AMERICAN AFFAIRS IN ENGLAND.

Correspondence of the New York Times.

LONDON, Tuesday, July 1, 1862.

The intensity of the feeling of anxiety respecting the progress of the war in America felt over England, and scarcely less in France, can hardly be less than that experienced in New York. It is the one great, absorbing subject of conversation. John Bull even departs from his customary unsocial habits, and talks with his neighbor in a railway carriage or omnibus, on this dreadful war.

And he likes it less and less. He grows more and more impatient. He thinks that something ought to be done. If the Confederates are beaten—he never says rebels—he looks glum and speaks savagely. If the prospects of Gen. McClellan seem discouraging he is in good spirits. If there is news of some Southern success, he is delighted. The desire for intervention certainly increases.

As to the prospect, it depends upon the events of the present campaign. England cannot act alone, and her hands are tied by all her possessions, while things remain as at present. France is engaged in Mexico, and if the settlement of the Government of that country is to be the preliminary of American intervention, there is no hurry. Still, it is certain that the Confederates in London are looking hopefully to Paris, and it is said that Mr. Slidell, within a few days, has been accorded a long and confidential interview with the Emperor at the Hotel Persigny. Perhaps it was about the tobacco.

The nervous desire that something may be done breaks out every few days in Parliament. Last night Lord Brougham rose in the House of Lords, and denounced the war bitterly, as he only can. He had been the friend of America—he had been called the partisan of Jefferson and the Attorney-General of Madison; but all the evils and horrors of slavery were not so bad as this war. He wanted it put a stop to—but how it was to be done his Lordship did not inform us. His speech was a scolding, which will increase the public feeling against the North, and lessen Abolition sympathy. In the House, Lord Palmerston, in answer to an inquiry said the Governments of England and France were most anxious to do something, but they could not see that the time had come for effectual interference. But the mere face of the subject being brought up so often, shows the state of feeling. Lords and Commons are waiting for the great battle at Richmond. England and France are waiting.

The cotton famine and distress grow visibly. The stock at Liverpool dwindles day by day. Supply there is none, and prospect very little. All the talk about India, Egypt, Jamaica, or the Fiji Islands, is futile. The Government will not protect cotton culture, because it is committed to free trade; and capitalists will not embark in an enterprise which the end of the American war, by the submission of the South or otherwise, will ruin. So there is no help or hope. The war must be ended, or Lancashire must starve and England be ruined. It is my conviction that Parliament cannot put off the consideration of the crisis a month longer.

From the St. Louis Republican.

THE IRREPRESSIBLE CONFLICT.

On Tuesday last there was a riot in Toledo, Ohio, between the Irish and negro stevedores employed at the docks in loading and unloading the lake boats. It seems that the Irish made a "strike" and were discharged, and the negroes engaged in their places, at the old prices. The Irish undertook to prevent the blacks from working, and for a time stones, clubs, knives and pistols flourished in a frightful manner, a great many of the participants receiving injuries and some bystanders being killed. Several houses belonging to negroes were demolished, and to quell the disturbance the citizens had to be called out to patrol the streets.

This is the beginning of an irrepressible conflict between the white and black race. Already large numbers of fugitive slaves are gathering in the cities, and, should the abolition policy prevail, the free States will be overrun and infested with this class of population. The negroes thus let loose upon the community must either be supported in idleness and sloth by those among whom they come, or they must put themselves in competition with the white laborers and reduce the price of work, if they do not wholly monopolize the more common of the industrial pursuits. This will at once put an effectual check upon white immigration, and compel the poorer classes, at least, of Americans, Germans and Irish to take their option between absolute starvation and toiling side by side with an inferior and despised race, at wages much lower than they have hitherto commanded.

We know nothing of the merits of the quarrel between the Toledo stevedores and their employers. It may be that the demands of the former were unreasonable and extortionate. The circumstances show, however, that the employers placed as high an estimate upon the labor of the blacks as that of the Irish, for the former were hired at the same rate that had been paid the latter. Capital rarely makes any distinction of color in respect to investments, and unless deterred by such demonstrations as those witnessed in the Ohio city, employers will, as a general thing, take advantage of all competition among laborers.

White men who derive sustenance for themselves and families by the exercise of their physical strength in hard days' work—that large and indispensable class, we mean, who have acquired no skill to give them advantages over others—will now have to look this question of negro competition squarely in the face. They see a pack of rabid politicians in the country, claiming to act upon the dictates of philanthropy and humanity, who are daily and hourly encouraging the slaves of the South to elope, well knowing that they must be harbored in the free States afterwards, in the absence of any other provision for them.

Large numbers of "contrabands," seduced by the flattering tales of these mischief-makers, are rapidly filling up the towns and cities already, all being in a destitute and nearly helpless condition. The support of these unfortunate, misguided creatures must fall chiefly upon the working classes of the North, in one way or another. The burden will come upon them in the shape of reduced wages, by reason of the increase of the supply of laborers, in enhanced prices for the necessities of life, growing out of the taxation that will be required to maintain such of the black paupers as will not work, or in some other manner that will make itself equally felt.

We are beginning to see some of the practical results and effects of the foolish, illogical and baneful "policy" of the Abolitionists and negro-worshippers. The irrepressible conflict between the white and black races has commenced. It is one that will continue to be between opposing and enduring forces so long as the radicals attempt to throw four million "contrabands" upon the North and West as free and equal men, to overrun towns and cities. The question is, whether the free laborers are quite ready to exchange their peaceful and comfortable homes in the North for the hemp fields and rice and cotton plantations of the South, driven thither by the black proteges of the benevolent (?) Abolitionists.

THE PRESIDENT AND THE BORDER STATES.

Special Washington Correspondence of the N. Y. Tribune.

The border State gentlemen had two meetings yesterday and one to-day, but were unable to agree upon a reply to the President. The majority have signed the report made by the committee of which Mr. Crisfield, of Maryland, was chairman. The minority seceded from the meeting, and have signed another reply drawn up by Mr. Noell, of Missouri. Mr. Crisfield's report, as we are informed, with many words and many backings about the people, in effect says "No" to the President. It says: "We will have nothing to do with your plan of gradual emancipation. We are willing to help to suppress the rebellion, but we cannot undertake even to suggest the liberation of a single slave." The paper combats the President's suggestion that the war would have been ended had the border States promptly accepted his proposition of co-operation in a gradual abolishment of slavery, and charges the prolongation of the war upon the abolitionists. This point is labored at considerable length. The paper then goes on to enumerate the contributions which the border States have given to the armies of the United States, the sacrifices they have made, the sufferings they have endured; and in effect it says that after all their exertions it is too much to ask them to abolish slavery either immediately or gradually.

The minority report meets the President in the same spirit in which he invites the loyal people of the border States to remove the one bound of alliance between them and the Confederates by abolishing slavery, were it not for the existence of which the Confederates could have no hope of help from these States. The paper is brief, but to the point, and expresses the heartiest willingness to join in a recommendation to the constituents of the signers to adopt means looking to emancipation. It argues that the General Government has not overstepped its powers, nor trampled upon the rights of the States in recommending a measure which it deems for the well-being of the whole country. The majority report is signed by all the members from Kentucky who are here, except Mr. Casey, by all the members from Missouri in town except Mr. Noell, by all from Maryland who are here, and by all the Senators except Messrs. Willey and Henderson. Mr. Noell's reply is signed by Senator Henderson of Missouri, Messrs. Casey of Kentucky, Fisher of Delaware, Blair and Brown of Virginia, and Clemens of Tennessee. Mr. Maynard of Tennessee, will probably sign it, and Mr. Willey may also do so, neither of them having signed the majority report. Several are absent who would if in town; append their signatures to Mr. Noell's paper, as Messrs. Whaley of Virginia, Leary of Maryland, and Blair of Missouri. Of the majority, several are believed to be at heart in favor of emancipation, but have been induced to sign a response to the President which shuts the door in his face. The President's address and these two replies will soon be published.

IN THE CIRCUIT COURT FOR BALTIMORE COUNTY, SITTING IN EQUITY.—CATHARINE DEAL vs. FREDERICK KRIEG. To the Honorable JOHN H. PRICE, Judge of said Circuit Court for Baltimore county. The report of Theodore Glocker, Trustee and Attorney in Fact for Catharine Deal, respectfully sheweth, that the said Catharine Deal executed to him on the 19th day of July, 1858, a Power of Attorney in accordance with the provisions of the act of the General Assembly of Maryland, passed at December session, 1826, chap. 192, entitled "An act relating to mortgages in the city and county of Baltimore," empowering him to sell the property described in a deed of mortgage from Frederick Kreimer, of Baltimore county, (now deceased) to the said Catharine Deal, dated the 6th day of March, A. D. 1843, and recorded among the Land Records of Baltimore city and county, in liber J. K. No. 525, folio 452, &c. That he filed with the Clerk of this Court, as required by said act of Assembly, the said Power of Attorney, the original mortgage and an approved bond executed by himself with surety, and conditioned as required by the provisions of said act. That he then gave due notice by sale of the mortgaged premises, in the "American" and "Sun," two of the daily newspapers published in the city of Baltimore, and also in the "Baltimore County Advocate" and "Baltimore County American," two newspapers published in Baltimore county and by private hand bills; also the time, place, manner and terms of sale; that in pursuance of said notice so given, he offered the said property for sale at public auction, on the premises, on Wednesday afternoon, the 12th of October, 1859 at 4 o'clock, and then and there sold the same to Mrs. Rebecca Cockey, wife of Edward Cockey, Esq., she being the highest bidder therefor and purchaser thereof, for the sum of four thousand one hundred dollars; and this Trustee further reports, that the said sale was in all respects fairly and bona fide made. All of which is respectfully submitted. [Signed] THEODORE GLOCKER, Attorney and Trustee. BALTIMORE COUNTY, SS.: On this 13th day of October, A. D. 1859, before me the subscriber, a Justice of the Peace of the State of Maryland, in and for said county, personally appeared Theodore Glocker, and made oath on the Holy Evangely of Almighty God, that the matters and things set forth in the foregoing report are just and true as therein set forth, and that the sale therein reported was fairly and bona fide made.
