THE POLICY OF THE ADMINISTRATION

The views put forth by Secretary Harlan the other night, will go far to quiet the apprehensions of many who have thought it possible that President Johnson might, as the newly installed Executive, swerve from the policy so often enunciated whilst he was in subordinate positions. And yet, his action since his accession to the first office in the Government, is only just what might have been expected from his changed relationship to public affairs. As a busy and responsible actor in controlling the treasonable elements in the Senate or in his own State, his conduct must of course have been to some extent influenced by the fierce opposition he encountered, the personal enmities provoked by his course. It was almost as if the public prosecutor of the court should have suddenly been called to take the place of the judge upon the bench, compelling him thus to more carefully weigh all the evidence on both sides of the case, instead of permitting him to make up his opinions and his exhibit of them upon what might be requisite in the single line of the prosecution. In his new position, his past intensity of purpose is contracted with his present moderation; his expressed determination in a certain contingency to "hang" the chief of the rebellion, with his apparent failure of efforts to bring him to trial and punishment. Without knowing the causes which delay proceedings in the case, and with no authorized opinions of his on the subject—so far as is known—to guide those who wish and expect to see treason punished, numbers of such,—of those who have vindicated the cause of the Union, are evidently dissatisfied, and wait impatiently to see how far the policy they hoped for will be vindicated—whether and how far,—in short—he will be true to the opinions he so freely expressed in the past.

Now, let it be remembered by any who cannot wait for time to fully develop the President's intentions, that he is to some extent the interpreter of the policy he has so far pursued—that of moderation; the refusal to recognize the States lately in rebellion as out of the Union. With Mr. Lincoln re elected on that platform and the present Executive along with him, the nation, as represented by the Unionists of the country, endorsed that policy; and how would President Johnson have appeared in the eyes of all as Mr. Lincoln's associate in the Government in the first instance, and his successor in the next, had he turned short around, abandoned the line of policy on which he was elevated to office, and substituted an extreme and violent one of his own? What is he doing but to a great extent falling in with the course of events; accepting the submission so generally tendered by those who recognize their great undertaking as a failure, whilst he leaves to the agencies of trade and of social intercourse, largely, the work of bringing back into proper relationships States lately hostile to the Union or to each other?

It is true that this process is not very striking or noisily demonstrative in its exhibition of statesmanship. In fact, to one who scans the matter aright, nothing can be more simple. It is not accomplished by long debates in Congress, by formidable cabinet councils holden at midnight or at such unseasonable hours as to furnish sensation telegrams for the newspapers; but on the contrary, a plainly dressed gentleman, courteous and quiet in his manners and bearing to a degree, receives day by day crowds of those who in their folly have made themselves obnoxious to the penalties of treason, listens to them, pardons them, gives them a word or two of good advice, and sends them home to report to their neighbors new views of the Government they have fiercely assailed, and new accounts of the man whom having hated with insane virulence, they find to be all that could be hoped for as an unpretending, and courteous and just Chief Magistrate.

Let it be noted, that in all this, the Government, temporarily, although violently disarranged in its movements, is with the aid of quiet yet effective statesmanship readjusting itself; and because it is the case, because it is not done by more formidable agencies, dissatisfaction is evinced! It was disarranged by violence, by convulsions; why should it not be brought back to its old position with a shock? At the rate President Johnson is advancing, he will leave Congress little or nothing to do—"That's what's the matter!" There will be little or no room for long speeches; as little as there now is amongst those of the press getting malcontent, for long editorials. Whilst the surgical experts are preparing their cases of instruments for "capital operations," the patient will have recovered, leaving the world to mourn perhaps the loss of that much of scientific knowledge—that much of statesmanship, whilst the country will really exult at the splendid result so quietly achieved.

Well, for one we shall not complain of any such result. We hope that President Johnson will still go along "reconstructing" in his own way:—that the picture—sublime almost in its simplicity—of the Chief Magistrate of a great nation listening, advising, pardoning, will still be seen. It may serve no purpose as a great "cabinet picture" to adorn the Capitol or the illustrated newspapers; but it is true statesmanship for all that; and it will tell more rapidly and effectively on the destinies of the country, than might perhaps an hundred great "field days" in Congress.

THE TERM OF MILITARY SERVICE.—Major General Terry, commanding the Department of Virginia, having been informed that many of the men serving in the volunteer regiments of his command, suppose themselves to be legally entitled to their discharge on the ground that they enlisted to serve for a fixed time, "or during the war," and that the war has ended, has issued an order announcing that the war has not yet terminated in such a sense as to entitle them to be mustered out, that there are now no organized rebel armies in the field, but by the proclamation of the President of the United States, Virginia and others of the States are still insurrectionary districts; are still without civil government, or with imperfect civil governments, and until civil authority shall be fully restored, and that until those States shall have returned to their former relations to the National Government, it cannot be said that the war has been brought to a close. Officers of every grade are reminded that they are responsible for the discipline and good conduct of their commands, and that to their responsibilities they will be rigidly held. No relaxations of discipline or negligence in the performance of duty will be permitted to pass unnoticed.—Wash. Star.

AFFAIRS IN ALLEGANY COUNTY.—The Cumberland Civilian and Telegraph contains the following:

Shooting Affair.—On Monday last a negro servant belonging in the 1924 Ohio Vols., while getting water at a pump on South Centre street, was taunted by some soldiers in a jocular manner, whereupon he drew a revolver and fired several times into the party. He then walked off some distance out of sight, returned, and fired four more shots, one of which struck a soldier in the region of the groin, making, however, only a slight wound. The darkey was arrested and is now in durance vile, and will be tried by a military court. The civil authorities have demanded the prisoner and claim that he should be tried in a civil court.

The Canal.—The fates are still averse to the successful operation of this thoroughfare, and we have to record another break of rather a serious nature. A few days since some forty or fifty feet of the towpath was washed away to the depth of ten feet below the bed of the canal. This occurred just below Evitt's Creek, only about four miles from this city, and it will require five days to repair it.

Fire.—At 1 o'clock yesterday morning, a fire broke out in the principal building of Withers' Steam Tannery on North Centre street. The flames were subdued in time to save most of the contents of the building. The entire loss will probably not amount to more than $1000, which is fully covered by insurance. The fire was accidental.

AFFAIRS IN ST. MARY'S COUNTY.—We copy the subjoined items from the St. Mary's Gazette:

Homicides, &c.—During the past few weeks the negroes in some sections of this county, have been making rather a fearful abuse of their enlarged legal privileges, and two homicides and a stabbing affray have been the result. About two weeks since, Adam, formerly a slave of John L. Hebb, Esq., and an inoffensive and well behaved negro man, was shot and killed by a Virginia contraband, whilst engaged in the harmless sport of wrestling. The survivor claimed that the shooting was the result of accident; and in the absence of proof to the contrary, such was the finding of the coroner's jury.

A few days afterwards, a negro named Gustavus Langley had a misunderstanding with one of his associates and stabbed and severely wounded him. The injured party is still in a dangerous condition, and doubts are entertained of his recovery.

On Saturday night last, a negro named Dorsey Hebb stabbed and instantly killed his brother, in a family broil, to defend his own life, he states, from a murderous attack by the deceased.

Equine Longevity.—An instance of equine longevity has lately fallen under our notice which we have thought sufficiently remarkable to commit to record. It is that of a bay mare, which recently died upon the estate of a gentleman near this village, in the 32d year of her age. This animal maintained a good, healthy condition to the day of her death, which was caused by accident rather than the infirmities of age. We are informed, that she was constant and faithful to the plough, harness and saddle for more than a quarter of a century, and only ceased to be useful within a few months of her death.

THE MEMPHIS, of this week, contains a full report of an admirable address made by Bishop Janes, of the Methodist Episcopal Church, before the English Wesleyan Conference at his recent session at Birmingh m. In the course of his address, which was a brief review of the history of American Methodism, the Bishop paid this tribute to the institutions of his country:

"In the United States, both in Church and State, we have learned to trust the people, and neither in State nor Church have the people proved themselves unworthy of any great trust committed to them. Laying responsibilities on intelligent masses has the same effect as putting them upon individuals—it makes them conservative."

☞ An awkward looking, stage struck Hoosier went to see one of the New Orleans theatrical managers some time since, and solicited an engagement. "What role would you prefer, my friend?" asked the manager. "Well, I quire," said the would-be Western Roscius. "I ain't partial to any role, no how; corn dodgers is my favorite."

FOR MORE THAN TWENTY YEARS MATHEWS' VENITIAN HAIR DYE has stood the test of trial, and is constantly increasing in public favor.

THE VENETIAN HAIR DYE is the best and cheapest made. Its price is only 75 cts. and each bottle contains double the quantity of dye to those usually sold for $1.

THIS HAIR DYE is manufactured by a peculiar process, which renders it infinitely superior to any dye in market. Being complete in one bottle, no preparation is required, which greatly simplifies the application.

IN USING THIS DYE you avoid that nasty, dead appearance by which dyed hair and whiskers are so readily recognized, when an inferior article has been used, as it produces a perfectly natural color of any shade that is desired, from a rich brown to a jetty, lustrous black, that will not stain, crock, or stain the clothing. Invest 75 cents, and you will be convinced. Sold by all Druggists and Fancy Goods Dealers.

THE NUPTIAL TIE has been described as a knot fixed with the tongue which the teeth cannot unloose. But the teeth themselves, if beautiful by the aid of a dentifrice, are powerful agents in producing the fascination which leads to marriage. PILLS THAT ARE PERFECT.

There are many good pills in the world, we hope, for the sake of humanity, but the pills that are really "perfect," because they are aperient, tonic, laxative, stimulant, counter-irritant, sudorific, and alterative at the same time, are Radway's Regulating Pills, sold everywhere, and for only 25 cents a box. With these rare pills in your house, you can do without purging by means of other pills or powders. You can do without salts, sodas, castor oil, citrate of magnesia, senna and manna, and so on. You want none of these. Radway's Regulating Pills are a substitute for the whole of them, and, what is better, may be taken with safety and comfort by the most delicate woman as well as the robust man. They are the most vegetable preparation existing which will answer in place of calomel, regulating the action of the liver, without making you a life-long victim to the use of mercury like blue pill. They open the bowels in a proper and wholesome manner, being composed of the extracts of suitable medicaments. They do not purge violently, like the drastic pills of aloes or Croton or Harlem oil, or elaterium, by irritating the coats of the intestines. They act upon the "perfect" pill of these, and when taken keep all the secretions in a healthy condition, compel all the organs to do their duty with regularity, purify the blood, and secure that measure of health and blooming, sound health. There is nothing like Radway's Regulating Pills in the cure of all disorders of the stomach, liver, bowels, kidneys and bladder, for the most diseases, headache, costiveness, indigestion, bilious fever, piles and all derangements of the internal viscera. For 25 cents a box you have in those pills a panacea for some of the most painful and dangerous of all diseases. Sold by druggists.

N. B.—Dr. Radway's Pills are only centered in this city at the office of Messrs. Read & Co., and we would caution the public against receiving any other pills, and never take them if they say they are just as good, or the same as Radway's Pills, for they are not. Radway's Pills are mild, soothing and healing in their operation, they purge disease thoroughly from the system. Every family should keep them in the house. aug7-2w
