other floors by arches supported by iron girders. The entire building will be heated by Hayward & Bartlett's hot water apparatus, which is the most perfect arrangement known for the purpose. The granite, which is of a beautiful quality and works and finishes admirably, is from the quarry of J. B. Sumwalt, situated on the line of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, seventeen miles from the city. The roof will be covered with corrugated galvanized iron, which will be of the most permanent character.

AN INSANE MAN.—On Wednesday afternoon last, the police of the Eastern district observed an elderly man reeling through Spring street, with blood flowing freely from a cut directly over his right eye, and also from one on the back of his head. He was intoxicated and could give no account of himself, and the police took him to the Eastern station house, where Capt. Carmichael and the other officers dressed his wounds and took care of him. On Thursday morning the fumes of intoxication had passed, but the man gave unmistakable evidences of insanity, and it was not until yesterday that he could tell who he is. He states that his name is John Ryan, a resident of Reading, and that he arrived in this city on Tuesday, and was taken to a boarding-house by a man whom he met at the depot. After reaching the boarding house he treated the man for what he thought was kindness. The party then invited him to take a walk, and after leading him through several streets, he was knocked down and robbed of some $15 or $20. He states that he was unable to find the boarding-house, and wandered about until a policeman took him to the Central police station, where he remained over night, and was dismissed in the morning. Captain Carmichael despatched several police with instructions, if possible, to find out where Ryan was taken to on his arrival in this city. A diligent search was made, but no clue could be found either to the man who conducted him away from the depot, or the house to which he was taken. Ryan asserts that he left a trunk at the boarding house containing a large quantity of clothing and valuable papers. Whether his story is correct or not is a matter of some doubt. He was certainly drunk when arrested, and the wounds from which he is now suffering, were received from falling on the sidewalk. Yesterday afternoon Captain Carmichael sent him to the Almshouse, where he will remain until he recovers from his wounds.

PATTERSON'S PARK.—Dr. Schwartze, a few days since, offered a resolution in the First Branch of the City Council, directing the Park Commissioners to pay over the revenues derived from the Park, one-tenth of the revenue derived from the Park, one-tenth of the revenue derived from the Park, one-tenth of the revenue
