THE CATTLE PLAGUE—IMPORTANT SUGGESTION.

The Chicago Tribune suggests, that as the season for the annual gatherings of farmers in local and State fairs is at hand, there can be no better topic for early discussion than the dangers of the cattle plague, and precautions to protect our herds. The Tribune adds:

"The importation of cattle from abroad should be stopped at the seaboard. By any arrival from foreign countries where the disease exists, the evil may be developed in this country, and its baleful spread begin. The movement of imported cattle westward may be even more easily prevented. The railroads have a large stake in this matter. Any disaster to the herds of our prairies would tell upon an important branch of their carrying trade. The precaution can very properly come from their combined action, in an agreement among themselves to bring no imported stock westward on any terms. The railroad companies owe this to the cattle trade of the West, and cannot too soon adopt a measure of protection which will be for mutual advantage."

THE BIG HOLE.—The Hancock Oil Company at last accounts were boring away at the depth of about 300 feet. The indications are favorable, and those versed in the formations of Mother earth feel confident of an early strike. The Hancockers are considerably excited, and other companies are beginning to look, Gimlet!—McConnellsburg Republican.

FACE MATTL.—The Haytian steamer Geffrard, has arrived at Beaufort, N. C., where she put in for coal and water on the 1st instant. The Jeffrard is manned by a negro crew, though captain and chief engineer are French. The Geffrard will proceed to Fortress Monroe and this city. She bears despatches for our government.
