Since his majesty's illness, whenever he has taken any rest, it has been usual for the disorder to attack him with redoubled force, and his mental faculties were the more deranged; this, however, we are happy to fay, was not the confequence yesterday, for the king awaking from a sleep of some time, conversed very collectively; and remembering one of the physiof questions, with great correctness and recollection. The king's appetite is extremely good, and his pulse is more regular than hitherto it has been; these circumstances augur much in favour of a restoration, so desirable to the united wishes of the kingdom at large.

A council was held yesterday in the council-office, composed of all the great officers of state, at which the archbishop of Canterbury attended, when the following orders were made:

At the Council Chamber, Whitehall, November 13, 1788.

The Lords of his MAJESTY's most hon. PRIVY-COUNCIL.

IT is this day ordered by their lordships, that his grace the lord archbishop of Canterbury do prepare the form of a prayer to Almighty God, for the recovery of his majesty from the severe illness with which it has pleased the Divine Providence to afflict

And it is hereby further ordered, That his majesty's printer do forthwith print a competent number of copies of the faid form of prayer, that the same may be forthwith fent round and read in the several churches of England and Wales, and the town of Berwick upon Tweed.

STEPHEN COTTRELL.

At the Council CHAMBER, WHITEHALL, Noveme ber 13, 1788.

The Lords of his MAJESTY's most hon. PRIVY-COUNCIL.

IT is this day ordered by their lordships, that every minister and preacher, as well of the established church in that part of Great-Britain called Scotland, as those of the episcopal communion, protected and allowed by an act passed in the tenth year of her late majesty queen Anne, cap. 7, entitled, "An act to prevent the disturbing those of the episcopal communion in that " part of Great-Britain called Scotland, in the exer-" cise of their religious worship, and in the use of " the liturgy of the church of England; and for re-" pealing the act passed in the parliament of Scotland, " entitled, An act against irregular baptisms and mar-" riages," do at some time, during the exercise of the divine service in such respective church, congregation or affembly, put up their prayers to Almighty God for the recovery of his majesty, from the levere illness with which it hath pleased the Divine Providence to afflict him.

STEPHEN COTTRELL.

It was then also determined that the parliament should assemble on the day already appointed (the 20th instant) and proceed to the dispatch of business. It is therefore probable that-will at present be appointed; and, if it should be necessary, it will not take place until after the assembling of the parliament, and at that time there is a reasonable hope that our gracious sovereign will then be able to wield the sceptre.

Notice of the meeting of parliament will this day be fent to all the members of both houses—couched somewhat in the following terms:

"That the melancholy continuation of the king's indif-" position renders it dubious whether there will be a " possibility of his majesty's further prorogaing the " parliament-if there should not, it must necessarily assemble on the 20th instant, your attendance is there-" fore required, &c. &c.
