FOREIGN MISCELLANY.

CURIOUS SCENE IN TORBAY.—On the 17th a large foreign bark, named the Orests, came into Torbay. It soon became known that her captain was a Brixham man, who, about nine years ago, was an apprentice to a Brixham merchant, but who, in consequence, it is alleged, of receiving ill-treatment on board a vessel in which he was sent to sea, ran away. His mother and sister reside at Brixham, and, with a fond hope of seeing them once again, the young man ventured on shore. But scarcely had he landed before it was known to his former master, who obtained a warrant for the detention, as he said, of his runaway apprentice. Armed with his warrant, and helped by a policeman, he sought an interview, and told the captain that he was his apprentice, and demanded payment of £50, or his instant surrender, as he had a warrant for his detention. The demands being refused, the merchant left the house, went a few yards off to the policeman, and with but a minute's delay both came to the house to take their man, but they found him gone. It turned out that a boat was cruising not far from the house, which drew near on being hailed. Into this boat the captain jumped, making for his bark with all speed. The escape was soon discovered, another boat manned, and a most exciting chase ensued. The affair had become noised about, and much sympathy was expressed for the captain who had been thus deprived of enjoying the society of relations after so long an absence. Every oar was directed towards the two boats dashing across the bay with all the impetuosity that they could be forced. On the first boat reaching the bark, the captain sprang on board, and by the time the pursuing boat had come alongside, the whole of the crew were to be seen marching on the deck, armed to the teeth. The discomfited pursuers were thereupon obliged to make for the shore, on reaching which they were received with a volley of laughter and hisses.—Western Morning News.

THE GREEK FESTIVAL OF EASTER IN CONSTANTINOPLE.—A Constantinople correspondent writes:—"This year it so happened that the Greek and Catholic Easter fell on the same day, which occurs only once in three years, and great and universal were the rejoicings. Amongst the most active of the community who took part in the day's ceremonies were the hamals, or porters—strong, muscular fellows, who in this country do all the work of Pickford's vans. From an early hour they might be seen, in groups in the street, dressed in their gaudy best, performing in a circle, a graceful and fantastic dance, which they went through, accompanied by music of a spirited though decidedly barbarous character. Later in the day, they all assembled at the Grand Champs, a large Armenian burial-ground, where, over the graves of their dead relatives, they continued their orgies most vigorously. The general scene was very much after the fashion of Greenwich fair—swings, acrobats, performing monkeys, Punch and Judy, &c., were at work, the "three stick a penny" alone being wanted to make the thing complete. A pleasant contrast could not but be observed betw en these lighthearted, simple pleasure seekers, who desired no stronger stimulants than coffee and lemonade, and many of the lower order of our own community at home, whose notion of a holiday consists in drinking hard all day and winding up with a fight in the evening."

A NICE PLACE.—A correspondent writing from Nice, May 9, says:—"Our season has been a gay one; an immense increase of visitors, and an introduction of Parisian habits and customs, which makes everything more expensive, if more luxurious, than when Nice was Italian. It is now getting very hot, but what a garden! Such gigantic roses—large as saucers. There are yellow roses too. The orange flowers are being gathered; so delicious the smell is, I go every day where the market is held, and where there are sacks of them at three sous the kilo. We have been eating peas, asparagus and new potatoes for weeks past. We have now the large fresh strawberry; cherries are coming in; also the nefle de japon, and the green figs. Do you know the former fruit? We have had gooseberry puddings and tarts, and almost every day I have my five sous ice. These are the cheap things of Nice."

CONFLICT WITH SMUGGLERS.—From the Russian frontier has come news of a severe conflict near the village of Neustadt, between Prussian smugglers and Russian frontier guards. The smugglers were seventy in number, well armed and mounted, every man with a bale of goods on his horse. As soon as night fell the caravan or squadron set out. Two of the boldest of the band, who could confide in the swiftness of their horses, acted as pioneers. Soon afterwards a good deal of firing was heard at various distances from the frontier. There are two cordons of Russian soldiers to get through, but a good many of the smugglers are said to have succeeded in doing this, and in delivering their goods to their employers. On both sides severe wounds were received.

A NEW GREEK FIRE.—The Gazette du Midi states that a very curious and interesting experiment has just been made at Fort St. Nicholas, Marseilles, with a new inflammable liquid, invented by a Paris chemist. The bottle containing the liquid was broken by a musket-shot, and it burned everything which had been placed near it. A second experiment was made the following day in presence of the General commanding the Artillery. Nothing could be more satisfactory than the result. Large heaps of timber were consumed, and the earth was calcined to the depth of a foot. This liquid, which resembles the Greek fire, is sufficiently powerful when enclosed in a cannon ball to set fire to an enemy's fleet.

LONGEVITY.—The returns which have been issued for 1860 show that in that year 22 men died in England and Wales who had reached or passed the age of 100, and 47 women. The oldest woman, 111 years of age, died in Glamorganshire. With the men there was a tie; a man age 1 107 died in Hampshire, and another of the same age in Pembrokeshire. Four of the centenarians died in London, two others at Camberwell, one also at Greenwich, and one at Lewisham. More men died in the year than women, but of the 595 persons who had reached the age of 95 or upwards before they died, nearly two-thirds were women.

"SKEDADDLE."

This word has been supposed to have originated in the fertile brain of some Yankee, who was at loss for an appropriate term to express his idea of the mania of the Confederates for retreating before the advance of our armies. The Louisville Journal, however, shows that the word is of Grecian birth, as will be seen by the following extract from an article in that paper:

"The primitive of skedaddle is a pure Greek word of great antiquity. It occurs in Homer, Hesiod, Ecsylus, Sophocles, Herodotus, Thucydides, and Xenophon, and it was used to express in Greek the very idea that we undertake, in using it, to express in English. Homer, in the 'Iliad,' uses only the aorist skedasa or skedasen. Thus in 'Iliad,' 19-171, we have skedasson laon for scattering, dispersing.

"In Prometheus, Ecbylus thus uses it (skeda) in making 'the sun disperse the hoarfrost of the morn.' And again Prometheus uses this word in predicting woes upon Jupiter, when he says that 'a flame more potent than the lightning' shall be 'invented, which shall (skeda) shiver the ocean-trident, the spear of Neptune.'

"In the Odyssey, we find Homer using skedasis in describing the scattering of the suitors of Penelope when Ulysses should come, and in the twentieth book of the Odyssey we have the same word used for 'the dispersing of the suitors to their houses,' as the result of the return of Ulysses.

"In Thucydides book iv. 56, we have an account of 'a garrison at Coptyria and Aphrodisia, which terrified by an attack a (ankedasmenon) scattered crowd.' At the capture of Torene, in Chalcidice, Thucydides describes the result of the rush of Brasidas and his troops toward the highest parts of the town, and among these results 'the rest of the multitude (sekedannunto) scattered or dispersed in all directions alike.' In this sense skedasis is used by Xenophon in the Anabasis, by Plato in the Timous, by Appollonius of Rhodes, by Hesiod, and by Sophocles. It is, therefore, a classic word, and is full of expression."

McCLELLAN IN A HAPPY MOOD.

An army correspondent of the Rochester Union, writing from the 27th regiment, under date of May 20, from a point five miles beyond the White House, relates the following:

Here we received a visit from McClellan, who spent a whole afternoon at the headquarters. He had just arrived from Yorktown, bringing the glorious news of the fall of Norfolk, and the destruction of the Merrimac, and he seemed overjoyed at the prospect of affairs. He gave this news from his saddle, telling the bystanders to spread it through the camps, and after his inspection of the respective regiments, repaired to Colonel Bartlett's tent.

When meeting Generals Franklin, Slocum, Newton, and others, he leaped from his horse, and, slapping Franklin on the shoulder, exclaimed, "Franklin, we have got the whole Rebel crew, Joe Johnston, G. W. Smith, and all!" A large crowd heard him utter these words, who had walked up to the tent when he alighted from his horse. After making this assertion he walked back and forth before the tent, answering questions to all that might ask him, and, at the same time, excitedly drawing on his gloves, first on one hand, taking it off again, and then on the other, until growing calm, when he sat down and entered into a chat with the Generals around him.

During the conversation he complimented Franklin for the part his division took at West Point, saying "that it had glory enough for one day." Never was a General more beloved by his men than is McClellan, and the army rejoices to see that his maligners are rebuked at his success, and forced to allow him to be the military genius of the war.

The Japanese ambassadors created a sensation at the International Exhibition, by going to the chief restaurant, and, contrary to rules, bringing out their pipes. The police requested them to stop smoking, but the No Kamis paid not the slightest attention to the request, and continued puffing into the faces of the police. The latter, not daring to forcibly eject foreign ambassadors, were obliged to overlook the transgression.

THE FREEDOM OF THE PRESS PARTIALLY RESTORED.—After an involuntary absence of about three months, during which time we were made familiar with the classic and once bad owe i grounds of Fort McHenry—we again resume, partially, our old vocation of "enlightening the world with lamp-black." Our Press, being deemed dangerous by the Government, has been kindly limited, and, for the future, instead of publishing "THE SOUTH, or any other paper, without consent of the Commanding General," we shall modestly labor in the humbler department of the "art preservative of all arts," by executing every description of BOOK AND JOB PRINTING, hoping thereby that medium to sustain ourselves and those dependent upon us and would earnestly appeal to our friends in favor us with their patronage. We have prepared our Job PRINTING DEPARTMENT to execute all kinds of printing neatly, expeditiously and cheaply, and solicit a call at our old buildings.

STILL ANOTHER TRIUMPH.
BALTIMORE, May 1st, 1862.
I have experienced so much benefit by using PEARSON'S, MEDICATED TAR DROPS, that I believe it not only a duty but a pleasure, to make it known to others. I was afflicted with a Sore Throat and Dry Cough, which debilitated me so that I could get no rest. My friends told me that I had the consumption. I am now happy to inform you that your MEDICATED TAR DROPS have cured me.
I find that your MEDICATED TAR DROPS are counterfeited, and I caution the afflicted to be on their guard. This is really a shame that so efficacious a remedy should be injured by unprincipled men. I am glad, however, to see that your signature is now on each package, and I advise those who purchase to bear that in mind.
Yours, truly,

NERVOUS DISEASES!
CONTROLLED AND CONQUERED.
DR. BRADSHAW'S INVIGORATING CORDIAL,
DR. BRADSHAW'S INVIGORATING CORDIAL,
DR. BRADSHAW'S INVIGORATING CORDIAL,
THE GREAT INVIGORANT,
THE GREAT NERVINE,
NERVOUSNESS AND WEAKNESS,
And all diseases arising from excesses and over exertion, whether physical or mental.
To persons of feeble muscular frame, or deficient in vital power, it is recommended as the only means of communicating that energy which is necessary to the enjoyment of all the natural appetites, as well as the higher mental attributes. Its beneficial effects are not confined to either sex or any age. The feeble girl, the ailing wife, the listless, enervated youth, the overworn man of business, the victim of nervous depression, the individual suffering from general debility, or from weakness, will find immediate and permanent relief from the use of this incomparable renovator.
A STIMULANT THAT ENTAILS NO REACTION.
Its force is never expended, as is the case with opium, alcoholic preparations, and all other excitants. The effect of these is brief, and it may well be said of him who takes them, "the last state of the man is worse than the first." But the Elixir is an exhilarant without a single drawback—safe in its operation, perpetual in its happy influence upon the nerves, the mind, and the entire organization. In cases of neuralgia, headache, loss of memory, hypochondriasis, dyspepsia, general prostration, irritability, nervousness, inability to sleep, liver complaint, and all diseases incident to females, hysteria, monomania, vague terrors, palpitation of the heart, barrenness, constipations, &c., &c., from whatever cause arising, it is, if there is any reliance to be placed on human testimony, absolutely infallible.
It is the only infallible remedy yet discovered for Nervous, Head and Mind Complaints; it is the mentaphysic, long sought for, and never before found, the only natural agent that can "administer to a mind diseased." In cases of Neuralgia, Headache, Vertigo, pain in the nerves of the face, and the various train of Nervous Affections, it will produce a cure in an astonishing short period of time; and it will also remove Depression, Excitement, a Tendency to Blush, Restlessness, Sleeplessness, Dislike of Society, Incapacity for Study or Business, Loss of Memory, Confusion, Giddiness, Blood to the Head, Melancholy, Mental Debility, Hysteria, Indecision, Wretchedness, Thoughts of Self-Destruction, Fear of Insanity, &c. It will increase and restore the appetite, strengthen the emaciated, renew the health of those who have destroyed it, induce continual cheerfulness and equanimity of spirits, and prolong life.
Price $3 per bottle, or two bottles for $5; six bottles for $12. For sale by SETH S. HANCE,
108 Baltimore street,
Baltimore, Md.
☞ N. B.—Persons out of the city enclosing a remittance will have the Cordial packed securely in a box and forwarded to their address immediately on its receipt. je9-eo6m

CAN CONSUMPTION BE CURED?
CAN CONSUMPTION BE CURED?
Public opinion for the most part, and a large proportion of the physicians of every civilized nation, would answer this question in the negative. But Dr. Schenck has proved the contrary of the proposition. Evidenced by the cures already effected by his system and medicines, and vouched for by certificates from many grateful patients.
That there is a stage in the disease beyond cure is undoubted; but the symptoms of this stage are too often mistaken, and all hope is lost when the mind of the patient has become convinced that his condition is incurable. One lung may be entirely gone, and the other diseased with tubercles, and yet a cure be not only possible, but, in many cases, probable, and in some even certain, if the advice and prescriptions of Dr. Schenck are implicitly followed.
In no case after an examination, will he give the promise, or even hold out the expectation of a cure, unless, in his heart, he is morally certain of success. But to accomplish it, he must be assisted by the patient.
Firstly.—The patient must have faith in the sincerity of his opinion, in his professional ability to form a correct opinion, in the judgment to be exercised by him in the treatment, and in the efficacy of his remedies.
Secondly.—The patient must rigidly obey his instructions in regard to diet and the regular taking of his medicines, both as to time and quantities.
If these conditions are performed, and if a cure be promised by Dr. Schenck, that cure will be effected. And even in cases beyond cure, while yet but a few days of life remain, he can palliate and soothe the most aggravated symptoms, giving comparative relief while life lasts, and soothing the downward pathway for the patient to the tomb. Next to cure this is the most wonderful feature of his treatment.
Those who have witnessed the last few days of the life of loved ones afflicted with this terrible disease, can appreciate how great would have been their consolation in the recollection that those weeks, instead of being weeks of agony and distress, had peacefully and tranquilly glided by. The loved one, conscious not of pain, but of the untiring solicitude of friends and relatives, able to appreciate their love, and sufficiently undisturbed to prepare, even in the hours of death, for an undying existence hereafter.
We make no assertions in regard to the cures effected by DR. SCHENCK which cannot be substantiated by incontrovertible evidence. It needs only that those who have occasion for such aid as he can give, or their friends, should examine into his merits to be convinced of his ability to cure. They can see now, in almost every city of the Union, those who have been his patients, who justly and gratefully are ready to bear witness by word to his professional skill, and many of whom have presented him with certificates, properly attested, of the particulars of their cures. There are, indeed, cases which he has failed to cure. But those were cases in which the disease had been suffered to progress until in the final and fatal stage, before application had been made to Dr. SCHENCK; and although in many of these instances there were apparently but a few days of life in the patient, he has almost invariably succeeded in prolonging life and palliating suffering for weeks, and sometimes even for months.
These, be it remembered, were hopeless cases, in which he had simply undertaken to palliate suffering, not to effect cures. And whatever resulting fatality, they may have been used and cited by rivals in the profession as a basis for prejudice against Dr. Schenck and his medicines, the friends and relatives of the deceased have been ever ready cheerfully to accord proper and grateful acknowledgment to his merits. But, as before stated, in no single instance where he has promised a cure has he failed to effect it.
To accomplish cures the ancient and track-worn system has been entirely repudiated and set aside, and a new, brilliant and original system adopted by Dr Schenck. He having, after a long course of study, by professional acuteness, judgment and the most extensive practical experience, devoted his ingenuity and the energies of a comprehensive mind to the discovery of such remedies as would act, in combination with each other, on the entire human system, through those channels by which the health and vital energies are sustained and restored. We allude to the nerves, the stomach, the liver, the blood, through regular and healthy action of the digestive organs, the heart, the brain, and lastly, the all important maintenance or restoration of the lungs to healthful condition. In a word, these organs are all dependent on each other, and on the uniformly healthy condition of each for the normal condition of the body and mind, and even the continuance of life itself depend. Just as in any complicated and intricate machinery the disarrangement of the smallest wheel, pinion or pivot will impair or stop the action of the whole machine.
In pursuance of this theory, and in demonstration of its success in practice, Dr. Schenk has discovered and is using:
FIRST.—His Famous Mandrake Pills—acting as a gentle or powerful aperient, in proportion to the doses prescribed; regulating the stomach and liver, correcting the secretions, superseding calomel, and, while effecting every object for which the various preparations of mercury have been prescribed, are without that risk to the constitution which always follows, in a greater or less degree, the use of such preparations. A simple Vegetable Pill, but an efficient and infallible remedy for headache, piles, languor, costiveness, even if chronic, and a restorative of vital energy. Thus, through his MANDRAKE PILLS, he is able to accomplish the first step towards the cure of Consumption in its earliest stage, or to correct any incipient tendency to the disease, by regulating the action of the bowels, altering the secretions through the action of the Pills on the liver and sustaining vital energy.
SECOND.—His UNEQUALLED SEA WEED TONIC—A stimulant and alterative, carefully distilled from Sea Weed and Kelp, mild and pleasant to the taste as wine. Not only harmless to the nervous system, but tending to strengthen it more than any other known medicine to restore and strengthen nervous action without any of that reaction, any prostration after its use has been abandoned, infallibly attendant on the discontinuance of every other stimulant. Possessing, from the alkali it contains, the peculiar property of acting with and restoring the gastric juices, enabling them (even if the stomach is in an ulcerated condition) to convert the food into healthy chyme, thereby promoting digestion; the proper performance of which function is so absolutely essential to a healthful condition of the blood; reinvigorating the animal functions, restoring flesh and muscle, and in connection with the action of the Mandrake Pills, speedily getting the system into such vigorous condition as enables it to overpower, expel, and discharge all morbid matter and unhealthy secretions, by which means the result is accomplished of ripening and forcing to suppuration irritations and sores in the lungs, which, as they discharge, will necessarily afford relief to the patient; while, at the same time, the renovated and strengthened condition of the system, the healthful action of the stomach and liver, together with the purification of the blood, infallibly prevent the formation of other abscesses or any new irritation—effectually eradicating or dispersing such tubercles or scrofulous sores as may have formed on the lungs. This effect of these medicines is similar in its peculiar action to that effect of nature to relieve the system when in the normal condition of youth, which we have witnessed in persons in exhaustive consumption, as they suppurated, with boils—humors forced from the blood to the surface, rapidly breaking, and proving that in health the natural recuperative powers are of themselves sufficient in their strength to purify, refine and cleanse the system. So with Dr. Schenck! When the system has become disordered, the blood impure, the functions torpid, he, by his remedies and treatment, extends and supplies that healing power which revives, renews and strengthens all the recuperative forces.
THIRD and last.—HIS PULMONIC SYRUP, which in connection with his MANDRAKE PILLS, and SEA WEED TONIC, will complete the cure of Consumption in any but its last and fatal stage. While, by the action of the Pills and Tonic, the liver, stomach, and system have so vigorous recuperated, until, as before stated, the system is prepared to force to suppuration either abscesses, tubercles or scrofulous sores in the lungs or other organs, the finishing and healing remedy to be relied on to complete the cure is the Pulmonic Syrup. By its agency abscesses and tubercles on the lungs are healed, and the patient restored to perfect health. It prevents the gathering of, or disperses the disgusting and unhealthy secretions in the bronchial tubes, and removes those accumulations of morbid matter which cause oppression of the heart and difficulty of breathing, and also those terrible sufferings, almost threatening strangulation, which are so peculiarly characteristic of the disease; at the same time that, by soothing the irritation of the lungs, it eradicates the cause of the painful consumptive cough, and relieves it.
When the Pills and Tonic have purified the blood the Syrup will nourish it. If, however, as is sometimes the case, the stomach and liver are in a tolerable healthy condition, and the lungs are not too deeply diseased, the Pulmonic Syrup will, by itself, effect a cure. But where Consumption originates, as is frequently the case, from sympathy with a torpid liver, or a diseased stomach, or where the constitution of the patient is weak, either from hereditary causes or abuse, then it requires the Mandrake Pills and Sea Weed Tonic, in connection with the Syrup to effect a cure. And then the Syrup seems to incorporate itself with the blood, and thus purify it.
In this connection, after having defined and explained the merits, application and effects of Dr Schenck's three great medicines, and demonstrated how, through their agency, Consumption can be cured, it is but proper to mention that, invariably, before prescribing for a patient threatened with or suffering under Consumption, he insists on making a careful and scientific examination of the condition of the lungs. To accomplish which, he has invented an instrument (his celebrated RESPIROMETER) by which he can, without pain or other inconvenience to the patient, make exact examination of their condition.
To the great superiority of this instrument over all others now used for medicinal auscultation, the medical faculty and other scientific men have testified.
In conclusion, we assert that most cases of illness of every kind, acute or chronic, can be cured, or at least palliated, by the use of one or the other of DR. SCHENCK'S MEDICINES, under his advice. And to those suffering with consumption, scrofulous affections, nervousness, languor, disordered liver or stomach, piles, headache, whether from the nerves or stomach, rheumatism, night-sweats, sleepiness, restlessness or giddiness, influenza or palpitation of the heart, DR. SCHENCK can cure each and every one of you.
To gentlemen who keep late hours, eat late suppers, but who during the day must, with clear heads, attend to business, we would advise them after an excess and before going to bed, to take a dose of MANDRAKE PILLS; and to those suffering with colds on the breast, sore throat, or hoarseness, we would simply say, and in all sincerity, lose no time in applying to DR. SCHENCK for advice; or, at all events, get his medicines, as a safeguard against serious results from that which, seeming at first but a trifle, is too often the surest symptom of an incipient stage of lung disease.
