THE FATE INVITED BY PETTY POLITICIANS.

If there could be anything needed to encourage the truly patriotic to persevere in the line of duty, the endeavor to save the Union, it might be found in the array of great names on the side of the country, of men who at the outset of the quarrel forgetting the mere ties of party, ranged themselves on the side of the Government, and never faltering, have been an impregnable rampart against all assaults, domestic and foreign, ever since. And in recurring to a fact so cheering to contemplate at all times, it is not needful for any one to go over the list of names. Indeed, so large is it of men really distinguished as statesmen, soldiers, and so on against the traitors who in one guise or another are its assailants, that the simple fact so presented to a foreign or indifferent observer would according to all ordinary calculations for success, settle the question in favor of the Government.

But it is equally true that as aiders and comforters of the rebellion, there is here and there one distinguished by his talents or his position far above the masses. But nine times in ten in such cases it will be found that cupidity foiled in its exactions, or selfish ambition compelled to lower its crest, is at the bottom of the disaffection, so that after all the weight of influence is on the side of the loyal, the presage of triumph is clearly on the side of the Union.

A few months since, the country was witness to a strange exhibit, bearing upon the condition of things to which we have alluded—Here and there in the ranks of the defenders of the Union cause men were seen gambling with public sentiment, as it were; venturing a throw here and there to see how far they could find it safe to assail the President and revolutionize or overthrow the Union party of which he is the acknowledged head.—But with the antecedents of these malcontents closely scanned, it was not at all difficult to see where the cause of discontent lay. Beginning with the nominee of the Cleveland Convention. Not so great a man as he fancied himself to be, and unwisely deeming himself capable of effectually dividing the party, he in an unlucky hour abandoned a position in which he might have won an honorable fame for himself, to plot the overthrow of the man whose principal fault has ever been, that his kindly forbearance is in excess for the stern responsibilities of his position. Allowing himself to be hoisted into a doubtful notoriety, Gen. Fremont soon found that the longer he permitted himself to stand as a nominee for the Presidency, the less were his chances of reaching it; and so making a virtue of necessity, he comes down with what grace he may, and resumes his old place in the ranks as a supporter of the Administration which fights the battles of free Government.

Now one might have supposed that so marked an example of disaffection chastened and rebuked, could not have failed of a salutary effect; could not have failed to deter others of similar proclivities from inviting the same fate. But no: on every side, of course, were men who in the great changes going forward felt that they, too, were not appreciated by the Federal Executive, and they also must run a tilt at him, must punish him as some amends for mortified vanity and wounded pride.

But there has been one element left out in the supposed nicely balanced calculations of these aspiring and presumptuous candidates for the public favor,—they had left out almost entirely the feelings and wishes of a patriotic people. Venturing the assault on the people's friend, quite heedless of that popular judgment which is so sure to deal sternly with those who at the present time range themselves on the side of the disaffected, the enemies of the country, they speedily found their mistake; they were met with a cry of surprise and indignation, and the result has been that in many cases these aspiring gentlemen have summarily been commended to obscurity, or they have been compelled to take the back track to become the supporters—ostensibly at least—of the man they had buckled themselves to overthrow.

All this is so much in favor of the fact that the Union cause must in the end triumph. Pride, a desire for vindicative satisfaction, a reputation for political sagacity, all conspired to prevent these malcontents from confessing their mistakes; from acknowledging by the mere change of front that they had fatally blundered. They could not control the current of popular sentiment, they could not defy it, and concluding to fall in with it, they are compelled to at least bide a more fitting time for satisfying their desire for vengeance. Meanwhile the President—both President and people—bide their time. They can afford to wait. With everything moving forward satisfactorily, in a military point of view as well as politically, the great body of the sincere Unionists, the true defenders of the nationality may well view with serene composure these questionable movements of the disaffected, their "ground and lofty tumbling" to keep their positions in the public favor. But nobody is deceived after all, and these dexterous manoeuverers will learn it at last to their cost.

What is the duty of the people in regard to all this? What but to make the cause of the Union more than ever a matter of watchfulness, more than ever to fight the battle now so near a close, with a determination neither to be whipped or betrayed. Compared to the great struggle now in hand, who cares for petty grievances, the disappointments of this or that politician, the displacement of this or that military chief? With the great national issues vindicated aright, with these ever kept prominent, all the small men and the petty factions will be lost to the public view, will be so completely thrown into the background that they cannot imperil the cause dear to the whole world of humanity. In the great struggle for free government men are nothing except as they subserve the cause; and so any man who devotes his time to reviewing his own pretensions, who thrusts himself forward as the chief of a faction when he should be the champion of a great cause, will be set down by the people forever as the demagogue or traitor that he is.

HOLLIDAY STREET THEATRE—J. B. Booth. Mr. J. B. Booth was honored last night with an overwhelming audience, not a few of whom were attracted by an affectionate curiosity to behold in this accomplished and fortunate artist, the likeness of their departed though well-remembered favorite, the erratic rival of the great Kean. Mr. Booth's appearance in the character of Richard III, challenged, of course, a close and direct comparison of his effort with that of his father, yet notwithstanding that the test was the highest and the severest to which his art or genius could be subjected, he sustained it with unquestionable credit to his honorable repute.

It was throughout, in conception and in action, a comprehensive and scholarly performance—bold and impassioned—and exhibited again and again touches of the art and the fire of the great Richard, from whom he inherits his genius. Mr. Booth's notable resemblance to his father lent a peculiar charm to his personation, and in some passages, where that likeness was made most strikingly apparent, invested it with a melancholy interest. The closing scene of the tragedy was given by Mr. Booth with distinguished power and with enthusiastic effect. True, the combat incident bordered upon the melodramatic, but not improperly so, and certainly not enough to detract from the thoughtfulness of his acting in the previous scenes. Richard will be repeated this evening—to-morrow Othello. We should add that a new candidate for public favor, Mr. J. C. McCollom, made a very favorable impression last evening as the Earl of Richmond.

NEW BOOKS.

We have received from Robert Carter & Brothers, of New York, publishers, a couple of little volumes for children, neatly gotten up and filled with attractive stories from the authors of the "Wide Wide World" and "Dollars and Cents." One of these volumes is entitled "Hard Maple" the other "Sybil and Chryssa," each comprising several tales, adapted to entertain and instruct the "little folks."

From the same publisher we have the third volume of D'Aubigne's "History of the Reformation," too well known to need comment.

All the foregoing volumes can be procured at "Maryland Tract House" on Fayette Street near Charles, Rev. S. Gulteau, Secretary.

From Henry Taylor & Co., Sun Iron Building, we have a pamphlet treatise—"Thoughts on Labor, Capital, Currency," &c., with tables showing the value of a paper dollar in gold according to its due nations &c., by a citizen of Maryland. We have been able to give it but a casual glance, but a subject so attractive must find readers.

ROSECRANS AND MCCLELLAN.—A correspondent of the Cincinnati Gazette writes from St. Louis:

A [illegible] story has been in circulation since the Chicago Convention that Gen. Rosecrans intends to support McClellan. Of course no one believes that he would do so because of a preference for the peace platform of Chicago, or for the peace warrior who failed to support him at Rich Mountain, and then stole the laurels of his victory; and if any person believes that he would desert his principles because of the injustice with which he has been personally treated, that person must have forgotten the persistent silence under slander, the steady adherence to duty under official persecution, that have really been one of the finest spectacles of self-denying patriotism the war has exhibited.

☞The Deputy Commissioner in the Internal Revenue Department, at Washington, says, in answer to an inquiry, that stamps which may have been cancelled by mistake or otherwise, without having been used, can be exchanged by sending them to the office of Internal Revenue. But, if dated and cancelled for one instrument, they cannot be removed and affixed to another instrument, although the former instrument may not have been used.

☞Mr. Roebling is now superintending the construction of another suspension bridge across the Ohio river, between Cincinnati and Covington, Ky. The Ohio river bridge will cost, it is estimated, some $1,500,000, and in length will exceed the Niagara bridge some 400 feet. It will be suspended 90 feet above high water, enabling the largest river steamers to pass under it without difficulty.

☞The German beer brewers of the United States had a convention at Milwaukee lately, and adopted resolutions setting forth that regular payment of Government taxes is specially necessary, and requesting each local association of brewers to compel its members to make prompt payment of the taxes.

☞It is understood that arrangements are contemplated for the purchase of the cotton of the insurrectionary States on Government account, and agents will be soon appointed at New Orleans, Memphis and other points for that purpose, under the act of July 1st.

☞It is believed that the Indian murders on the plains between Leavenworth and Denver would amount to fifty, and the loss of stock to mail companies and trains 2,000 horses, mules and oxen.

☞They are going to adopt generally in Paris the fashion of shaking hands and of leaving the first recognition in the street to the ladies.

☞A chemist in Liverpool, who sold some strychnine by mistake and killed a man, was sued by the widow and compelled to pay her $7,500 damages.

For Wounds, Bruises, Sores, Fevers and Dysentery, these medicines are the best in the world. Every English and French soldier uses them. If the reader of this "notice" cannot get a box of Pills or Ointment from the drug store in his place, let him write to me, 80 Maiden Lane, enclosing the amount, and I will mail a box free of expense. THE VALUE OF PURE WINE IN SICKNESS.—Few people are aware of the benefit of wine in sickness, consequently we publish the following extract from Hooper's Medical Dictionary:—

The chief difficulty with reliable wines has been their scarcity and exorbitant price, but this has been removed by the introduction of a pure native wine, extensively cultivated by Mr. A. Speer, of New Jersey. We understand he has submitted his wine to the test of many of our celebrated physicians, and all concur in its purity, medicinal properties, and superiority to the best Port wine. Most of them prescribe it in cases of debility, affections of the kidneys, and chronic complaints. Druggists sell it.—Examiner.

CURE YOUR COUGHS.—Ferris' Juniper Tar is warranted to cure any case of cough, throat or lung disease, arising from colds, in an incredibly short time, no matter of what nature or of how long standing, with absolute certainty. We say this emphatically, and stake the price of the medicine in all cases on our assertion. In fresh cases of cough or croup instantaneous relief is produced. Try it, and if not convinced of the above declaration, return the empty bottles and get your money back. Sold by COLEMAN & ROGERS, 173 Baltimore street, and other Druggists. 35 cents per bottle. s21-tf

DR. JOHNSTON.
Member of the Royal College of Surgeons, London, graduate from one of the most eminent colleges in the United States, and the greater part of whose life has been spent in the hospitals of London, Paris, Philadelphia and elsewhere, has effected some of the most astonishing cures that were ever known; many troubled with ringing in the head and ears when asleep, great nervousness, being alarmed at sudden sounds, bashfulness, with frequent blushing, attended sometimes with derangement of the mind, were cured immediately.

These are some of the sad and melancholy effects produced by early habits of youth, viz: Weakness of the Back and Limbs, Pains in the Head, Dimness of Sight, Loss of Muscular Power, Palpitation of the Heart, Dyspepsia, Nervous Irritability, Derangement of the Digestive Functions, General Debility, Symptoms of Consumption.

MENTALLY.—The fearful effects on the mind are much to be dreaded—Loss of Memory, Confusion of Ideas, Depression of Spirits, Evil Forebodings, Aversion to Society, Self Distrust, Love of Solitude, Timidity, &c., are some of the evils produced.

HASHEESH CANDY.
HASHEESH CANDY,
FOR
ASTHMA.

MR. WM. H. READ:
Dear Sir—I wish to inform you by this writing that I have been suffering with Asthma in its worst form for 10 years, spending within that time hundreds of sleepless nights in the most suffering manner. Everything failed to give relief until I obtained a box of HASHEESH CANDY, which proved the most wonderful curative agency I ever used, relieving me immediately whenever attacked by the disease. Often I have been so severely attacked that I could with great difficulty breathe at all, and was incapable of lying down at night, having such terrible smothering sensations. Medical men of all schools failed to afford the least relief. Without much hope I resorted to this wonderful Candy in January, 1861, ever since which time I have slept without the least trouble by using some whenever threatened by an attack, and am thankful that such a remedy is to be found. I recommend it to all afflicted by Asthma, Rose Cold, Hay Fever, or diseases of that class.
