BALTIMORE.

TUESDAY, AUGUST 5, 1862.

From the London Telegraph, July 17.

THE TRIPLE CRISIS.

A triple crisis appears to be impending in the cotton districts; the stocks of raw material are rapidly approaching a total exhaustion; Parliament is about to break up for the recess; and the contest in America may be nearer to its termination than many of us have supposed. Any one of these critical events would be enough to aggravate the existing anxiety; but, all coming together, it is inevitable that the minds of practical men must be somewhat distracted as to the right course to be taken. Under these circumstances, we observe with satisfaction that the Government and the local authorities, the employing and the employed, have their attention actively directed, not only to the measures which are necessary at the moment, but to those which may become so. We have no doubt, therefore, that the best will be done, and the worst will be averted. That her Majesty's Ministers have kept an intent watch upon the progress of events is manifest, not only from the activity of Mr. Farnall in Lancashire and North Cheshire, but also from the difference between the language employed by Mr. Villiers at various dates.

In the last half of May, the President of the Poor Law Board instructed their Special Commissioner to inquire into the operation of the law, the diminished demand for labor, and the condition and habits of the workpeople; to seize every opportunity of conferring with all persons who could render information, and to explain to them the true spirit and breadth of the statute, at the same time seeking to promote harmony in the action of the local authorities and the volunteer committees, or other agents of charity. "You will," said Mr. Villiers, "ascertain whether labor is required from able-bodied men in return for relief or aid; you will inquire into the nature of the labor, you will suggest such employment as shall be best adapted both to deter and suppress imposture, and also to foster the increased self-respect and self-reliance of those poor men who, from want of work, are reduced to inevitable poverty."

Two months later, Mr. Villiers, in common with every man who possessed real information on the subject, bore testimony to the wonderful patience and fortitude with which the people have endured their "inevitable poverty;" the Prime Minister has added his own illustrious name to that of witnesses in the same behalf; and to the very latest date we find Mr. Farnall alluding in plain language to the "touching scenes" which took place among the people, and to the "orderly and moral conduct of the unemployed." In the earlier half of May, Mr. Villiers spoke of the poor laws as being "fully adequate to meet probable emergencies;" in the middle of July he is talking of "legislation" as a probable necessity.

A few days back, Colonel Wilson Patten made the excellent suggestion that one central body should be authorized to receive public subscriptions and distribute the fund, and the Central Relief Committee at Manchester has passed a resolution declaring itself, "as now constituted, the best calculated to carry out the intentions of the subscribers." Against that declaration we have not a word to say, except to express a hope that the committee actually poor sees the confidence of its constituents, and is competent to represent the opinion of the district, as well as simply to parcel out any moneys forwarded to it, since it is important that during the recess the distressed districts should not be left without some representative body empowered to deal with gravely altered circumstances.

Very recently the classes most interested, the employers and employed, have been debating amongst themselves the question as to the best course for an extended appeal to the country, and the general balance of opinion seems to be that any such appeal should, in the first instance, be made to volunteer charity, and not to Parliament.—Now, during the last two months, opinions upon the subject have altered with the daily changing aspect of events; and it would be absurd to assume that there may not be still greater alterations in the course of the next two or three months. Some circumstances have contributed materially to veil the real nature and degree of the pressure; and we cannot but fear that the extent and urgency of the want will shortly come upon the nation with all the effect of a startling discovery. The strenuous and gigantic endeavors of some among the millowners to keep the operatives employed, the widespread and excessive reluctance of the destitute to seek any assistance from the Poor Law, have hitherto held back the main body of the destitute army, and have kept it really fallen off, and rendered the ordinary statistics delusive. The exhaustion of stocks, however, of funds available for employment, and even of savings, will speedily expose the whole unmitigated force of the necessity.

Those who administer the Poor Law are well aware that it is not precisely adequate or suited to the burdens which may so soon be cast upon it; but the prospect is too uncertain for anybody to dogmatize upon what "the best to be done."—Should private charity suffice to maintain the majority of the unemployed, still one difficulty which we have pointed out before is daily becoming more serious. We allude to the effect of increased rates in accomplishing the ruin of the smaller ratepayers, and transferring them from the corns of helpers to that of victims. A condition of things, therefore, appears to be steadily coming on which neither poor law nor private charity will suffice to meet; and it is of great importance that the statesmanship of Lancashire and North Cheshire should be duly prepared and organized to deal with the form in which it may be forced upon them. We hope that the men of the two counties will be ready we are quite satisfied, from the simple fact that they have been forewarned, and that they are now effectually aroused to the vast and momentous character of their duties.

The tendency of the last advices from America at once enhances the alarm and awakens hope.—If, as so many among well informed men have imagined, the Federals had taken Richmond, we might have been sure that the second stage in the contest—the subjugation of the South under the threatened form of "territorial Government"—would have been a very slow process; but the fuller accounts received by the Jura show that their defeat has been more positive and complete than the telegraphic summaries had indicated. McClellan has been effectually beaten away from Richmond; should he again attack the city it must be with a new army, by new approaches, in what we may call a new campaign; but, even thus furnished, he will make the attempt in the presence of a damaged prestige, of a divided political opinion at home, and of a disastrous finance. The Northerners are called upon simultaneously to bear his reverses, to furnish him the second army at the shortest notice, to undergo the novel and infuriating exactions of the recently passed taxing system, and to begin this second stage of the war at a season more fatal than that which has broken up one grand army. We have expected that the Federals would be the first to talk publicly of peace, and they have done so; but it is a terrible question, how much more suffering they must endure and inflict, before they shall talk of it gravely. It is credibly reported that a considerable part of the cotton in the South is still undestroyed.

If the war were over, the blockade raised, or any other mode of direct intercourse with the South established, we might get at the precious fibre; and in that event Lancashire would scarcely need the extraordinary aids which now seem inevitable. All classes in that stricken county have, in the most noble spirit, signified their determination not to interfere with the national policy of non-intervention. Some of the working people, as at Bollington, have avowed the opinion that innocent people have already suffered enough through the collateral effects of the barbarous war; but our own inquiries enable us to affirm that the working classes of the cotton districts are quite willing to let their own interests stand aside in favor of the interests of the nation. Surely this readiness, thus spontaneously yet modestly and noblesleasly expressed, without reserve or condition, casts no relative obligations on the country and its common humanity. We repeat, the calamity of Lancashire is not a local affair; it is a national infliction—its patient endurance has been an "epic" of national patriotism—its right treatment is a question of responsibility, intermingled with the highest questions of national policy.

ANOTHER CONFEDERATE RAM.

The Hilton Head correspondent of the New York Herald, under date of July 31, says:

The growing boldness of the Confederates in the Savannah, their audacious movements on Tybee Island and their recent adventures opposite Dawfuskie are explained. We now have positive information that the Confederate ram which has for a long time been in process of construction at Savannah is completed, armed, manned and ready for service. All accounts which come to us represent her to be of a very formidable character. She is of light draught, great power, and has a very heavy armament. Already the Confederates are making the necessary soundings preparatory to bringing her down the river. Two steamers, carrying the Confederate flag, and engaged in the performance of this service, came within range of Fort Pulaski's guns on Tuesday, but were compelled to retire.

Of course the new iron-clad is the absorbing topic. She is expected to venture forth at an early day. Already timorous people are devising means of fleeing from the ram to come, while on the other hand Admiral Dupont is making every preparation to receive the monster. The Paul Jones is ordered to return from Dobey Sound, and if the Merrimac No. 3 appears, will undoubtedly have plenty of work to do.

GOLD IN COLORADO.—Governor John Evans, of Colorado, has issued his first message—an interesting document—in which he congratulates that territory on the rapidly accumulating evidences of the natural resources of Colorado. He says: It is estimated by those best informed on the subject that the gold product of the present will be at least double that of any former year, and that the gold mining country in our territory has, as yet, been but half explored.

We take pleasure in calling the attention of Smokers and Chewers to the well selected stock of CIGARS and TOBACCO of Mr. J. C. SMITH, 153½ Baltimore street, opposite the Museum. This gentleman has, by his thorough knowledge of his business, and personal attention thereto, obtained a well deserved reputation for the finest goods in his line, and we confidently recommend all who desire a really fine "imported" HAVANA CIGAR and superior CHEWING TOBACCO, SNUFF &c., &c., to give him a call. THE FREEDOM OF THE PRESS PARTIALLY RESTORED.—After an involuntary absence of about three months, during which time we were made familiar with the classic and once hallowed grounds of Fort McHenry—we again resume, partially, our old vocation of "enlightening the world with lamp-black." OUR PRESS, being deemed dangerous by the Government, has been kindly limited, and, for the future, instead of publishing "THE SOUTH, or any other paper, without consent of the Commanding General," we shall modestly labor in the humbler department of the "art preservative of all arts," by executing every description of BOOK AND JOB PRINTING, hoping through that medium to sue air ourselves and those dependent upon us and would respectfully appeal to our friends to favor us with their patronage. We have prepared our JOB PRINTING DEPARTMENT to execute all kinds of printing neatly, expeditiously and cheaply, and solicit a call at our old buildings.

GEO. PEARSON, Esq. LOUISVILLE, Ky., June 17, 1861.

Dear Sir—I feel it a duty to express to you my sincere acknowledgments of the benefit derived from the use of a package of your MEDICATED TAR DROPS. I was suffering with a SEVERE COUGH and SORE THROAT, when a friend presented me with a package of your celebrated TAR DROPS, and when I used them, I was free to confess it was more to gratify my appetite for sweetmeats than the idea of deriving any good from them; but really, the rapid allaying of the irritation and subsequent entire cure of the cough, induces me to thank you, and I take great pleasure in recommending to the public so effective a compound. Respectfully yours, J. E. SMITH, M. D., Assistant Surgeon Artillery Brigade U. S. A.
