THE DRAFT VS. NEGRO ENLISTMENTS.

There is an obstreperous howl now among the radical presses that are trying to hound on the President to issue a proclamation calling on the Southern slaves to rally to the standard of the Union. Some of these patriots go so far as to maintain that it is a wrong to the loyal white population to subject them to the inconvenience of a draft, when, as they allege, multitudes of Southern negroes can be had as volunteers for the asking.—This is an absurd appeal to the prejudices of an unreflecting mob. The draft is a measure that must be accepted or condemned on its merits, without reference to possible proclamations of emancipation. It is soldiers that the Government wants, and it can be said of the draft, what cannot be said of the proclamation so persistently clamored for, that it is certain to bring, within a short time, the precise number required. Grant that the three hundred thousand soldiers called for are the number actually needed in addition to the volunteers, and we appeal to all men of sense if it would not be absurd or the Government to count on raising one half of them by draft and the other half by voluntary recruiting on the Southern plantations.

Who is wild enough to believe that if the President should issue a proclamation to the negroes, he would thereby bring 150,000 men into the Union army with the same certainty and despatch that the draft would bring the other 150,000? If the Government should attempt to raise a levies in that way it would flounder in blind uncertainty. No reasonable calculation could be formed as to the rate at which they would come, the time required for filling up the black quota, the success with which they could be officered and disciplined, or the value of their services in the field in the face of the enemy. To rely on reinforcements from this quarter would be trusting to an experiment, the result of which no man could predict for the lack of data. If we need the 300,000 men called for in the draft, and the need is so urgent that we cannot trust to the chances or await the slow process of voluntary enlistment, it would be the height of absurdity to calculate on getting any considerable part of them from the plantations. It would be like trusting to the chance of a legacy to pay a sixty-day note, instead of collecting debts or raising money on your property.

When the drafted militia is mustered into the service of the United States, it will be as regularly organized and properly officered bodies of soldiers. If, instead of drafting these, the President had made a proclamation to the Southern negroes, they would come within our lines not as organized bodies, but as individual stragglers. We suppose the boldest negrophilist would hardly advocate the intermingling of them with our existing regiments to fill up their decimated ranks. It would be necessary to give them a separate organization; but where would the officers be found for them? Shall we take ignorant negroes raw from plantations and make them field officers? The Government might as well issue an order declaring that asses shall be horses, and harnessed to the President's coach. But if you could bring one hundred and fifty black regiments into the field, where would competent white officers be found for them? Or who would answer for the discipline they would acquire under raw Northern officers, who, besides having everything to learn themselves, know nothing of the negro character? The business of the country is too urgent for the Government to trust the national safety to any such untried and uncertain experiments.

THE FRENCH JOURNALS ON MEDIATION, ETC.

The Paris correspondent of the New York Commercial writes, under date of 25th:

The French secession papers insist upon construing Lord Palmerston's late speech against mediation in America as meaning that the Ministry is paying the subject attention with a view to a mediation, while the liberal journals, on the contrary, construe it to mean that the time has not yet come for such a movement, that they will watch for it, and when it does arrive, will avail themselves of it. As you will readily perceive, there is an important difference between the two constructions; and as the second one seems to be really the meaning of the Prime Minister's words, the argument of the secession papers appears to be but—as it is aptly called in French—echappatoire; a hole and were so firmly convinced that the English were for violent measures, that they find it hard to admit their defeat. Their Constitutionnel is to commence to-morrow morning a series of leading articles from its principal editor in favor of mediation based on the late discussion in the English Parliament.

The Constitutionnel defends the cause of the South as if ordered to do so by the Government; the Patrie appears to defend it from conviction; and the Pays from ignorance, but they are all probably acting on a ministerial order. The fact is, that part of the Ministry which has control of the press by an unfortunate hazard, is secessionist, and believes firmly and honestly that the South will never be conquered. In this view of the case a mediation is one of the possible events, and it is to prepare the public mind for such a contingency that the ministerial press has its orders to keep the subject of mediation before the public. It serves also as a menace to the combatants in America to force them to a peace.

The French journals remain perfectly silent on the subject of the return of the Orleans Princes to England, notwithstanding it is much discussed in the English papers. Their names have not been mentioned except in the telegraphic despatches; and the official paper, in order not to mention their names at all, omitted the telegraphic despatch which gave the news of their return.

From the N. Y. Times, Aug. 9.

SHOULD DEFINE HIS POSITION.

Wendell Phillips is stumping Massachusetts against the Administration. He objects to its method of carrying on the war, and denounces the President, the Cabinet, Gen. McClellan and everybody else connected with the Government. He speaks of Gen. McClellan as no better than a "traitor." Now we should like to know what Mr. Phillips means by "treason." A year or two ago, in a public lecture at Brooklyn, he declared that he was not an American citizen—that he had never taken the oath of allegiance to the Constitution—that he never voted or took any part in public affairs, and that he never would do so, as long as the Constitution tolerated the existence of slavery.

We should like to know whether Mr. Phillips has changed his views on this subject or not. Has he yet taken the oath of allegiance? Is he now willing to acknowledge himself an American citizen, and to assume the responsibilities and perform the duties that citizenship involves? Does he now recognize the supremacy of the Constitution? If not, what does he mean by denouncing McClellan as no better than a "traitor?" Traitor to what?—To the Constitution? Yet he himself is in the same predicament. He has taken no oath of allegiance to it. He will not agree to support it. He holds substantially the same relations to the Constitution and the Union as Jeff. Davis—that is, unless he has changed his ground since his Brooklyn lecture.

We suggest the propriety of calling on Wendell Phillips to take the oath of allegiance. If he assumes to lecture the Administration, to denounce the Government, and to sit in judgment on the Generals of the army in the field, we ought to know at least the ground which he occupies and the point of view from which he criticises their conduct. If he does it as a loyal citizen—sworn to support the Constitution and the Union—that is very well. But if he persists in boasting, as he has done hitherto, that he is not a citizen—that he owes no allegiance to the Constitution, and that he regards the Union as an accursed league for the support of slavery, then his denunciations are simply those of an outsider and an enemy, and we do not see how it will be easy to draw a line of distinction between his hostility to the Government and that of any other rebel. Let him take the oath of allegiance.

DEPARTURE OF THE STEAMSHIP ETNA FOR EUROPE.

The usual excitement accompanying the departure of the European steamer was heightened this morning on account of the recent orders of the War Department prohibiting the departure from the country of all persons subject to the draft.

From an early hour this morning, the dock of the United States and Liverpool Steamship Company, near the foot of Spring street, has been the scene of the utmost tumult, consequent on the departure of the steamship Etna, for Liverpool. As the time announced for the vessel's departure drew nigh, the excitement increased, and the crowd of spectators and passengers suddenly augmented. A strong body of police were stationed at the gangways and on the dock to keep order and prevent all surreptitious exits from the country. Various were the means resorted to in order to evade the vigilance of the officers. One ingenious individual was arrested for an attempt to pass himself off as one of the crew, which he came very nearly accomplishing by the aid of a stolen or borrowed shirt, belonging to a sailor attached to the ship.

Another was taken to the station-house for disorderly conduct, amid the yells of the crowd. Stow-a-ways were very numerous, and not remarkably tenderly treated by the knights of locust. Curses, entreaties, laughter, tears, were each in their turn resorted to by the rejected passengers, and the assemblage round about. Over one hundred persons who had purchased tickets were put ashore, having neglected to procure passports. Aliens attempted to rush in on their exemption papers, but it was no go, and they were promptly conveyed to shore.

At 1 o'clock the excitement still continued, with little prospect of immediate abatement. It is understood the ship will be detained until after 3 o'clock, to allow the British Consul to communicate with the Government at Washington, relative to British subjects who have taken passage by the Etna.

Fears of the confiscation of his large Virginia property are said to have induced the suicide of the Rothschilds' agent in New Orleans.

GOING TO CAPE MAY.—Persons laying over in Wilmington for a night's rest that are en route for Cape May, instead of going through to Philadelphia the same evening, can procure a good breakfast at the "Indian Queen" in time to arrive at Newcastle by 12 M. for the Boat. By taking this route you save 70 miles of travel, and five dollars to spend after arriving at the Cape. all 1.03t*

CHESTNUT HILL SCHOOL FOR YOUNG GENTLEMEN, Three Miles North of Baltimore, Md. This Institution has been in full operation since November, 1858. It is a classical school in a private family, offering, in the refining influence of domestic intercourse, a substitute, so far as may be, for parental care and home association. Pupils are received at ten years of age and upwards, and thoroughly prepared for College or for Business. The number of pupils is limited to thirty, which conduces to the personal comfort of the boys, their sound intellectual and moral training, without supervision, and the thorough management.
