FRIDAY, AUGUST 8, 1862.

From the Wheeling Intelligencer, August 4.

WHAT A VISITOR THINKS OF WALLING.

WHEELING, VA., August 1.

Editors Intelligencer:

I have spent two weeks in this city, seeing what I could see and hearing what I could hear. I have attended two meetings and heard several speeches. I now propose to give you the result of my observations with a few suggestions upon recruiting. I think this war is drawing to a close. Here are the evidences: The meeting addressed by Senator Carlile was composed mainly of sympathizers with, and open advocates of rebellion. This was evident from the manner in which the disloyal sentiments of the speaker were received by the audience. The Senator defended his course in opposing the admission of the new State by a defence of slavery in the abstract. He went over the old, hackneyed arguments of Chancey, Toombs, Hammond, Chestnut and Davis, which consists in trying to prove that the condition of the slaves of the South is better than that of the poor white man.

He denounced in unmeasured terms the dominant party in Congress, which has overruled the President in all his acts and voted the supplies by which the war for the restoration of the Union has been and will be carried on. All these sentiments were vigorously cheered by the audience. His whole speech was unworthy of the true statesman—but was just such a speech as we hear during a heated political campaign at lager beer cellars, doggeries and street corners. This was the first opportunity I had to see or hear the Virginia Senator. I went to the Hall expecting to hear a fine oration and see a statesman for the times in which we live. In both of these expectations I was grievously disappointed. He said nothing denunciatory of the Confederates or their cause, while upon the supporters of the administration he poured out his bitterest invective.

Had the speaker set out avowedly to make a speech to prepare the minds of the people for the recognition of the Southern Confederacy he could not have succeeded better. It was filled with insidious treason. Yet it was cheered by a large audience, and after he was through several noted Rebel sympathizers appeared upon the stand to congratulate him.

As I left the meeting I could but exclaim, O, my country! my country! how art thou forsaken by those whom thou hast nourished and fed!

At the other meeting some pretty good Union sentiments were expressed by the speakers; but I could not help noticing the lack of enthusiasm.—The meeting was much smaller than I expected to see, and wanted the spirit which promises a speedy enrolment of volunteers.

On the streets I hear just such sentiments uttered as I would expect to hear in Richmond. Such as "D—n the Abolitionists," "The d—d Black Republicans," "The infernal nigger-stealers." But no curses for the rebels. They are spoken of as high-minded and honorable.

Only yesterday a distinguished rebel of this city remarked to me, that already Ohio and Indiana and Southern Illinois were being revolutionized politically, and that soon they would be in the Southern Confederacy. That the only hope for the country was the election of a Democratic President, who would restore the Constitution as it is and the Union as it was. That the country would then see who had brought on this war, and learn a lesson which would hereafter be a perpetual triumph of the Democratic party.

The Union would go to the devil if its salvation depended on the subdued rebels of your city. I see officers of the Government, who are charged with the duty of killing rebels, hob-nobbing, teaing and drinking with as vile traitors as the rebellion affords. The rebels are active; they are in earnest. They must be dealt with vigorously. At least five hundred of your house rebels should be sent to some Northern prison, if the Government is too tender on the hanging question.

To raise the new quota in this city, drafting is inevitable. Rich men are calling upon the poor, who, at best, lily support their families, to enlist for the war.

Why don't these men who are constantly crying, "go, go, go," go themselves? Instead of crying "go," why don't they say "come?" Why don't they stop their manufacturing establishments, close their stores and offices and set the patriotic example?

Quite a number of boys have been commissioned to raise companies or parts of companies. Several of these are keen at heart, while but very few of them know the breech from the muzzle of a musket. Most of them know better how to adjust a starched collar or a fancy cravat than a bayonet or cartridge-box. It will be glorious to the patriot to see these chaps drafted.

Let the rich men who are able to bear the expense of recruiting, &c., come forward and raise companies and regiments. Raise them, and then by dint of energy and money induce the people to command them, they can find somebody who can.

Stop every wheel—close your offices and fly to arms. The rebellion must be put down. It is a lasting disgrace to wait to be drafted.

Come on, brave men, I am going.

REBEL HATER.

DESTRUCTIVE FIRE

From the New York Post, Wednesday afternoon.

FIVE BUILDINGS BURNED IN BEEKMAN, WILLIAM AND ANN STREETS.

At half-past three o'clock this morning a fire broke out in the basement of the Rainbow Hotel, 31 and 33 Beekman street, and rapidly spread to the adjoining buildings on the west, Nos. 29 Beekman street, and to 163, 165 and 167 William street, and to 63 and 65 rear of St. Ann street. The firemen were early on the ground, and notwithstanding their utmost efforts the buildings were totally destroyed and several others badly injured. It is supposed that the fire was the work of an incendiary.

There is access to the basement on the east side, where there is an excavation for the foundation of a new building, on the corner of Beekman and William streets. The walls have been perforated, and beams placed so as to support the walls of the hotel, and through these cavities it is supposed the incendiary made his entrance.

There were some fourteen or fifteen boarders in the house at the time of the fire, and it was only by the almost superhuman exertions of the firemen that the most of them were saved. By the use of ladders and ropes these brave fellows rescued the women and children, who were either too much frightened or smothered to exert themselves. Many had to be carried bodily. All were saved with the exception of two, whose bodies have not yet been recovered, and one who was so badly burned that he is not expected to live. The name of the latter is understood to be Wall, and he was conveyed to the hospital.

The two who are supposed to have been burned were sleeping on the third floor. They were foreigners. Mr. McKenzie is an aged man, being eighty years old, and Mr. Simmons, a fruit dealer, some twenty-six years of age. At about eleven o'clock it was reported that the body of a man had been discovered on the third floor, but it was impossible to get it on account of the burning fragments and the precarious condition of the walls. The rumor was afterwards said to be false, and that nothing had been seen of the bodies. Various rumors were afloat augmenting the number of killed to ten, twelve and even fourteen, but all those engaged in the building have been seen this morning with the exception of the two above mentioned.

At about twelve o'clock a drunken man was arrested, who had unwittingly uttered something to the effect that he knew something about the origin of the fire. Nothing definite, however, has been learned as yet.

The loss on stock and fixtures in the Rainbow Hotel is estimated by Mr. Howell, the proprietor, to be between $4 000 and $5 000. Insured for $1 500 in the East River Insurance Company. The losses of the boarders and servants is severe, they having lost, in nearly every case, all they possessed in the way of clothing and personal effects.

The buildings are owned by Mr. James Conner, and are said to be fully insured, though we could not learn the particulars. The lots 31 and 33 Beekman street belong to the St. John's Church property, for which Mr. Conner owns the lease for ten years to come. The lot 29 Beekman belongs to the Conner estate. The three buildings are totally destroyed.

No. 27 Beekman, occupied by Beebe & Hall, was somewhat damaged by water. Fully insured. Edward Greedhalge was taken from the window by a ladder, rendered helpless by partial suffocation by smoke. He was conveyed to the station-house, where he is in a fair way of recovery. Captain Marcus Monk is the name of the gentleman who was badly burned and taken to the hospital.

WHAT CONSTITUTES A LEGAL TENDER—IMPORTANT DECISION.

In the Philadelphia District Court, on Wednesday, a decision was given in the case of Shoemberger for use vs. Mendelsohn & Watts, a brief notice of which, in view of the importance of the point involved, may not be out of place here. The defendants, obligors in a bond dated Nov. 26, 1861, in the penal sum of $56 211.78, conditioned for the payment of $28 155 89, in specie, current gold of the United States of America, on the 1st of May, 1862, with lawful interest, in specie, current gold and silver money aforesaid, to be paid half-yearly for same in the city of Philadelphia. A warrant of attorney for the same date with the bond, to confess judgment, was annexed to the bond. Under this warrant a judgment was entered on the day of the date of the bond, in the Court of Common Pleas of Lancaster county. According to the usual practice, the judgment was entered for the penal sum of the bond, and the record sets out the condition also, verbatim. When the day of payment arrived, the obligors tendered to the obligee the debt, interest and cost, in full, in the notes of the United States, which, by act of Congress of February 25, 1862, were made a legal tender for all debts &c. The plaintiff refused to receive them, and had a fi. fa. issued, which the defendants asked to have set aside. The question raised was whether the plaintiff had a right, since the act of Congress of February 25, 1862, to require payment by defendants of gold and silver money, or was bound to accept the notes of the United States, which, by that act, were made a legal tender for notes generally. The Court decided that the tender of United States notes was sufficient answer to the obligation in the bond, and the writ was set aside.
