A planter in Arkansas recently refused to recognize the Emancipation act, and said he would not give up any property belonging to his former slaves. A circular from the Freedmen's Bureau, endorsed by the Provost Marshal, was furnished to a colored man, as follows:—"The bearer of this circular will be allowed to take from the premises where the family resided everything that belongs to him, and any person interfering with him will be held accountable for the same." Upon presenting this to his former master, the planter read it, and endorsed it thus:—"The bearer of this circular I consider my property still, having seen no enactment of the Federal Congress nor our State Government, authorizing any one to demand him of me, nor anything furnished him while with me." The obstinate individual was afterwards arrested, lectured, and dismissed with a fine of $50.

A Paris correspondent of the Xenophora of Marseilles relates the following anecdote of Abd-el-Kader:

"During his recent stay in Paris the Emir went to Versailles to see the paintings representing the war in Africa. When passing before that representing the capture of his Smala, one of the persons of his suite constantly placed himself so as to prevent the Emir from seeing what was likely to excite painful feelings. Abd-el-Kader begged the person in question to cease this manœuvre, which he did not understand. The person then stood back, and the Emir, at once discovering the cause of the interference, turned to his suite and said, 'Ah! gentlemen, if I had painters in Africa I should have had my pictures too.'"

A few days since, says the Chattanooga (Tenn.) Gazette, an ancient gentlewoman of color came into an office of the Freedman's Bureau, and inquired if that was the place where they kept the Freedman's Bureau. The gentlemanly clerk was momentarily nonplussed, but instantly recovering his wonted gravity, blandly replied in the affirmative. Dinah, with an air of mystery, and speaking in a confidential whisper, said: "I have come for my bureau, now give me a pretty large one, with a glass top; I have a war-to-start at home, but it is too small to put my bribs in."

The Liverpool Post says: "That position of the Liverpool dock space which was formerly almost monopolized by the traders between Liverpool and the cotton ports of the South, but which during the war was almost deserted, has at last assumed its wonted business aspect, and is now brisk with labor. The trade between the Mersey and the long sealed ports of the South is to opened with a spirit that augurs well for the future."

George Johnson, a colored local Methodist preacher, from Worcester, Mass., with his wife and baggage, took seats in the ladies' car on the Richmond and Petersburg road on Monday, and were ordered out by the conductor. George refused to go, the police were called in and the colored transgressor ejected, with directions to take the car for that class. An appeal to the court for damages is the result of the ejection.

Among the property are boxes marked for Gen. Sedgwick, killed in the Wilderness battle; Gen. Bayard, killed at the first Fredericksburg battle, Gen. Bleaker, cavalry; and numerous other officers of lesser note.

Theodore Ahrend, who had probably no superior in this country as a performer on the violincello, died at his residence in Philadelphia, on Friday last, having been ill for a long time with consumption. He was a native of Germany, a Jew, and his age was thirty-five years. He had resided in Philadelphia the greater part of the last fifteen years, having for a time sojourned in Baltimore.

Brigham Young some time since asked the King of the Sandwich Islands to permit him to send Mormon missionaries to the Islands. To this the Sandwich Islands Secretary of State replies that the Mormon tenets are subversive of good government and in violation of the laws of the Kingdom, and that efforts to establish a colony of the Saints there will not be tolerated.

A meeting of the capitalists and merchants of Richmond was held in their City Hall on Monday night for the purpose of organizing a national express company, with a capital of $500,000, shares limited to $100. $154,100 were subscribed at the meeting. It is proposed to raise $2,000,000 in Richmond and the remainder in the Northern States.

A meeting was held at Fredericksburg last Saturday by the officers, soldiers and loyal citizens for the purpose of devising measures for the erection of a suitable monument on that battle field. Arrangements were made for holding a mass meeting on the field on the 12th of October present for the purpose of organizing a Monument Association.

A man in Carlisle, Scotland, was killed a short time since by bees. He was at work near a hive, when the insects came out and settled on the tree, completely covering it, and in a few minutes afterwards the unfortunate man was found lying on his face, quite dead.

A letter from England says trips to the United States, on the part of the English people of the better classes, seem likely to increase, many persons, since the close of the war, having manifested a disposition to visit the country and judge for themselves.

An battery was going into camp at New Haven, an old battery horse grazing in a lot hearing a bugle call, jumped the fence, took his old position in line, and marched into camp with the battery. So much for force of habit.

The Louisville Democrat says that F. and G. W. Brown, of Alexandria, Kentucky, have absconded, carrying with them about one hundred thousand dollars. They had received the money on deposit from various citizens of Campbell county.

The Chicago Post says: The drills and martial exercises of the Fenians in Chicago are each day becoming more extensive and frequent, and would seem to indicate that the affairs of the Society are rapidly approaching a crisis.

The Canadians are in ecstacies over the fact that, at a recent private meeting held in that city recently, a gold dollar was placed in the contribution box. They accept it as evidence that special prosperity of the millennium is approaching.

A gentleman of Hartford, Md., got a beating in his car. The unfortunate man suffered the most excruciating pains for a time, but was finally relieved by having the "musicians" filed with coarse, which had the effect of drowning out the unbearable pain.

A lady, who is rather too ambitious in the use of words, said in allusion to the speech of one of the newly elected members of Parliament, "it was very spirited and classical in style, but rather too dead claptrapandum."

A pretty accurate estimate of the defalcations of Edward B. Ketchum has now been arrived at, and it foots up the enormous amount of four million two hundred thousand dollars.

Candidates for Congress in Virginia are much exercised in regard to the oath required to take a seat in the House of Representatives. It stands directly in the way of many of those who are named for office.

It took a fast youth just five weeks to finish a fortune of $200,000 in Paris.

OLD THINGS HAVE PASSED AWAY, AND ALL THINGS HAVE BECOME NEW.

This saying was not more true of the new era that began eighteen hundred years ago, than of our present political condition. During the spring of 1861, the majority of the Southern States attempted a second American revolution. In regard to the propriety of that attempt, the best that can be said is that the whole people who have survived it have sworn not to attempt it again. That is the proper close of the past record.

When some of those who huzzahed for the men and the attempt, come to the about face, and coolly informed the victorious party that they were never in earnest, and are glad they got whipped; those whom they thus inform do not believe any such thing. Let the past be past. Let us promise better and act more loyal in future.

But aside from those who are ungraceful in disaster, and undignified in defeat; the weak-minded who are much braver among their friends at street corners, than they ever were on the field—there is a second class, who appear to have mistaken notions in regard to the true state of existing affairs.

They look upon the performances of the past four years much in the same light as they would upon a long and rather exciting game of ball. The other side played rather the best, and having won all the points and got the stations, the game lost its interest. So they coolly throw down the bat and say "I aint a playing!" To their utter amazement, the other side prefer to hold the ground, and refuse to give up the advantages gained.

Certain property called negroes, and some queer things called "duties," "taxes," "public property," "State rights," "constitutions," "laws," etc., were staked by us and played for. We lost!

Some of us like children who give dimes for candy and have eaten the sugar plums, now want to get the dimes back again!

We kept up a nominal war with the United States army, and an actual war of speculation and conscript hunting with ourselves—until the day of concession and compromise was past; and now that we are overcome, at a cost to the Union of thousands of millions of debt, and half a million lives, many are astonished that our friends from the North do not go home and leave us to our State-rights and Georgia platforms as before!

The conquerors refuse to consider the whole thing in the light many desire; and therefore dissatisfied parties exhaust their dictionaries for such terms as "Military Despotism," of which select phrases a choice vocabulary can be collected in many assemblies of heroes who have sworn to support the "Union," and the "proclamations."

We presume that a player who stakes his last dime and loses, and then bawls about the wickedness of his opponent, would be laughed at as a fool, who was at least particeps criminis;—and all the sane ones among us were aware that when we staked our rights, our privileges and empire on the card of separate nationality, we ran the risk of loss, as both players never win. All the spectators seem impressed with the idea that we lost, and some are impressed with the magnanimity of our opponent, who offers to refund part of the stake, upon our oath not to play any more!

Hereafter the game will not be for empire, but for exile, prisons, and executions.

God send us contentment and humility of mind, to say amid his judgment—"Thy will be done."

"Perhaps our hearts had waxed so strong,
Twere meet to send distress.
The contrite spirit God alone
Will condescend to bless."

"Perhaps if humbly we implore
Deliverance from his hand,
'Twill please" Our Father "to restore
Again our happy land."

This being the proper spirit in which to meet our destiny, and the truth of our utter loss so plain—what is the inference? Simply this. The grand dream of Nationality having dissolved into thin air, things that rested on that platform perished with it. The Mississippi State Convention was so satisfied of this, that it has thought proper to re-affirm the validity of marriages contracted during the war.

All governors, senators, legislators, judges magistrates, clerks—by the voluntary action of the people—ceased to be officers of the United States, or of any State of the United States; and for four years did not profess to do any official act in any State of any government of that name.

Are acts valid under the Constitution and laws of the United States, that never professed to be so? As there is no Confederate Government there are therefore no officers of it States; and as it never was established its officers never had authority to establish anything; nor by the law of nations did they exist, more than the kings and warriors of the theatre, whose title and tinsel crowns never are worn to break fast next morning.

Money was to be redeemed "six months after a treaty of peace." It probably will be at that time

There is now a city law to fine men and boys who does not appear under arms for guard duty, but the citizen lacks the arms and the city guard is well guarded! Our law books teem with resolutions of "confidence" in the ex Administration. Its late officers do not share that confidence. Our courts confiscated Union property and debts. Their judges now desire to save their own. These are the chances of the game called war. We played high; let us quit and be thankful that we lost no more.

Success is the political criterion of right. The trial is over, and we by the result are pronounced wrong. We may not take advantage of the wrong to benefit ourselves. Congress, Conventions, and the courts under the United States Government will give us all the equity to be found in our case.

The precedents of the common law in such cases, speak of pardons and amnesty, but not rights. A quiet and graceful yielding to inevitable results, an observance of oaths in letter and spirit, and a dignified and manly acceptance of things we cannot help, will soon restore us trial by jury, habeas corpus, and members in Congress. The contrary will prevent them forever.—Augusta (Ga.) Chronicle and Sentinel

WASHINGTON COUNTY AFFAIRS.—The Hagerstown Odd Fellow contains the following:

Sad Accident.—On Monday morning last, 18th, Mr. Lewis Smith, of this town, met with an accident which came very near costing him his life. It appears he was about riding out of town, when his horse becoming unmanageable, ran down Main street in a frightful speed, and upon reaching the premises of Mr. James McIlvaigh, he made a sudden turn, which caused Mr. Smith to be thrown with great force upon the ground, and in the fall had his hip bone badly fractured, besides sustaining other bodily injury of a serious character. Dr. Smith was near by and rendered him immediate professional aid.

Ducked by a Horse.—On Tuesday of last week, while R. Jesse Keller, Esq., a warm friend of ours, and a most worthy young former citizen of Williamsport district, in this county, was in the act of placing a fly-net on one of horses, the animal became frightened, made a sudden wheel, and kicked at Mr. K. with great force, striking him with both feet in the pit of the stomach, and knocking him several feet across the stable. Strange to relate, Mr. Keller sustained no further injury by this one horse power demonstration than that of having his abdomen beautifully branded with a pair of horse shoes, with nail head accompaniments.

Encounter with a Vicious Dog.—On Wednesday of last week, the 13th instant, while a son of Mr. Jacob Funk, residing in Cacapon township, in this county, was endeavoring to chain a vicious dog belonging to the premises, the unruly mastiff resisted, pounced upon the boy, caught him by the right arm, and dreadfully lacerated it from the elbow down to the wrist. Mr. Funk hastened to his son's rescue, and striking the dog a heavy blow, the fierce brute let go his hold, but immediately fell upon Mr. F., caught his arm, and bit him severely. It was with the greatest difficulty that the enraged dog was made to relinquish his hold of Mr. F., but after a severe struggle he was conquered by the strong arm of his master and other members of his household.

A Harrisburg paper tells of a man who has failed in business four times; was burned out three times; was robbed three times; was upset in a stage coach and thrown down an embankment a distance of sixty feet; fell headforemost through a hatchway in a store at Reading; has been married three times, and is the father of twenty-one children. He "still lives," and is engaged in business in Harrisburg.

Timbs, caused by the giving way of a scaffold, thereby precipitating him to the pavement, bruising and cutting him in a very painful manner. He was taken to his residence, next door, where he received the medical assistance of Dr. Cockerill.

Sale of a Store and Dwelling.—Col. S. H. Gover, auctioneer, sold yesterday at public auction on the premises, a lot of ground situated on South Paca street, between Little Green and Warren streets, having a front of 13½ feet and depth of 67½ feet. AMUSEMENTS

Arrah na Pogue.—So many grand and dazzling effects are blended in the production of this drama, now being produced with such signal success at Holliday Street Theatre, as to leave us at a loss, as did the lee Witch, to know upon which to touch. The scenery is gorgeous, the musical effects elegant, the different characters well sustained, and its general numerous exciting incidents presented with a great deal of its original pathos. It will no doubt be a pleasing announcement that a matinee is to be given this afternoon at three o'clock at the Holiday, at which time Arrah na Pogue will be again presented, which will afford an opportunity for those debarred of the privilege during the week, to witness this great production. It will also be produced again in the evening.

Mr. Robert Heller.—The pleasing entertainments given by this distinguished performer at the Front Street Theatre are announced to close this evening, after a very successful run of three weeks, exhibiting his wonderful performances and feats of magic to thousands of the élite of our citizens, his wonderful and astonishing performances baffling the minds of even the most credible minded. Two performances will be given to day, one at three o'clock and the other in the evening. The one in the afternoon being the only day performance given during the engagement of Mr. Heller, will no doubt be taken advantage of by those not having the privilege of attending in the evening. Full not to see those who are there before they are withdrawn and the opportunity passes away.

Maryland Institute.—The great combination appears this afternoon and to night for the last time. On Monday they appear in Washington. All the artists appear this afternoon, and children will be admitted for fifteen cents. Let everybody who has not seen this great entertainment be present this afternoon or to night.

Jarvis Spencer vs George Prestman. The action in this case is for alleged damages sustained by plaintiff by the defendant's refusal to take the property alleged to have been purchased by defendant from S. H. The property seems to have been knocked down by the auctioneer at a bid of $100 per acre by Mr. Prestman. The property was purchased on representation that it was to be clear of all incumbrance, which not proving to be the case, the purchaser refused to take it.—The damages claimed by plaintiff is $11 000. On trial; not concluded. Messrs. Grason and Spencer for plaintiff; Messrs. Gittings and Nelson and —— Prestman for defendant.
