THE REVOLUTION THOROUGH—PEACE PERMANENT.

Fears are sometimes expressed by those who as it seems to us have not rightly considered the nature of the late conflict, that the peace we at last enjoy will not be permanent: that under the mortifications of defeat, and the restrictions necessarily put upon the action of those who have hitherto had almost unlimited sway in dealing with a dependent race, the beaten side may again resort to insurrection and bloodshed, to attempts at a doubtful "independence." We have no fear of any such visitation, again. Up to the period when this conflict was "precipitated," let it be noted that no people ever defied a government with more arrogant expectations of having matters all their own way. The whole struggle, the assault was based upon misapprehensions of relative strength and resources, as well as upon the world's estimate of the nature of their cause; and the fact should be plain to the least hopeful of a good future, that the South—whatever else it may do—is not going to repeat its mistakes. It has made an experiment which it had had in contemplation for the full third of a century; and it has expended upon that experiment every resource it could by the direst effort or sacrifice, command. And whilst it will be seen stirring anew and speedily for political power, whilst the ambitious will be only partially repressed, and the disappointed be temporarily commended to inaction, the signs of the times indicate that even at the next session of Congress, there will be enough of those made eligible to make the defeated consider themselves as again fully identified with the Government they would have destroyed; and more and more will they see thus that the interests of the lately divided sections are identical, and must be thenceforward considered as indeed a unit.

And then we have but to note the daily progress of events, the rapid changes taking place, to confirm the view of the case we have given. As things are moving, the South will hardly know itself in five years. Taking Newbern, for instance, one of the least alive or promising towns in that whole section, before the war, and we see it stated that an addition of ten thousand active and enterprizing workers has been made to its population, already, revolutionizing its trade, and developing resources it hardly dreamed in the past of being made available. And as of Newbern, so of numberless other places most readily accessible to the thronging populations which overflow from a thousand localities North, to find appropriate fields for enterprize and labor in these half developed spots, so long almost given over to decay and neglect.

These agencies, we repeat, these developments of interest, are the great conservators of peace. Whilst in the past every effort was made by the leading spirits of the South to isolate that section, to cut it off from all influences calculated to change the views, social or political, of its people, its very helplessness, at present, compels it to reach out for aid, whilst the great cause which blighted its progress, being no longer in existence, no longer clung to, as a delusion and a snare, makes almost any new suggestion welcome which will help to rescue it from its fallen condition.

The one great fact that the line which created sectionalism has been utterly rubbed out; the confessions we daily hear from the most prominent politicians South, that "slavery is gone," just as much recognizes all great causes of irritation done with betwixt Ohio and Kentucky for instance, as betwixt New York and Pennsylvania. With no raids into the free States to recover fugitive slaves, and no vigilance committees to admonish "Abolitionists," who might chance to venture across the line, for the first time in the history of the nationality, Union is to mean, in the future at least, fraternity, a common interest, a common patriotism. That there will be for a time bitter memories and angry feuds betwixt individuals, leading to crime and bloodshed, all must expect. But then the Government will be found abundantly able and determined to put down all disturbances. A single glance at the long list of able officers retained in the service as conservators of the peace, should reassure even the most timid and distrustful upon the points we have indicated. It demonstrates clearly that the Government thoroughly comprehends the situation; that although it recognizes that peace has returned, that it intends to hold a firm sway over all contingent disturbing causes until in every portion of the country patriotism and order have fairly vindicated their ancient prerogatives.

Then we say, in conclusion, the peace that we have won through a hard and long continued conflict is destined to be permanent. Popular tumults may, as in the past, occasionally occur to disturb somewhat the even tenor of our way; but the lessons of the war have been too terrible to all, have sunk too deeply into the hearts of our people, to make them again lightly appeal to the sword to settle their difficulties. Sure then of quiet which will last, let all make sure of it unhesitatingly to reckon upon a good future; to make for themselves pleasant homes; to set the educational, religious, and commercial interests on a solid basis. Brief as has been the period taken to effect a great revolution, let all realize that it is thorough, that it means that improvement in the space of years, which under ordinary circumstances could not have been effected in centuries.

MARYLAND BREVETS.

It is a pleasant fact to record, that quite a large number of brevets have been given by the President of the United States to Maryland officers, who have distinguished themselves on different occasions by meritorious conduct. These brevets will be published as soon as the pressure of business in the War Department permits.—Among those who have been already notified of their promotion by brevet are Col. R. N. Bowerman, of the 4th Regiment Maryland Volunteer Infantry, who has been breveted as Brigadier General of Volunteers. He had served nearly four years, starting in 1861 as Captain, and has been twice wounded, his brevet being bestowed for distinguished gallantry in the battle of Five Forks, April 1st, 1865. The brevet of Major F. W. Simon, 8th Maryland Volunteers, was bestowed also for gallant conduct on the same occasion, he having been wounded twice. Captain William Kenley, C. S. U. S. V., a brother of our distinguished townsman and veteran, Brig. Gen. John R. Kenley, received his brevet as Major for general meritorious and gallant conduct, a distinction which has not often been granted to officers in the Commissary Department. The case of Major Clifton H. Prentiss of the 6th Reg. Maryland Volunteer Infantry, deserves especial notice; he was breveted twice, as Lieut. Colonel and as Colonel, for gallant conduct at the successful charge on the works in front of Petersburg, April 2d, 1865, where he was wounded, as it is still feared, mortally; although he clings with wonderful tenacity to life. He started in 1861 as a private, and worked himself by meritorious conduct up to the rank of Major, and now as Brevet Colonel. He participated in more than eighteen great battles, and repeatedly received encomiums from his commanders, Brig. Gens. Kiefer and Seymour, and Major Generals Ricketts, Wright and Sheridan. It is anxiously hoped by his many friends that his life may be spared for future usefulness.

☞ We acknowledge with pleasure our indebtedness to William H. Allen, of the steamer Fannie, for his kindness in furnishing us with Richmond papers of Saturday, in advance of the mail.

MARYLAND SOLDIERS' HOME.

Now that the war is at an end, and the institutions of a general character that were organized for the relief of the disabled and suffering soldiers of our army, and sailors of our navy, have given notice of their intention to discontinue their services, it is necessary that provision should be made for the support of such of the crippled as are not able to take care of themselves. The United States Sanitary and Christian Commissions have signified their purpose of winding up their affairs and have already circumscribed the limits of their operations. The services of these institutions have proved of the highest value in the departments to which they have been contributed, many thousands of the maimed and otherwise disabled of the war, have shared their philanthropic labors, those who have died in the mitigation of the suffering of their last hours, and the living to bear with them through life the memorial of interposed kindness and favor which on the moment of severe suffering and danger were most gratefully received.

The survivors of the war who have been crippled must now be returned to their homes in the several States; many of them have already returned, and in their necessity they have appealed for relief to their fellow citizens in whose behalf they have perilled their lives and impoverished themselves and their families. The relief they applied for has been found in begging upon the streets, or in order to be admitted to the almshouse.

In view of these facts, it becomes necessary that each of the States should provide for the relief of its own disabled defenders—Maryland has not been indifferent in this relation, she has provided a home for the needy among her soldiers, and is engaged in their maintainance and in affording them, as nearly as possible, the comforts of the family fireside.

The Home for the disabled soldier is located on Oregon street, entrance from Mulberry street. It has now seventeen inmates, with several applications which cannot be responded to on account of insufficient accommodations. It is necessary that the buildings should be enlarged at once.

The Soldier's Relief Association, under the auspices of which the Home is established, was incorporated by the Maryland Legislature in 1864. It is therefore, a State institution, and should be taken under the protection and care of the State. It is hoped that this will be done at an early date; until that time arrives, the institution must be supported by private and associated philanthropy. We earnestly call upon our fellow citizens to sustain this very necessary institution, and assist the persons having charge of it in the accomplishment of their benevolent design.

TWO BAD CASES OF FILES CURED BY DR. STRICKLAND'S FILE REMEDY.—Mr Glass of Janesville, Wisconsin, writes for the benefit of all who suffer with the Piles, that he has been troubled for eight years with an aggravated case of Piles, and his hopeless case was discharged from the army as incurable, (he being quite paralyzed with the Piles.) Both these distressing cases were cured with one bottle of Dr. Strickland's File Remedy. The recommendation of these gentlemen, beside the daily testimonials received by Dr. Strickland, ought to convince those suffering, that the most aggravated and chronic cases of Piles are cured by Dr. Strickland's File Remedy. It is sold by Seth S. Hance, 108 Baltimore st., and Druggists everywhere.
