A STRIKING INCIDENT OF THE AUDACITY OF ENTERPRISE.

If any one wishes to note a specimen of that enterprize which has made New York one of the greatest commercial marts on the globe, they have a chance to do it, in connection with a single transaction which occurred there recently, based upon the destruction of the old Museum property, on the corner of Broadway and Ann streets. Little more than an old shell, the edifice occupied but 100 by 46 feet at the lower end of the Park, at the confluence of those great streams of population which make up the unceasing flow of life through the city; and destroyed by the late fire, the space it occupied, apart from that taken by the other buildings which shared the same fate, makes it appear ludicrously small when we regard subsequent transactions. The real value of city property is, however, illustrated by its history. Barnum had made a couple of splendid fortunes on that narrow space; and as to who else had done the same thing previously, we are not informed.—But the fire occurs, and the red ruin which sweeps everything before it apparently, must have appeared to the casual observer as a most deplorable affair for all involved in its results. Yet mark what immediately happened. Bennett, of the Herald, —another Barnum in his way,—at once steps forward and purchases this limited piece of ground, this mere patch, for no less a sum than $650,000, and finding that Barnum has yet a twelve years' lease upon it, hands him over $200,000 additional, as an inducement just to turn his back on the pile of ruined bricks and mortar which for the time cumber the lot.

Now we put it to our readers if the whole transaction does not seem absolutely astounding! Does it not show better than whole treatises upon the resources, the trade and finance and wealth of that city could do, its substantial strength! Does it not exhibit that audacity of strength which stops at nothing in its ability to discern where the road to fortune lies, and in which, fearlessly walking, man achieves his aims! Both the men who figure in this marvellous transaction have been distinguished for their untiring enterprize and industry, for their shrewd foresight, for those qualities which have so often commanded success in the Empire city, and which are seldom exhibited to the same degree out of it. At the rate indicated, who can estimate the greatness of the colossal fortunes lying along Broadway and other prominent thoroughfares there, and who does not thus begin to rightly appreciate that commercial courage which stops at no obstacle in carrying out its plans!

And to pursue this train of thought a little further, let us glance at other matters there, which demonstrate why New York enterprize carries all before it in its determination to succeed. Let the visitor thither take any pleasant day for it, and by a steamer up the East river closely scan what is presented by the trip. From Canal street upward, he will find on both sides of the river the whole space occupied with magnificent sea going craft; ships, steamers, each of which represents perhaps a fortune in itself. And suppose he could get at the history of these! A merchant fancies there is an opening somewhere for a first class steamer or sailing ship, and straightway he summons a naval architect to consult upon the build of it. The plan is determined upon. He lays down the one hundred thousand dollars for it fearlessly, because he expects—at least hopes—to get it back again with compensation. He fits it for sea, places a cargo aboard of it at an expense of many thousands more, and for months, perhaps years, if it is a trading voyage to the Indies, he hears little or nothing from it. But he has strong faith in his own sagacity, in the discernment and enterprise which has sustained him hitherto, and by and by, the ship upon which he has adventured so much—returns. It went forth with perhaps the crude products of our fields and prairies, it comes back with a freight possibly of silks, teas and spices, at a value an hundred fold increased, paying him abundantly for the spirit of enterprise exhibited and adding to the general wealth. Others emulate him A ship takes out possibly a cargo of ice or granite, to bring back a cargo of sugar; and although by the dangers of the sea, and by the late perils of the war the risk was greatly increased, enterprise flags not, fails not, and the result is seen in the still increasing vast area of New York, in its spreading outward and onward until none can even surmise where it will stop.

Now what is wanted in Baltimore is some of that same audacity, that commercial enterprise and daring which has been so fully exhibited north of us. We have shown some of this in the past, in the gigantic and successful enterprise of constructing the Baltimore and Ohio railroad as well as in minor undertakings; but of late years, all spirit for anything more appears to have nearly died out. Showing symptoms of revival now, manifesting in the purpose to establish a new steamship line abroad some of that determination which brought the city forward in the past, let us show that we indeed value our own cause, that we have faith in the destiny of our own city, and work for it accordingly.

And sneer or wonder as we may at the coming audacity of the transaction wherein Bennett and Barnum figure, the very magnitude and novelty of the affair is so much in favor of even a better future for New-York. It demonstrates clearly the faith of its own citizens in its future, it exhibits what the English term "pluck" to meet it, and it is a lesson for every other city on the continent. Whilst our talent, commercial, political, and much else is devoted to wrangling over the possession of a few petty offices, arraying great masses of the community against each other to monopolize the attention of all, we must get on but slowly comparatively, for these squabbles will produce estrangement and all its bitter fruits, anger resulting in apathy and indifference. In view of the splendid future which now offers itself to the city and State, we want unity of purpose, wise plans, discreet counsels to a degree never before called for perhaps in the past history of the city.—Whilst we see little chance of harmony, we trust that somehow these differences will be arranged, in order that all may come up to the great work that is to be done.

HOLLIDAY STREET THEATRE.

THE DRAMATIC SEASON OF 1865-66 WILL COMMENCE ON MONDAY EVENING, AUG. 21st, UNDER THE SOLE DIRECTION OF MR. THOS. A. HALL,

With a strong and carefully selected

DRAMATIC COMPANY,

and will be continued

WITH SURPRISE ATTRACTION,

Embracing all the Celebrities as well as all the Novalties of a first class Theatrical Season.

Among the latter may be classed

Dion Boucicault's extremely brilliant and very vivacious new comedy entitled

HOW SHE LOVES HIM.

Purchased expressly for production here, and the equally famous and most attractive Irish Drama of

ARRAH NA POGUE,

Which will be produced at a very great cost. Mr. Ford has also the exclusive right of this great play in this city.

During the Summer part of the Season, a most charming tale of enchantment, dramatized by the celebrated English Dramatist, J. B. BUCKSTONE, Esq., and entitled

THE ICE WITCH,

OR

THE KNIGHT OF THE FROZEN HAND

Readapted and arranged by MR. T. A. HALL,

With Music by our gifted young Leader, PROF. ROSEWALD,

Will be brought out. On this most delicious and very seasonable drama, MR. CHARLES S. GETZ has lavished all those GLOWING AND GLITTERING EFFECTS which his artistic skill and chemical studies so fully enable him to bestow.

Many months have been devoted, and over FIVE THOUSAND DOLLARS expended on this spectacular drama.

The startling mechanical effects are by Mr. CHRISTOPHER GARDINER and his assistants.

The Costumes will be of much splendor, and all the appointments of the most elegant and appropriate character.

Several other novelties will be produced to be announced hereafter.

ALL THE PROMINENT STARS will appear, and THE OPERA, as well as THE BAVELS. (After an absence of three years in France) will appear under this Management this Season.

A CARD.

This will be the 66th Annual Season at this Theatre, a fact not to be stated of any other Theatre in North America. Alone the "Holliday" stands as the only classic ground trod by the great actors of a bygone; built when Baltimore was a town, in 1796, it has maintained its prominence as the Temple of the Drama. All the great lights of the Stage have illuminated "Shakspeare" here: Warren as Falstaff, Wood as Prince Hal, Duff as Hotspur; Jefferson as Presch, appeared when Thomas Jefferson was President; after them the great Cooper; then, in 1816, when gas became an illuminator, this Theatre was the first to introduce it into footlights, circles and borders. Here, in the days of Andrew Jackson, the great "Edmund Kean" came and read "Shakspeare by flashes of lightning;" then Booth, his rival, the elder Vandenhoff, Burton, Ben Adams, Mercady, and our own Forrest, who labors yet with the present. All these mighty minds gleamed with mental light on these boards. All other Theatres of its age are numbered among the things of the past. The Holliday is "Itself alone."

The Manager, who has for ten years controlled this "time-honored temple," is himself the oldest of that class in the country, in one sense, he owes it now managing a Theatre over which he has held the managerial reins for as many years consecutively.

He has made the Holliday a "paying institution," and he desires now to make this season memorable in doing something for art; "something" more than he has been able to do in the past. Assigned by circumstances to "his honesty" he intends devoting himself with all the energy of his nature, all the tact and skill of his mind, and by a lavish outlay of means to management here, and only here.

☞ The Season opens early—as much for public reasons as for private benefit. THE TRADE OF BALTIMORE requires a Theatre to be open; a city of the magnitude of ours cannot dispense with such an important adjunct to business, and in trying to supply during "the Lenten season" a public want, the manager asks the co-operation of the merchants of the city. A slight effort can ensure here the attraction that New York, Boston and Philadelphia prepare at its cost. The suspicious "good time coming" for the business interests of Baltimore makes it essential that the amusements of the city be not only well conducted but we're reported; with this said, we are done.

The Season begins

NEXT MONDAY EVENING,

With Dion Boucicault's New Comedy of

"HOW SHE LOVES HIM."

The sole right to produce which, in this city, has been purchased by Mr. Ford.

☞ The Box Office is now open. jy27 3t

RADWAY'S READY RELIEF.

This medicant needs no elogium. "Good wine needs no bush," and the Ready Relief is its own best recommendation. Within a few minutes after its application it will prove that it deserves the name it bears, and is a "ready relief" indeed to all sufferers who use it. Rubbed upon the spine, or backbone, say for ten or twenty minutes at a time, about three times a day, and away goes at once all the pain resulting from such female complaints as leucorrhea, weakening discharges, obstructions, retentions, prolapsus uteri, hysterics, headache, &c., the complaint themselves are thus distinctly relieved. If you only persevere in the application of the Ready Relief. For all spinal affections, for weakness rheumatism, nervousness, neuralgia, lumbago, spasms, sciatica, gout, paralysis, numbness diseases of the kidneys, bladder, urethra; for pains in the small of the back, in the hips and thighs; for weakness in the back or legs, rub the spinal column well, in the manner mentioned, and you may depend upon a certain and speedy cure. Some parts or two parts with Ready Relief to one part of the body afflicted with pain or disease, and in ninety-five cases out of a hundred the pain will vanish at the first rubbing; if not it will surely go at the second. This is especially true in the attacks of croup, diptheria, sore throat, hoarseness, pain in the breast, pain in the bowels, sprains, cuts, bruises, wounds, cramps, chilblains, frost bites, sore throat, feet, joints, legs, arms and so on. A teaspoonful in sweetened water taken internally, besides the external rubbing, soon carries off diarrhœa, cholic, dysentery, looseness of the bowels, cholera morbus, heartburn, vomiting, convulsions, sick headache, &c. What medicament except Radway's Ready Relief can afford "ready relief" under so many distressing circumstances!

N. B.—Radway's Ready Relief is not only the best, but it is the cheapest medicine in the world. Fifty cents expended for a bottle of Relief will do more good, secure more health, and can be used for more purposes than ten dollars expended for other medications. There is no pain, ache or infirmity—from the slightest wound to a broken limb—but that Radway's Ready Relief will be found of great service. Sold by Druggists. jy24 2wd&w
