BALTIMORE.

THURSDAY, JULY 24, 1862.

From the Boston Herald, July 21.

"DEVILISH SLY."

The Government seems to be getting decidedly into the Joey Bagstock way—"tough, sir, tough, and devilish sly." Loyal people never are allowed to know anything until it has produced its success or failure. The Confederates are well posted on all the movements of the army, and are always prepared to meet them. We know nothing of the weakening of Gen. Banks' army until Stonewall Jackson informed us. We had not the faintest idea what part of the Peninsula was to be spaded up until the Confederates appeared at Yorktown. Nothing was farther from our thoughts than a change of General McClellan's base until Stonewall Jackson returned from the Shenandoah and hurried up the movement. It is almost impossible for us now to learn whether our brothers and sons and neighbors remain alive in the Army of the Potomac, but we presume the Confederates know how many men there are in that army. We vaguely guess at some movement of the Federal forces in Virginia; but we feel sure that the Confederate commander has reliable information as to its nature, extent and imminence.

Secretary Seward has been travelling about the country with his finger on his lip. Gen. Halleck has left his command in the Southwest, we learn incidentally. If these "devilish sly" movements amounted to anything we should not find any fault. But they are only secret to us, and in matters which do not demand such wonderful secrecy. We respectfully suggest that this is the people's war, and that it would become the President to give them a return of confidence. They have shown Mr. Lincoln quite a mark of confidence by electing him to office. But they can unmake Presidents as well as make them. If the President wants to be supported by an intelligent people, let him treat them as they deserve. Let him remove the censorship of the press, which has produced no good result. Let him dare to tell the truth. We are not children, to be frightened by a reverse. If we know its extent we can prepare for it. If we are called upon to sacrifice everything for our country, we want to know whether our service will do any good. We are not disposed to volunteer to "go it blind." Let us have the facts. He who has done right cannot fear to disclose the truth. He who has done wrong should not be allowed to do wrong again. "Blood is thicker than water."

This is a case of life and death—more, of country or no country—and no man in a free government has a right to throw away his life. If the people can be assured that the Government is in earnest, that it will deal honestly and justly by all men, high and low, without seeking to cover up glaring blunders and to plaster over incompetency for party purposes, they will support it with all their hearts. But if they think there is an attempt to hoodwink them; if they believe that their support will be diverted and their voluntary offerings wasted, they will never respond to the President's call in their persons, nor give a dollar from their wealth.

CONDITION OF M'CLELLAN'S ARMY.

A gentleman who has just arrived from McClellan's army, and who is probably the only independent observer who has visited that corps for some weeks, has given us some interesting information from that quarter, which confirms all that we have said of the present deplorable condition of McClellan's force. All the newspaper correspondents have been banished, and those who would not go voluntarily were arrested and sent home on a steamer, and the only civilians now allowed to visit the James river, are those engaged in furnishing supplies to the army. Of these there are about twice as many as there are soldiers, and each one deems it his duty to praise the army and its leader, in return for the enormous profits which he gets out of the Government.

A long series of entrenchments on which the men are still hard at work, encloses a space on both sides of Harrison's Landing about twelve miles long on the river, and running into the country six or eight miles, on which are concentrated the shattered remains of McClellan's army. The deadly miasmas of the Chickahominy swamps and the fearful seven days' fight with the Confederates have made wide gaps in their ranks, and as many more are still enfeebled by disease, that regiments now are scarcely more than companies in the numbers. [illegible] remarked that if they had all the men in the world they could not reach Richmond under McClellan's lead. Instead any hope of reaching Richmond from that direction before spring, and even wi h 100,000 additional men, seemed not to be entertained. The 1st Massachusetts regiment occupies an important position, which is considered the key of the defences, and they are well supported by the 11th, under Lieut. Col. Tilleston, the 16th, 22d and other of our Bay State regiments.

REVIEW OF THE BRITISH CORN TRADE.

From the Mark Lane Express.

The past week has brought little it any improvement in the temperature. Our late expectations of an early harvest, seem likely, therefore, to be disappointed. Accounts are also much less favorable, more especially of the white wheat, which has suffered much from the weather; but the red being later, looks well where the land is good and highly farmed. The hay harvest was proceeding rapidly till Thursday, and much has been secured in fine order, but where cutting [illegible] quantity has yet to be gathered. The yield on the whole is fair. Barley differs much in appearance, and some peas are bad, but beans are better, and oats still promising. The wheat trade during the week has been steady, but many markets were very short of supplies. In Algeria and Italy the harvest is finished, the latter country on the whole showing a better result than in the previous year. In Spain much is gathered, and an average expected. In S uthern Russia, though the crops promised well in some provinces, in others they were very doubtful. In Hungary, the Banat, and the neighborhood of Venice, drought has lessened the crop. In France and the near countries there are few complaints beyond those of delay; and it is the same in Germany. Prices have not undergone any material change on the Continent, but, as might have been expected, at Dantzic the sudden and important advance has been followed by some reaction. Odessa, with good arrivals, was looking for a marked reduction, but the late news from London and Marseilles has somewhat improved the rates, and holders of rye, from a reported failure of the crop, have raised their pretensions or withdrawn their samples. However, the important crop of maize in Italy never looked better.

The London Herald says of the news from General McClellan's army:

"General McClellan still halts in his attack on Richmond. If our readers can make any thing out of his despatch, just reported by telegraph, it is more than we are able to do. The pickets on his left, he says, have been considerably advanced, under a sharp resistance from the enemy. We wish him joy of the ground thus gained, which he describes as 'swamp, with thick underbrush.' Beyond this there is an open country.' This, we suppose, is in the possession of the Confederates. They will fight with every advantage; but McClellan's army, if it ever emerges from the brushwood, will have to fight with the swamp in its rear. But those pickets of his, and the lines of Generals Heintzleman and Hooker are, he says, where he wishes them to be. De gustibus non est disputandum. The Confederates are darkly alluded to as having been driven from their camp; and 'the affair,' we are told, 'was over.' What camp, and what affair? We wait for more news, in which it will probably appear that a change of ground made by a part of the Confederate army, with the object of bettering its position and escaping the unhealthiness incidental to a swamp in Virginia in the height of summer, has been construed by this sanguine General into an advantage to his arms."

The London Star has a more favorable view. It says:

"To minds distempered by undeserved and prolonged misfortune, it is an excusable illusion that mistakes the immediate for the original cause of calamity. Of course, the Southern planters would be glad enough to sell their cotton instead of seeing it destroyed, if the choice was offered to them, as it would be by the pacification of the combatants. But interference, under whatever name, would assuredly be as ineffectual now as at any former time in the history of the war. We are, therefore, most concerned to know what are the prospects of a decisive issue. News of the capture of Richmond and of Charleston would be welcome to many of us—to the great majority of the people of all free countries—as a political event. It would be hailed with delight as a victory to the cause of popular sovereignty and of just government—as a crushing blow to the worst oligarchy that has ever sported with the rights and interests of mankind.—But in its commercial significance the event would be no less welcome to the party amongst us whose sympathies are with the South. It would give the best promise that can be afforded of the liberation of those imprisoned supplies which are in danger of being destroyed during their detention. It is only in the letters of Mr. Spence to the Times that we read of planters so devoted to the Confederacy and so inimical to humanity as to set fire to a thousand bales of cotton, valued at twenty-five pounds per bale."

* * * "It is, therefore, to McClellan's operations against Richmond we must look for the best propect of relief—and of these the latest tidings are but meagre, though gratifying. The Confederates have been driven in—the Federals have advanced nearer to the city—and as Heintzelman is said by his commander to be just where it was wished, we take it that he has successfully executed the movement to the left about which secrecy has been kept. As our intelligence from New York is to the 26th of June, it is hardly probable that Richmond was under the Federal flag by the Fourth of July. But it is none the less certain that on the great anniversary the people of the Free States would gird up their loins anew for the resenquest of the South to liberty and order."

Correspondence Evening Post.

FROM THE JAMES RIVER.

MINING AND ENTRENCHING TOOLS RECEIVED—REINFORCEMENTS COMING—THE SITUATION OF THE CAMPS AND THE PROSPECT.

HARRISON BAR, JAMES RIVER, VA., July 18, 1862.

One of the most noticeable facts connected with the occupation of the present camp of the army is the recent arrival of great quantities of mining and entrenching tools. Of course, none but our chief officers can tell precisely what use will be made of them—in other words, whether the new defences which it is proposed to construct are designed to protect us in our present position, or to assist in resuming the advance to Richmond; I venture the opinion, however, that the Richmond Whig, which thinks that McClellan means to "dig his way" to the Confederate capital, is substantially correct.—These tools are not needed in our camp at present. Unless the Confederates succeed in obstructing the James river below us, which it is not believed here can be accomplished, though strenuous efforts are making to render navigation dangerous, the picks and shovels and other instruments we have received need never be used here. Our camps are so situated that the gunboats can shell the Confederates far over our heads, and while they are too far away to do us particular harm, whatever their numbers; besides, our vast artillery, protected by strong earthworks, would play havoc among them, and perhaps keep them at bay without the aid of our infantry force, now quite equal to what it was before the battles.

Thus the probability grows stronger that we shall march to Richmond on the line of the river on which we are now quietly encamped. The obstructions in the river, which we know are very strong, and comprise certainly more than one tier, may be blown up with the improved apparatus for this work now within the control of the Government.

So these tools, which many suspected indicated our danger—that is, that we were not strong enough to maintain our position, or that in the estimation of the Commanding General the Confederates might still attack us—may presage our final success.

REINFORCEMENTS COMING.

Reinforcements still come. A brigade recently arrived in several transports, and we have some reason to believe it came from Port Royal and is a part of General Sherman's command. I cannot verify the fact, but if what I hear is correct, we may expect other transports from the same locality. We hear also that some regiments of the Western army are on the way to Virginia for either Gen. Pope or Gen. McClellan—probably the former.

THE SITUATION.

Meanwhile, our army is pleasantly encamped on ridges of cultivated ground. The situation of the site makes it dry and healthy, while also enabling us to enjoy any breeze which is sent to temper the fervid heat. Neighboring forests refresh with their shade our soldiers, now in a great measure recovered from their exhaustion, while numerous springs of clear, cool water meet some of the greatest of camp wants. At the foot, by a declivity, runs a stream of considerable size, not by any means of limpid clearness, but still a natural bath for thousands, invaluable to the health of our army. The James river is also extensively used for bathing.

The soldiers, who, on their arrival here, were promised rest, and, at least, expected relaxation after the extraordinary dangers they had passed through, have nearly the whole time since had their energies taxed with labor in the trenches, as well as the performance of much picket duty. Trench labor in our immediate camp is now completed and the prospect is brighter. I have heard the soldiers say repeatedly—and it is an evidence of their temper—that they would rather risk their chances in a forward movement than thus to dig by inches.

P. S.—All is quiet in camp yet. I hear, however, as I close, from one of our chiefs, that there must be a movement within five days. It may be the signal of the safe advance I have alluded to as possible along the banks of the river towards the Confederate capital.

SEVENTY MILES SAVED IN GOING TO CAPE MAY.

We would say to persons visiting Cape May, that by laying over in Wilmington, instead of going on to the city of "Brotherly Love," they can save seventy miles of travel, and have their baggage taken care of by a responsible person, thereby securing a night's rest. After partaking of an excellent breakfast at the Indian Queen Hotel, Fifth and Market streets, they can take the cars at 9.30 A. M. for Newcastle, and arrive there at 12 M. for the boat.

LOUISVILLE, KY., June 17, 1862.

GEO. PEARSON, Esq.

Dear Sir—I feel it a duty to express to you my sincere acknowledgments of the benefit derived from the use of a package of your MEDICATED TAR DROPS.

I was suffering with a SEVERE COUGH and SORE THROAT, when a friend presented me with a package of your celebrated TAR DROPS, and when I used them, I was free to confess it was more to gratify my appetite for sweetmeats than the idea of deriving any good from them; but really, the rapid alleying of the irritation and subsequent entire cure of the cough, induces me to thank you, and I take great pleasure in recommending to the public so effective a compound. Respectfully yours, J. K. SHUTE, M. D., Assistant Surgeon Artillery Brigade U. S. A.

WORKS COR. LANCASTER AND WOLF STS.

We are prepared to furnish to the farmers of Maryland and adjoining States, our well known and established

PHOSPHO PERUVIAN (or Manipulated) GUANO,

WARRANTED UNE-HALF PERUVIAN GUANO.

Seven years' use of this Guano has rendered it a staple fertilizer. Its quality has been maintained with rigid exactness through such a series of years, and it may be relied upon in the future, as in the past, for uniformity of effect. It contains MORE AMMONIA and PHOSPHATE OF LIME THAN ANY FERTILIZER MADE IN THIS COUNTRY, and is therefore of greater real value. Experience proves its great utility in improving the soil, whilst its immediate effects are fully equal to the best Peruvian Guano. It is the most economical and permanent fertilizer in use.

We also offer to consumers

REESE & CO'S SUPER PHOSPHATE OF LIME.

This article is tried and reliable. It is manufactured exclusively for our sales, under guarantee and forfeiture of $1,000, to be of given standard. We offer it to consumers for exactly what its name imports, a REAL SUPER OR SOLUBLE PHOSPHATE, prudently adapted for the liberal use of acid, in compliance with all the conditions required to insure complete solubility. We therefore recommend this article with confidence.

SOMBRERO GUANO,

Containing 75 to 80 per cent. Bone Phosphate of Lime.

This remarkable article is imported from the richest source of this rich material, and its value to agriculture cannot be over-estimated. Its soil is a perfectly fine powder, and is admirably adapted for combining with PERUVIAN GUANO. Jy23-1m
