LETTER FROM WASHINGTON.

[Correspondence of the Baltimore Clipper.]

WASHINGTON, June 3, 1865.

The Punishment of Imaginary Traitors is Mercy to the Nation and to Posterity.

There seems to be a systematic effort on the part of certain persons at home and abroad to manufacture a public opinion with the view of operating on the proceedings of the Government in regard to Jefferson Davis. The suggestions will which we have been favored by British journalists and other busybodies across the Atlantic, are only in character with the habitual impertinence of these meddlesome ignoramuses who, during the last four years, have had so much to say and so many counsels to give about matters which they did not in the least understand. But the advice and recommendations which some among ourselves are so forward to offer to the Executive, as to his duty on this occasion, manifest a very great forgetfulness of the circumstances of the case, and a total disregard of what is due to the safety and peace of the country; and are much more reprehensible than any foreign protestations, because the authors ought to know better.

There is a great deal of morbid sentimentalism on the subject, as if the assumptions of Davis diminished the atrocity of his guilt, and threw such a halo of splendor and dignity about his usurped position as ought to blind us to the enormity of his blood-stained career, and secure for him treatment different from that awarded to less conspicuous offenders.

The common sense and instincts of the American people, and of mankind at large, must reject this sickly sentimentality, and will not be diverted by any glosses of weakness or false sympathy, from the true aspects of the case or the principles which ought to control the decision of the Government.

Jefferson Davis will be arraigned for the crime of treason before a criminal court of competent jurisdiction. He will have a fair and impartial trial; and that is all he or his friends and sympathizers can ask. By the Constitution and laws of the United States the crime of treason is defined, and the penalty designated and affixed. There can be no reason or room to doubt about the nature of the offence, or the extent and character of the penalty incurred.

The revolt against the Government of the United States and the war upon the loyal people of the Union, constitute Treason of the most flagrant kind. Jefferson Davis was one of the authors and projectors and active executors of this treason. It is scarcely too much to say that he might have prevented the rebellion, or at least greatly diminished its gigantic proportions and terrible barbarities. But the demon of ambition by which he was possessed urged him on to seek the "head eminence" of chief in breaking up the American Union, and finding upon its ruins an oligarchy of slaveholders.

He had been taken up in boyhood and educated at the expense of the United States in the National Military Academy. He had been petted and pampered by men in authority far beyond his deserts. He had connected himself by his first marriage with one President of the United States (Gen. Taylor) and been called by the favor of another to the head of the War Department. He had been a Representative in Congress and Senator of the United States, and at the very moment of the revolt he possessed more actual power, influence and authority than any other individual of the Democratic party. Had his ambition been directed by virtue and patriotism, he might have permanently established his popularity, and possibly reached the highest office in the gift of the American people.

But he could not bear the election of Abraham Lincoln, and the ascendancy of the Republican leaders in the councils of the Nation, and rather than acquiesce in such a reality, he would break up and destroy the organized system of the Government, and set up another in place where he and his confederates might rule or ruin. Without any pretext for quarrel, he assailed the Government which from its origin had been mainly under the control of Southern men, who held the Presidency for thirteen terms, while Northern men had held it for only six terms—(fifty two years against twenty-four)—without any pretence of complaint especially against the two Administrations immediately preceding his usurpation of the title of President of the so called "Confederacy," he insulted the two members of Mr. Buchanan's cabinet who had aspired and denounced the treachery of Floyd, and contemptuously upon all the obligations of fidelity and honor, and the sacredness of his oath—as was the first and foremost to entrive and urge on the seizure of forts, arsenals, mints and other public properties of the United States, which was the beginning only of that long course of war which necessarily led, as every man of foresight knew it would lead, to the desolation of large tracts of country, the pillaging of towns and villages, and the butchering of the people of both North and South.

Now that he—a prime author of these intolerable evils which his unoffending fellow-citizens of his own section have suffered and will continue to suffer for years—has been chased to his original insignificance, and stripped of his disguises of mock heroism, it seems to some best that he should be consigned to perpetual exile. But does not the safety of the country, does not mercy to our countrymen now and hereafter demand the utter destruction of this victim of an insane and most wicked ambition? Without a punishment as severe as the Constitution affixes to treason, will not the lesson to ambition be imperfect, and the retribution of justice incomplete? Undoubtedly we would all judge him in mercy, but we must be merciful also to the nation and to posterity. He entered upon what he knew would be a career of blood and desolation cautiously and defiantly, and persisted in that work of murder and ruin long after all hope of success in his revolutionary enterprise must have deserted him. Now let an exemplary punishment deter, in all time, other dangerous spirits from entering on a similar course, by showing what will be their certain doom.

A LOOKER ON AT THE CAPITAL.

THE BULL AND THE SOLDIER.—There is among the papers of the late Sir Wm. Napier, a story of a bull which met a company of British soldiers on the march, and charged them. The company was marching in a column of sections when the bull dashed into it from the rear, knocking the men all ways, and emerging at the front, rushed onwards. Hardly had the men had time to pick themselves up and recover their order, when the bull turned round and charged their front. The commanding officer called out—"Prepare to receive cavalry," and fixed their bayonets in time to meet the shock. The bull charged home, and fell, pierced by a dozen bayonets. The story is told as a remarkable example of the courage of the British soldier, but we think that the courage of the bull of the island of Mauritius was most conspicuous upon this occasion.—Saturday Review.

LOCAL AFFAIRS.

A Double Fresh Lobed Fox.—The following memorial was laid before the First Branch of the City Council last evening, and referred to the Committee on Highways:

To the Honorable the Mayor and City Council of Baltimore:—The Philadelphia, Wilmington and Baltimore Railroad Company are now constructing their double track from Baltimore. It becomes necessary to accommodate the business of both passengers and freight, that the double track should extend into their depot at President street.—An ordinance passed last session by the Council to lay the double track to the President street depot through Canton avenue was vetoed by the Mayor on the ground of their not being room. The street is forty-two feet from curb to curb, and the laying of a second from rail track would not, in our opinion, obstruct the street any more than at present, and when we consider the City has granted the right to lay double tracks in our most crowded business streets, filled with horse cars, going in both directions all the time, there certainly can be no reasonable objection to a double track on this avenue, as trains would probably never pass each other on the street. North street is given up to the railway track, while Howard and other streets are not much wider, and certainly the travel and trade of the Philadelphia, Wilmington and Baltimore Railroad Company is of no less importance to our city.

Our Railroad Company have paid the city large sums for their property, besides a yearly ground rent of near $5,000 per annum, which they now pay, and heavy taxes, and without the proper facilities to get in and out of our depot, we shall be obliged to stop at Canton, which would certainly be very inconvenient. If, however, in your opinion, it is not best to have a double track on Canton avenue, we can get along for the present, by allowing us to lay it on Boston street as far as and turning into Canton avenue.

The undersigned, Baltimore Directors, believing the interest of the city requires this privilege, respectfully ask you to pass an ordinance granting us the right.

The Lincoln Monument Fund.—The benefit which was given at the Holliday Street Theatre on Saturday afternoon, through the liberality of Manager Ford, in aid of the Lincoln Monument Association fund of Washington, will reach the handsome sum of $1,600; and the entire amount, without deduction, will be handed over to the Mayor of Washington for the patriotic purpose for which it was intended.

Of the above amount $1,556 was the result of sales of tickets by the police of this city, under the direction of Marshal Carmichael. The sales by Districts were as follows:—Western, $736 50; Eastern, $307 50; Eastern District, $78 50; James D. Spangler sold 335 tickets, and in the Middle, Policeman Almire Gardner 100 tickets, being the highest number sold by any one in their respective districts. A handsome lithographed portrait of the lamented President is to be presented to each of the above.

It is further learned that the Germans of the city are taking great interest in furthering the laudable object. A meeting, presided over by General Franz Sigel, will be held on Thursday night last at Turner Hall, West Pratt street, when committees for each ward were appointed to receive contributions from their friends, and a large amount will thus be realized. Christian Ax, Esq., of the firm of Gill & Ax, was elected as Treasurer.

United States District Jurors.—Marshal Bonifact has announced the following gentlemen to act as Grand and Petit Jurors for the June term of the above court:

Grand Jurors—Johnathan J. Chapman, William Eckle, Thomas E Hamilton, Nicholas Brewer, John Shattrotte, Anthony Williams, Author Rich, W. Brooks, James J. Wheeler, Benjamin Deford, Francis Seigel, E. Geo. Matthews, John W. Bewith, Benjamin M. Hughes, John H. Bishop, W. W. Maughlin, Joseph Harris, Henry Hopfield, Wm. D. Miller, R. C. Luckett, Samuel Ewalt, John F. Tonmer, Benjamin Ellicott.

Petit Jurors.—John R. Holliday, Harrison Tarr, Geo. L. Kennard, Wm. Price, Dr. John K. Boyer, George W. Ellis, Jacob Bennett, Jesse H. Holliday, John Baker, James Fuller, A. D. Schwitz, Geo. W. Goodsell, H. C. Bricker, Nicholas Talbott, Albert J. Jones, Daniel Orrell, Thomas Wells, Henry W. Horn, Samuel D. Dugan. The June term of the above court will commence this morning.

The Military Courts.—The military commission, Gen. Ely, president, Major Lord judge advocate, assembled yesterday at its rooms in Holliday street, but owing to the absence of witnesses no cases were tried, and the commission adjourned until this morning, when the case of N. J. Watkins, charged with murder, will be taken up.

At the Court Martial No 6 St. Clay street, Col. Sharp, president, Major Mead, judge advocate, the case of Barney Lowry, of Company H, 5th New York Heavy Artillery, charged with disloyal and treasonable expressions in reference to the death of President Lincoln, was brought up for trial. In consequence of the witnesses being absent, and no possibility of obtaining them, the case was dismissed and a recommendation made to discharge the prisoner. John Wild, Esq., was his counsel.

Release of Wm. Hynes.—This person, whose case will be remembered, was captured at the Little Orleans, has been released by orders of President Johnson, and is now with his family in this city. He leave gives in full particulars to return to his home. Upon arriving in this city he visited the office of Col. Wm. Ney, subscribed to the oath of allegiance, and entered into the necessary bonds for the faithful observance of his oath. It will be remembered that a short time since Hynes was captured while endeavoring to enter the Federal lines, with other stores and other valuables valued at $12,000, taken from him. We learn that this matter is now being settled by the proper authorities, and efforts will be made to have the property restored.

Charge not Sustained.—Henry Earle, Effie Earle, Sam'l L. Maddox and James Akers, and Thomas Lear were arrested on Sunday night, charged with having robbed G. W. Weir, a soldier, of $350. The accused underwent a trying yesterday morning before Justice Spicer, and were discharged, the evidence failing to implicate them in the robbery.

To be Mustered Out.—Upwards of one hundred veteran soldiers belonging to the 1st regiment Maryland Volunteers, arrived in this city yesterday afternoon for the purpose of being mustered out of service. The men were in charge of Major Neely, and their uniform tattered and rough exterior spoke the true name of a soldier.

Diary of a Southern Tour.—We would call attention to the advertisement of Mr Suncay Emerson in another column, respecting the Diary of a Southern Tour, from the pen of the Rev. D. Fuller, of this city. This diary is exceedingly interesting, and will repay perusal.

Selling Liquor to Soldiers.—Henry Hays and Mrs. Catherine McNeal, were arrested yesterday, charged with selling liquor to soldiers. The accused were locked up in the military prison for a hearing.

Burglary.—Some time during Sunday night, the dwelling of Mr. James Barns, No. 340 East Fayette street, was burglariously entered and the best of clothing valued at $100, and a small amount of cash.

Threatening to Shoot.—John Cape was arrested yesterday charged with assaulting and threatening to shoot W. H. Reader. The accused was committed to jail by Justice Spicer.

AMUSEMENTS.

Holliday Street Theatre.—The bill of the day announces that the laughing season is now being observed at the above place of amusement, and that the mirth circle is being presided over by Frank Drew, the pleasing comedian. To night the Irish drama of the Colleen Bawn will be presented in an effective manner, Mr Drew sustaining his great character of Myles Na Coppaleen. Mr Drew will announce his benefit on Saturday evening next.

The Holman Opera Troupe.—Manager Kunkel has effected an engagement with this popular opera troupe, and during the week our music loving readers will be presented opportunities of listening to a first class English Opera Company. Miss Sallie Holman, the prima donna of the troupe, has a world wide reputation, and the entire press of the country have awarded her the highest meed of praise. The opera to-night will be that of the Daughter of the Regiment, cast to the full strength of the Holman troupe. The prices of admission will not differ from the regular rates.

☞ Some asparagus plants of enormous size, now exhibited in the windows of eating houses in Paris, attract the attention of strangers, who express great curiosity to know how they are cultivated. A farmer in the neighborhood of Paris supplies the following explanation: They are planted, not in the usual way, in rows, but separately. As soon as the plant rises a short height from the ground the gardener covers it with a bottle, under which the plant attains an enormous size before it is bottle-nose.

☞ When ever heard of a town being sold for debt? It has been done, though—The Canadian Government has issued a writ to the Sheriff of Lincoln against the Corporation of St. Catharines, for arrears of interest on its Municipal Loan Fund Debt. The present demand is for about $9,000, being the interest due for 1864 only. Besides that, the Corporation is in arrears for about $125,000 of other indebtedness to the Government.
