THE BURNING OF THE LOUISIANA.

LETTER FROM CAPTAIN PORTER.

In a letter from Captain D. D. Porter, United States Navy, to Senator Grimes, of Iowa, dated Ship Island, May 6, he says:

"Four rams and floating batteries, such as the world never before saw, have been destroyed in the late attack. The Louisiana, an invincible steam battery, was set on fire and sent down on the vessels while I was engaged in drawing up a capitulation for the surrender of the forts—a flag of truce flying at the time. She exploded within three hundred yards of us, and sunk in one minute, her splendid battery of rifled guns being lost to us. Her fragments fairly covered Fort St. Philip, and killed a man of theirs in the fort.

"There was Southern honor for you! That vessel was four thousand tons, two hundred and seventy feet long, and had sixteen heavy rifle guns, all made in Secessia. She intended to take position that night when she would have driven off all our fleet, for as a proof of her invulnerability one of our heaviest ships laid within ten feet of her and delivered her whole broadside, making no more impression on her than if she was firing peas. The Louisiana's shot, on the contrary, went through and through the above-mentioned sloop-of-war, as if she was glass.

"The iron ram Manassas hit three vessels before her commander ran her ashore and abandoned her. She has been a troublesome customer all through.

"In New Orleans, our naval officers found the most splendid specimen of a floating battery the world has ever seen, (a sea-going affair,) and had she been finished and succeeded in getting to sea, the whole American navy would have been destroyed. She was six thousand tons, two hundred and seventy feet long, sixty feet beam; had four engines, three propellors, four inches (and in some places more) of iron, and would steam eleven knots an hour. She cost Mr. Mallory & Co. two millions of dollars.

"The best one I saw floating by me was a dry-dock turned into a floating battery, mounting sixteen guns, and the entire engine, which was to propel it, hermetically sealed by a thick iron turret against shot. She was sunk, but floated down to Southwest Pass, and is now aground on the bar and can be easily raised.

"Besides these monsters, the naval part of the enemy's defences at the forts consisted of six or seven iron-clad gunboats, almost impervious to shot, and certainly so against vessels coming bow on. We had nothing there on our side but twenty frail mortar-boats, five sloops-of-war, nine or ten poor gunboats, (in all a little over one hundred and forty guns,) to contend against two of the most impregnable forts in this or any other country, mounting one hundred and twenty-seven heavy guns, (many of them rifled), three iron plated batteries, mounting thirty-one guns, six or seven ironplated gunboats, and nine or ten things got up for the occasion, soon destroyed, and their power never to be known. * * * * *

"Allow me to send you a perfectly correct tracing of Fort Jackson, made by the Coast Survey party attached to the mortar fleet. They acted in the same capacity as the topographical party hold in the army. Without them our work would have been tedious. They triangulated every position occupied by the mortar vessels, and it is safe to say that we knew to a yard the exact distance of the mouth of the mortars from the centre of the fort. The enemy never saw us except for one day, when one of the divisions of six vessels was placed in sight, getting pretty roughly handled. I moved them under a point of woods, where, with their masts covered with green bushes and their rigging with vines, they were invisible to the best glasses.

Our firing was a matter of calculation, and you may judge how accurate it was when I tell you that 1,313 bombs struck in the centre and solid parts of the works; 2,330 struck in the most near the foundation, sh king the whole fort to its base; nearly 1,500 exploded in and over the works; and 1,357 struck about the levees, in the marsh close around and in the paths and near the water's edge, where the steamers attempted to come. All small boats, scows and armed barges were sunk, and if the garrison had dished to get away they could not have done so easily. I never saw so perfect a scene of desolation and ruin, nor do I believe there was ever such perfect mortar practice. We could clear the batteries whenever the soldiers appeared on the ramparts. In fact, no guns there could be worked.

"Data which [illegible] Western States are floating securely and peacefully to the seaboard in the swift waters of the Mississippi, let them remember that it was the navy which opened the doors to a commerce that might have been shut up for a quarter of a century, and that they can dictate free trade now where they might have been obliged to pay tribute.

"With my best wishes, I remain, dear sir, yours, very truly,

[Signed] "DAVID D. PORTER,
"Commanding Flotilla.

"Hon. James W. Grimes, U. S. Senator."

FROM GEN. WOOL'S DIVISION.

Special Correspondence of the Philadelphia Press.

FORTRESS MONROE, May 27—P. M.—The news from the Valley of the Shenandoah is the all-absorbing topic here to-day. Nothing short of the capture of Richmond would be considered a set-off to the poor success of General Banks in holding his position at Winchester.

STARTLING, IF TRUE.

The following startling intelligence, which we obtain from a gentleman supposed to be in the confidence of the military authorities here, we publish for the benefit of the Government:

For some weeks past, a vessel (bark) has been quietly lying at anchor beyond the fortress, ostensibly for the purpose of communicating with her consignees in New York, and in the meantime sending to shore daily for a number of contrabands to work in her hold, but, on no condition, were these men allowed to return to this point. This game was played on until, it is said, two hundred and seventy-two contrabands were ferried out to the ship. Deeming this about as far as he could safely go, the "skipper" "skipped" out to sea last night, under the cover of darkness. "Brother" Wilder, superintendent of contrabands here, has thus been foiled in his charitable intentions of reforming the blacks, at least as regards this lot of "cullud pussons," who are, by this time, far on their way to Cuba or the West Indies. We learn that the fleet gunboat Wamsutta has been sent after the slaver, and it is hoped that she may be overtaken, and these poor contrabands returned. The cargo is made up of sprightly lads, worth, in Cuba, from $1,200 to $1,500 each. We are sorry to observe that owing to the embargo recently placed upon naval officers, who "say their mouths are sealed," we are not able to present the facts of the case well authenticated.

THE NAUGATUCK.

It is understood that the E. A. Stevens (Naugatuck) will be sent North for repairs. The publication of a private letter written by her captain, Lieut. D. C. Constable, to Captain Faunce, in the New York Tribune, a few days since, is a breach of confidence on the part of somebody which compromises the exalted character of a worthy officer. It is due to Captain Constable to say that the letter was not intended for publication under any circumstances.

FROM THE ADVANCE.

The boat from White House Point has arrived, bringing a variety of rumors, among the most important of which is one to the effect that our advance are within the enemy's entrenchments before Richmond.

THE NEWS IN NORFOLK.

The Confederates in Norfolk had the news of our reverse in the Valley of the Shenandoah by noon to-day, and are the better pleased because it is what they predicted would happen ten days ago.

PARSON BROWNLOW.—We somewhat mildly passed yesterday, upon Parson Brownlow's change of tone as he came North; but upon recalling his declaration at Cincinnati, to the effect—that if two hundred Southern secessionists and two hundred Northern abolitionists were hung, our troubles might be composed—his failure to apportion the blame with some sort of fairness, when speaking here, does not tend to raise our estimate of the Parson's claim to public sympathy. We are not sure that we have given the numbers exactly right; but of the relative proportion we are quite confident. Now, if Parson Brownlow really believed what he said at Cincinnati, he ought to have repeated it at Boston. Instead of this, he made false charges against men here, as "sympathizers with secession," who are only called such, for their own purposes, by the very class of Northern disunionists, that his own political associates—the Constitutional Union men—are "sympathizers with secession"—because their object is to bring the North and South together again.—Boston Courier.

SAD SCENES.—The order just issued by General McClellan, prohibiting further disinterments of the dead by their friends, was a "sanitary" necessity. A correspondent of the Pittsburg Chronicle says:

Since the battle of Williamsburg the bones of a number of those killed in the engagement have been raised and sent North to their friends. This, however, has been stopped now, and no further disinterments will be permitted. The General informed me that, as a sanitary measure, he was constrained to adopt this course. The bodies had so far decomposed that their removal would endanger the public health, and for this reason he issued the order. While I was at the office there were nine bodies brought down, but the General would not allow them to be taken on board the boat, and despite the tears and entreaties of those who had been sent to look after them, they were interred at Yorktown. Some two hundred bodies altogether have been brought down, many of them in a state of advanced decomposition, and some of them so charred with gas as to burst the metal cases in which they were confined.

THE FREEDOM OF THE PRESS PARTIALLY RESTORED.—After an involuntary absence of about three months, during which time we were made familiar with the classic and once hallowed grounds of Fort McHenry—we again resume, partially, our old vocation of "enlightening the world with lamp-black." OUR PRESS, being deemed dangerous by the Government, has been kindly limited, and, for the future, instead of publishing "THE SOUTH, or any other paper, without consent of the Commanding General," we shall modestly labor in the humbler department of the "art preservative of all arts," by executing every description of BOOK AND JOB PRINTING, hoping through that medium to sustain ourselves and those dependent upon us, and would earnestly appeal to our friends to favor us with their patronage. We have prepared our JOB PRINTING DEPARTMENT to execute all kinds of printing neatly, expeditiously and cheaply, and solicit a call at our old buildings.

STILL ANOTHER TRIUMPH.

BALTIMORE, May 1st, 1862.

I have experienced so much benefit by using PEARSON'S, MEDICATED TAR DROPS, that I believe it not only a duty but a pleasure, to make it known to others. I was afflicted with a Sore Throat and Dry Cough, which debilitated me so that I could get no rest. My friends told me that I had the consumption. I am now happy to inform you that your MEDICATED TAR DROPS have cured me.

I find that your MEDICATED TAR DROPS are counterfeited, and I caution the afflicted to be on their guard. This is really a shame that so efficacious a remedy should be injured by unprincipled men. I am glad, however, to see that your signature is now on each package, and I advise those who purchase to bear that in mind.

Yours, truly, HENRY FISHER,
No. 15 North Bond street.

PEARSON'S MEDICATED TAR DROPS are prepared and sold by GEO. PEARSON, No. 5 Liberty street, Baltimore. Sold also by the principal Druggists at 10 cents per package.
