FRIDAY, JULY 25, 1862.

From the London Telegraph, June 28.

THE RETURN OF LORD LYONS.

Although, as we have already stated, Lord Lyons has private reasons for wishing to return to this country, there can be no doubt that he brings with him information of the greatest importance to our relations with the American States amid their continually increasing complications. The intelligence which has accompanied that distinguished passenger is alone sufficient to show that he must have much to tell. There is a sudden burst of Confederate successes, not in one quarter alone, but in all directions. Let us remember that the Federal authorities have described the South as daily declining in strength, driven back at all salient points, and betraying the evidences of a losing cause. It was easy to detect some suppressio veri in these reports, and the advices fully corroborate our surmise; but if the optimist stories from Washington have been true, it follows that the reverses which they have now sustained are the more serious. When we last heard from the southernmost regions, we were assured an engagement was imminent at Charleston, and that it was certain to result in favor of the Federal arms.

We now learn that the combatants have met, but "wi hout decisive result." The triumphant power, therefore, has not proved overwhelming in this quarter. Severe fighting has taken place at Baton Rouge, a place of some importance above New Orleans, on the Mississippi; and the Confederates have also strengthened their position at Grenada, on the same river; so that the path of the military tourist in that part of the world is by no means so uninterrupted as was reported. Not long since, to the north of the field of war, General Fremont was on the high road to victory. He had, indeed, fallen into some kind of trap, but had recovered his ground, and the alarm which had been felt in New York on his account was scouted as a foolish jest. We now learn that he is still in the valley of the Shenandoah, short of supplies and in a precarious position, the reinforcements which Banneregard sent to Jackson having forced Fremont to fall back. Nor has the "Young Napoleon" escaped.—The Confederates have made a bold dash with a large force of cavalry and artillery, have turned McClellan's right flank, cut the telegraph wires, injured the railway from West Point, destroyed forage and tents, taken many prisoners, and retreated safely, the main body of the Federals being still harassed by guerilla bands that hover around its rear.

There are startling adventures. It is but a few months since President Lincoln's ministers were assuring the Republic that they needed no reinforcements; a little later they called for additional men; and now we see that their strength in the field is insufficient even to maintain their position. Or if we suppose for a moment that their strength is sufficient, what must we think of their commanders? It is useless to cast all the blame upon General McClellan; yet his defenders will have no easy task; for although it would be absurd to single him out for special censure, the latest facts are hard of explanation. We had the most positive assertions that he was slowly but steadily making good his advance upon Richmond. The attack on General Casey upon his right flank was treated as something rather unexpected—a march shamefully stolen upon him under cover of a thunderstorm; and, after that experience, we should have imagined General McClellan only the more resolved to keep a sharp watch upon an enemy who makes these vigorous sallies; yet we now find that once more, within a fortnight, he has suffered his flank to be turned by that contemptible and despoiling enemy! All this does not look as if Davis and his officers were so desperate, either physically or morally. Indeed, it is probable that in many of these aggressive movements the Confederates have been acting on a plan which had already been ascribed to Beauregard—that of suffering the enemy to advance, and then striking him with blows sudden and severe.

In the present instance, the attacks are manifestly carried out in concert. While McClellan is made to feel that he is not safe within his own lines, Jackson moves about with such activity and vigor that he prevents McDowell and Fremont from reinforcing the chief commander. Again we are reminded of the awful ally upon whose cooperation Beauregard and his colleagues have been reckoning throughout; for these latest events had happened in the middle of June. This may go far to explain the apparent feeblenes, and even vacillation, of McClellan, Fremont, McDowell, Banks, and the others. As we explained yesterday, it is not improbable that the great majority of their men are sickly; that if not actually in hospital, they are listless and languid, insomuch that it might be physically as well as morally dangerous to move them too rapidly or too violently. There is not a shadow of doubt to be cast upon their bravery; as the Duke of Wellington said, "all men are brave," and the Americans are only too little supplied with the counteracting instincts of caution; but the English reader can little appreciate the tremendous effect of every exertion under a sun which scorches like a furnace. It was the fear of this very season, with these inevitable and anticipated effects of it, that stimulated the Federal commanders to spur forward their movements with the utmost possible haste, and we see how imperfect their success has been. It would be wrong, therefore, to pass sentence upon them for mere military incapacity; yet it is impossible not to suppose that their operations have been weakened and delayed by deficient energy in some quarters, or want of concentrated purpose in others, and want of concert in all. The Confederates having displayed, even amid the desperate circumstances imputed to them by their opponents, some fertility of invention, and a decided mastery in the power of combination.

It is not on account of such events that the Federal Executive or Congress pause. It is understood that, in spite of New York objections, the bill for the hundred and fifty millions of demand notes will pass. While General Butler's infamous order remains unrepudiated, and its author unremoved from autocratic rule over the municipal administration at New Orleans, Congress has finally cast away the scabbard by passing the Senate Bill to prohibit slavery "in all the territories of the United States." Thus, some twenty months after the beginning of the quarrel, the Union Parliament is performing the long-deferred act of solemnly enacting the law in anticipation of which the Southern States seceded. The measure will delight philanthropists, whether it be or not in violation of the Constitution adopted by George Washington and Thomas Jefferson, and of the laws of the Federation, since it assumes to dictate for ever the domestic legislation of the States which the Unionists so desire to win back. In the midst of these formidably increasing domestic complications, we learn that the Admiralty Court at Key West has terminated its very peculiar proceedings by declaring the British ship Circassian lawful prize. We cannot forget either the preparations for ulterior hostilities officially mentioned by Mr. Welles, and indicated in certain significant preparations, or the restless, but heretofore fruitless, impatience of M. Mercier, to promote a termination of the present war by the tender of good offices. Under these circumstances, it is simply impossible to suppose that even the most urgent private affairs could engross the attention of Lord Lyons on his return home at so extraordinary a juncture.

ENLISTMENTS IN MASSACHUSETTS.

From the Boston Courier, July 23.

The Springfield Republican is responsible for the subjoined revelations. We must take the facts stated for true, coming from a Republican authority, with means of familiar intercourse at the State House. Is it possible that, at the first dark hour, the courage of those so instrumental in bringing on the war oozes out at the fingers' ends? Or, do the officials in question still cling to the sentiments of the Governor's reply to the inquiry of the Secretary of War? Or, are we to infer that having thought only of inviting us to a marriage feast, they are really appalled at there "funeral baked meats?" We begin to think there is a good deal in the latter suggestion; that they really had no sort of idea of the consequences to ensue from their insufficient judgment of men and things; that they conceived the rebellion could be suppressed by the presence of a board of selectmen, duly armed with the revised statutes, or, at most, as we believe the Governor said in the beginning, we could march through the South with 30,000 men. We are almost disposed to give them credit for this want of power to look farther into the future than they did. And yet under this delusion, we have been compelled to exchange a condition of the country like Paradise itself, compared with that of most other lands, for what we now see! But let us hear the Springfield Republican:

"There is something wrong at the State House in Boston. The atmosphere there is terribly blue. Is the venerable caddish suffering from short rations, or what is it? The official proclamations and general orders are all right, but everybody that talks with the Governor, the Adjutant General, or any of the officials, goes away despairing of the Republic. The common talk there is that Gen. McClellan's army has dwindled from 160,000 down to 50,000 (120,000 and 80,000 are nearer the actual figures); that he is likely to be driven out of Virginia; that the people will not enlist; that Massachusetts is not likely to make up her quota, and there must be a draft—and more of the same sort. If our State officials wish to discourage enlistments and so make a draft necessary, this is just the course to bring it about. Let the people at the State House summon up their reserved pluck. A Tairs are not half as bad as they seem to think. The people are in good heart, and enlistments are going on well. Don't throw cold water on our patriotism. Good courage and brave words are half the battle, and those whose duty it is to summon the people to the service of the country should go about it in a manly way, and not dishearten everybody with weak and dismal forebodings."

SHOCKING AFFAIR.—A young man named Alfred Locker got into a difficulty with Thomas Thompson on Sunday last at Long Old Fields, in this county, and deliberately cut his throat with a knife. Thompson fell dead on the instant, and Locker has been committed to jail. We forbear to comment on this dreadful affair, but leave the unfortunate young man in the hands of the law.—Marlboro' (Md.) Gazette, July 23.

CIGAR AND TOBACCO STORE,

Established in 1840.

We take pleasure in calling the attention of Smokers and Chewers to the well selected stock of CIGARS and TOBACCO of Mr. J. C. SMITH, 153½ Baltimore street, opposite the Museum. This gentleman has, by his thorough knowledge of his business, and personal attention thereto, obtained a well deserved reputation for the finest goods in his line, and we confidently recommend all who desire a really fine "imported" HAVANA CIGAR and superior CHEWING TOBACCO, SNUFF &c., &c., to give him a call. The fact of his having been twenty two years in his present place of business, we regard as the strongest evidence to what we have said in reference to his reliability in furnishing the best in his line of business. jy23 1m

SEVENTY MILES SAVED IN GOING TO CAPE MAY. We would say to persons visiting Cape May, that by laying over in Wilmington, instead of going on to the city of "Brotherly Love," they can save seventy miles of travel, and have their baggage taken care of by a responsible person, thereby securing a night's rest. After partaking of an excellent breakfast at the Indian Queen Hotel Fifth and Market streets, they can take the cars at 9.30 A. M. for Newcastle, and arrive there at 12 M. for the boat.

INDIAN QUEEN HOTEL.—Travellers speak highly of the Indian Queen Hotel, Wilmington, Del. There is no better conducted public house, it is said, this side the Atlantic seaboard. Everything that a guest may wish may be had at small cost, together with the kindest possible treatment. The house is well ventilated, the beds soft and downy, and the latest modern household conveniences to be met with in every direction. The table groans with luxuries, and the bar is filled with the purest and best of liquors. If any of our readers should stop in Wilmington over night, they would be much pleased, we know, by stopping with Mr. CHAS. M. ALMOND, of the Indian Queen.

GEO. PEARSON, Esq.

Dear Sir—I feel it a duty to express to you my sincere acknowledgments of the benefit derived from the use of a package of your MEDICATED TAR DROPS.

I was suffering with a SEVERE COUGH and SORE THROAT, when a friend presented me with a package of your celebrated TAR DROPS, and when I used them, I was free to confess it was more to gratify my appetite for sweetmeats than the idea of deriving any good from them; but really, the rapid allaying of the irritation and subsequent entire cure of the cough, induces me to thank you, and I take great pleasure in recommending to the public so effective a compound. Respectfully yours, J. E. SMITH, M. D., Assistant Surgeon Artillery Brigade U. S. A.

We are prepared to furnish to the farmers of Maryland and adjoining States, our well KNOWN and ESTABLISHED PHOSPHO PERUVIAN (or Manipulated) GUANO, WARRANTED ONE-HALF PERUVIAN GUANO.

Seven years' use of this Guano has rendered it a staple fertilizer. Its quality has been maintained with rigid exactness for such a series of years, and it may be relied upon in the future, as in the past, for uniformity of effect. It contains MORE AMMONIA and PHOSPHATE OF LIME THAN ANY FERTILIZER SOLD IN THIS COUNTRY, and it therefore an greater relative value. Farmers who have used it for years, know its lasting effects. Experience proves its immediate effects are fully equal to the best Peruvian Guano. It is the most convenient, economical and permanent fertilizer in use.

We also offer to consumers REESE & CO.'S SUPER PHOSPHATE OF LIME. This article is tried and reliable. It is manufactured exclusively for our sales, under guarantee and forfeiture of $1,000, to be of given standard. We offer it to consumers for exactly what its name imports, a REAL SUPER of SOLUBLE PHOSPHATE, rendered so by the liberal use of acid, in compliance with all the conditions required to insure complete solubility. We therefore recommend this article with confidence. Je23-tf
