Sherman's Movements—Where He Will Strike.

[From The Chicago Tribune.]

It is already known that Beauregard and Hood, striking westward from the line of the railroad connecting Atlanta with Chattanooga, have crossed the Tennessee River at Florence, a point in Alabama two hundred miles west of Atlanta, and but about one hundred miles equidistant from Nashville and Memphis, leaning toward the latter. The design of this movement, as boastfully announced or luminously hinted in advance by Jeff. Davis in his recent speeches, and by the desperately sanguine rebel papers, was to make such a demonstration in Sherman's rear as would oblige the latter to abandon Georgia from Chattanooga to Atlanta, in order to prevent Beauregard from capturing Nashville and Memphis. Events will prove whether Beauregard and Hood, in adopting this strategy are geniuses or fools.

Certainly it is either far above or much below the standard of prudence and common sense. Beauregard's entire force is not estimated to be over forty or forty five thousand, and to attend to this the forces under General Thomas will be found fully adequate. Indeed, already it is intimated that the rebels have halted in their advance or are retiring.

Meantime General Sherman, with two hundred miles the start of Beauregard, with no enemy in front, and with, as he expresses it, "the whole Southern States open to him," left Atlanta several days ago with an army of seventy-five thousand men, and will sweep with the irresistible power of a tornado down into the heart of Georgia and South Carolina, and Charleston and Mobile. He will march in three grand columns or corps d'armee, each well provided with artillery and cavalry, wholly abandoning and probably destroying Atlanta—destroying the roads and bridges in his rear—gathering supplies from the country and receiving the fugitives, who will flock to his standard promptly by thousands.

In short, for the first time during the war our armies will have passed through the shell of the Rebellion, and will move unopposed through the enemy's country. An opportunity will be given to the Union men, black and white, on his route to flock to the standard of the Union.

It is believed that Sherman will arrive at his objective point with a re-enforcement of not less than fifty thousand able bodied men, plucked from the heart of the enemy's country. The occupation of the navigable line of the Savannah river, and the fall of Charleston and Savannah both at near attack, would constitute a far more disastrous blow to the Rebellion than the fall of Richmond. Jeff Davis would, in fact, be called upon either to abandon South Carolina and Georgia to their fate, or to attempt to rescue them by the abandonment of Richmond in the face of Grant's largely superior army, a dangerous and probably impracticable undertaking. Indeed, it is evident that Jeff. Davis will have enough to do to save the Richmond army from annihilation, if he ventures to leave his strong intrenchment at Richmond and Petersburg. On the other hand, Beauregard is already two hundred miles in the rear of Sherman, and has neither facilities to overtake him, nor strength to fight him when overtaken.

Never during the war has either party held the other so completely at disadvantage as Sherman now holds his incautious and blundering adversary. Of course, there are in the unforeseen possibilities of war contingencies which may turn the most promising situations into disaster. To all human appearances the game appears to be wholly in Sherman's hands. Certainly Hood, in uncovering Sherman's front and attacking his communications, has reversed the policy of Gen. Johnson, who is universally accounted a strategist far superior to his successors. So far from Sherman fearing or Johnston desiring such a movement as Beauregard and Hood have just made, every flank movement which Sherman made to Johnston's rear was an invitation to Johnston to act on Sherman's rear to the fullest extent he might deem desirable.

Johnson, however, cautiously declined every such inducement, preferring to fall back and keep constantly in Sherman's front. Either Johnson or Beauregard, therefore, were sadly deficient in generalship. If Sherman won Atlanta by the blundering of Hood in sending merely his cavalry to Sherman's rear, it is difficult to see why he should not win Charleston and Savannah, now that Hood and Beauregard in repetition to the same blunder on a more stupendous scale, have sent their whole army some two hundred miles in Sherman's rear, thus uncovering to his victorious legions the whole prize which the former seek to defend and the latter to possess.

CURIOSITIES OF FRENCH RESTAURANTS.—The Paris correspondent of the London Star writes as follows:

Restaurants for the working classes in Paris have now-a-days recourse to every species of invention to attract attention. One has just been opened in the Faubourg Montmartre which promises a dinner of two courses and a dessert to whoever writes, in a legible hand, the answer to a rebus offered every morning for solution by the dame de comptoir. Another, in the Faubourg St. Antoine, hit on a still more strange expedient. He chose for his ensign a gigantic golden sausage, which he swung enticingly over the door of his restaurant, the words "A la saucisse d'or," in huge gold letters blazing beneath.

His salon was large, its white walls decorated by festoons of the tempting eatable so highly appreciated on the other side of the Rhine, and in every fifteen sausages a fine francpiece in gold. His principle was that, as his customers called for sausages, they should be cut off in regular rotation from the string, so artistically arranged around the dining hall. The result may be better imagined than described. The eager anxiety depicted on the countenance of every ouvrier as he nervously examined and finally ate the sausage, would have supplied a phrenologist with many good subjects for study. The experiment proved not remunerative to the proprietor, but the quarrels that ensued were so serious a nature that the police have interfered, and the master of the establishment has received orders either to shut up his shop or to proceed on a less exciting system.

Fire Statistics.—The immense amount of business created in the world may be formed from the fact that about the Brazilian mail steamers alone brought to England, six months ago, and that an American mail steamer on the Southampton lately landed, in one day, for exportation, ten thousand bales of American cotton tobacco. Should it happen that New York, for it is to Boston and other landing places there, brought it to Southampton, from whence it was sent to London to be shipped to the Peninsula.

LOCAL NEWS.

Cowardly Murder.—Shortly after three o'clock yesterday afternoon, a cowardly murder was committed at the corner of Eutaw and Conway streets, the victim being Wm. Zeldner, a lad aged 14 years, whose parents reside on the southwest corner of Pratt and Howard streets, and that of the murderer, Peter Barlow, a member of the 1st regiment Delaware Cavalry. The lad while vending lemonade at the corner of Eutaw and Conway street, was approached by Barlow, who, after drinking a glass of lemonade, accused the boy of attempting to cheat him out of fifty cents. The lad denied the accusation, when the cowardly assassin leveled his carbine and fired at the boy. The ball entered his left side and passed through his body, cutting the intestines. The boy was carried to the residence of his parents, where he died in half an hour after being shot. Doctors Lee and Morawetz were quickly in attendance, but could do nothing for the relief of the unfortunate youth. The report of the weapon fired by Barlow, attracted the attention of Captain Wiegel, Assistant Provost Marshal, whose office is on the corner of Eutaw and Camden streets. The Captain suspecting that murder had been committed instantly summoned a guard and proceeded in search of the murderer. A careful search of the Camden street depot was made, but the assassin managed to evade arrest. Finding that Barlow had escaped, Capt. Wiegel detailed several Government detectives to search for the accused. Shortly before dark he was arrested in the vicinity of the Relief Rooms. Col. Woolley immediately sent him to jail under a strong guard.

Elopement and Robbery.—Detective officer Cassel last night brought to the Central Station house Robbins P. Dunn and his wife Phebe, charged with having two months since robbed James Jerome, residing on the Washington turnpike, distant eight miles from this city, of three gold watches, a quantity of jewelry and $700 in gold. In September last, Detective Cassel was called upon to arrest the female on the charge of having run away from her husband, who resides in Chester, Pennsylvania. She was found at the house of Jerome, living with him as his wife. She returned to Chester with her husband, but before she quitted the house of Jerome she purloined the articles above mentioned.—On Tuesday Jerome visited this city, and obtained a warrant for the arrest of the woman and her husband, charging them with larceny. They were arrested yesterday and brought to this city, and will be taken to the Towsontown jail this morning in charge of officer Cassel. The female acknowledged that she stole the property, and remarked to the officer that she had "made a good thing of it." She brought with her to this city an infant about six months of age.

Waiting for the Verdict.—This play was witnessed last night at the Front Street Theatre by a crowded audience, and the applause bestowed upon the different performers attested the pleasure in which the audience received the efforts of the different artists engaged in its rendition. Mr Dan Setchell, the popular comedian, as Blinky Brown, gave to that character a truly life like conception, and avoided that buffoonery which so disgusts an audience when viewing the efforts of many low comedians. Mr. O. B Dowd, an excellent actor, rendered the part of Jonathan Roseblade in a capital manner, as also did Mrs Kunkel and Miss Emilie Melville the characters of Martha Rosblade and Sarah Sawyer.

A Deserter Killed.—A soldier named Jas Gallagher, belonging to the 88th Regiment of New York, was instantly killed yesterday. He was, with other soldiers who had deserted, being conducted to Fort McHenry, and when near Federal Hill, he attempted to escape by running. He was commanded to halt, but not obeying the summons, Lieut. Dodd, in charge of the guard, ordered the men to fire upon him, which they did. One bullet entered his back and passed out near the left breast; another struck his left knee, shattering the bone terribly. The body was removed to the dead house attached to the Camden street Hospital.

A Nuisance.—There is at present, and has been for several years past, a nuisance existing on the east side of Liberty street, between German and Lombard streets, which should command the attention of the proper authorities. At the point named, the gutters leading from the dwellings are so constructed that all slops and filth from the yards instead of passing into the street gutter, find their way over the pavement. In warm weather the stench is unpleasant, and during the winter the pavements are covered with ice. Residents in the neighborhood have repeatedly complained of the nuisance.

Holliday Street Theatre.—Waiting for the Verdict attracted another large audience to the Holliday last night. The play is placed upon the stage in an unusual curtailed manner, and admirably cast. Mrs. Gomersal as the merry Sarah, received many hearty tokens of appreciation, as also did Miss Alice Gray for her touching portrayal of the character of Martha Rosblade. With the exception of the overdoing of the character of Blinky Brown by Mr. Gomersal, the play passed off with great satisfaction. It will be repeated tonight.

Provost Marshal Cases.—The following parties were arrested yesterday and confined in the military prison, to await a hearing before Col. Woolley: John W. Watkins of Baltimore county, disloyalty; John Wersl, a rebel soldier, belonging to the 11th Virginia Infantry, violating his oath of parole; Edward C. Clayton, robbing soldiers; Wm. Dailey, a rebel deserter, and failing to report; James and Daniel Sullivan, robbing soldiers and furnishing them with liquor.

Important to Travellers.—Until further orders no passes will be granted to civilians desirous of visiting Norfolk, Old Point, and other places along the Bay line. The boats of the Bay line and those running to Norfolk, are wanted by the Government for the transportation of troops and supplies, and curiosity seekers and newsmongers will hereafter be debarred the privilege of visiting Norfolk and Old Point.

Concert.—A concert of sacred music will be given to-night by the choir attached to the Second Presbyterian Church, assisted by members of the various choirs in the city. The entertainment will be held in the church, corner of Baltimore and Lloyd streets, and will be under the direction of that able conductor, Dr R. J. Kerr. We can assure our music-loving readers that the above concert will prove a very pleasant affair.

Dishonest Boys.—Charles H. Kalfous and Wm. Robert, boys, were lodged in the Central station house yesterday on the charge of having robbed their parents of upwards of $1 000. The parents of the boys reside in Missouri. The accused, after getting possession of the money, came to this city, and were arrested by a Government detective on Tuesday night. Upon searching them $938 45 of the money was found in their possession.

A Dishonest Domestic.—Sophia Moore, colored, a domestic in the family of Mr. Francis Rogue, residing No. 19 Harrison street, was arrested yesterday afternoon, charged with stealing $50, the property of Mr. Rogue.—Justice Spicer committed the accused to jail for the action of the Grand Jury.

Threatening to Shoot.—Joseph Childs and John Dunlap were arrested at a late hour on Tuesday night on the charge of beating and threatening to shoot Charles H. Clark, a Government detective. Justice McKinley committed the accused to jail.

Body Found.—Yesterday afternoon the body of a white man child, about two weeks old, was found in the water near Locust Point. It was removed to the Eastern station house, where an inquest was held.

Released.—William B. Gee, who was arrested on the night of the 4th instant, in the Holliday street Theatre, charged with hissing the Union flag, was released from the city jail yesterday, upon taking the oath of allegiance.

Assault.—John Ford, charged with beating George Jones, while in the house No. 160 N. Eden street, was arrested on Tuesday night and committed to jail by Justice McKinley.

Serious Accidents.—Between 9 and 10 o'clock yesterday morning, Mr. John Hamilton, who resides No. 439 Christian street, Philadelphia, met with an accident at the Camden street depot that will in all probability prove fatal. The unfortunate man was leaning against the bumper of a car, and not perceiving a car that was approaching him, he was caught between the two and horribly crushed. He was placed upon a stretcher and removed to the Lombard street Infirmary.

About the same time, James Ripley, an employee of the railroad company, was also terribly mutilated while at work between two cars. He was at work upon a bumper and was caught by an advancing train. The lower portion of his body was crushed into a frightful mass, and it was thought that he would not survive until sundown. His was removed to his home on Scott street, near Pratt.

Threatening.—Mary E. Mahoney was arrested yesterday, charged with threatening personal injury to Mary Jones. Justice Hayward released the accused on security to keep the peace.

Beating.—Samuel Cunningham was arrested on Tuesday night, charged with beating Wm. Blotkamp. Justice McKinley released the accused on security to keep the peace.

MONEY AND STOCKS.

NOVEMBER, 16, 1864.

There was a very marked improvement to-day in Government securities five-twenties selling in large amounts at $103¾@104 and 7s1 bonds at $110¾@110⅞, a further advance in both of 1¼@1¾ per cent. Another evidence of the confidence of the people in the present administration of National affairs was given by the heavy decline in gold which sold from 237 down to 230¾ at the Stock Board and lower on the street by 1@2 per cent. Baltimore City Loans, Railroad securities and Bank Shares were all in fair demand and strong, and the mining list ruled firmer. Laurel Cannel Coal, called at the Board for the first time, sold at $6 25@6 90, an advance on subscription price of $1 90 per share.

IN THE CIRCUIT COURT FOR BALTIMORE CITY.—Charles F. M. Neilson and others vs. Joseph R. Neilson.—The object of this suit is to procure a decree for the sale of certain real estate in the city of Baltimore, whereof Thomas N. Neilson died seized. The bill states that said Thomas N. Neilson died in the year eighteen hundred and fifty-nine intestate, leaving a widow and children; and that one of said children, Joseph R. Neilson, is a non-resident of the State of Maryland; that the complainants desire a division of said real estate, but that the same cannot be divided without loss, and that the said real estate ought to be sold. It is thereupon this 14th day of November, eighteen hundred and sixty-four, adjudged and ordered that the complainant, by causing a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper published in the city of Baltimore once in each of four successive weeks before the 17th day of December next, give notice to said absent defendant of the object and substance of said bill, and warn him to appear in this Court in person or by Solicitor on or before the 21st day of March, eighteen hundred and sixty-five, to answer the premises, and show cause, if any he has, why a decree ought not to pass as prayed.
