TO THE PATRONS OF THE BALTIMORE CLIPPER.

After this issue, the Baltimore Clipper as a newspaper will cease to exist. Essentially a political paper, and in the past complicated with principles and parties which have long had no being, it must give place to something more in accordance with the demands of the hour, the new epoch upon which the State and the nation are now entering. For the support accorded to it whilst in his hands, by many generous friends, the proprietor returns his most grateful thanks; and in view of a new and more extensive newspaper enterprise, he proposes to carry out in that publication, in the way of advertising and subscriptions, the obligations incurred in this. As he trusts there are few or none of his old patrons who will object to going along with him into a more promising field of operations, he will continue all subscriptions and advertisements until formally notified that the change is not acceptable, and finally in taking leave of the Clipper, they will doubtless join with him in a sigh of regret, that a gallant little craft which has so long kept the seas under adverse gales, has at last accomplished its mission, and now ends its career. WM. WALES.

BALTIMORE

DAILY COMMERCIAL.

The undersigned will commence on Monday next the publication in Baltimore of a first class MERCANTILE and POLITICAL JOURNAL, under the above title, to be devoted mainly to the growing interests of Maryland, in every department of COMMERCE and INDUSTRY. Independent of cliques or parties, it will take broad and national views for the maintenance of the Union, and the advocacy of everything that can make us once more a happy and united people, whilst it will neglect nothing that can advance the State in all that constitutes the greatness of a free commonwealth. MANUFACTURING, MINING, and AGRICULTURAL interests, EDUCATIONAL and kindred objects will receive a large share of attention; and reports, in every department of interest to business men, will be made AS FULL AS POSSIBLE, so that none will resort to its columns without finding that information needful to guide them in the daily revolutions of trade.

As the enterprise will require several experienced journalists and a heavy outlay of capital to insure its success, it is hoped that all interested in the advancement of the city and State will give it an earnest support. To this end, those who purpose sustaining the enterprise will oblige us by handing in their subscriptions and advertisements at once.

THE RICHMOND AND BALTIMORE STEAMERS.—The various lines of steamers between Baltimore and this city have, we are glad to know, met with marked success, and although there are now four lines, with fifteen steamers, yet all are doing well, and are taxed to their utmost. In anticipation of the probable increase of trade, new docks are being built, wharves extended, freight depots erected, and, in fact, a general extension of business facilities. Richmond is alive again and no mistake. Every steamer comes to us laden with merchandise, and a visit to any of our first class business houses will convince the most casual observer that trade is reviving and increasing with most gratifying rapidity. A new steamer, to run between this city and Baltimore, is now being built at Chester, Pa., for the Old Bay Line Company.

This new boat will take the place of the Louisiana, which is to be laid up for thorough repair and refitting. She will be called the Thomas Kelso. Her dimensions are two hundred and thirty-five feet in length, thirty-five feet breadth of beam, eleven feet hold, and about one thousand one hundred tons burthen. She will be provided with excellent passenger accommodations for upwards of three hundred passengers, and with eighty finely finished state rooms. Captain George W. Russell will have command of her. This company has also recently placed on the route a fine steamer to connect at Norfolk for Matthews county, Va., and Cherrystone, which will prove of great accommodation to the residents of that section of the country, which has heretofore had none other than sailing communication.—The New Line has also placed the fine steamer "Mattano" upon the route from Norfolk to Mathews county, Cherrystone and other points.—Richmond Republic.

☞ In Italy there is a fierce contest on foot between the press and the army. No fewer than one hundred challenges have been sent by as many officers to the editor of a popular newspaper, for daring to call in question the proceedings of one of their own body. This state of things is said to be encouraged by the ministry and tolerated by the King.

☞ The broom corn crop, now being harvested, is one of the best ever raised in the Connecticut valley.

A RUMOR ABROAD.

The San Francisco Courier has the following about the Shenandoah:

"A terrible corsair, or pirate, which ever it may be called, having need of supplies, sent a ship to San Francisco to procure them. The undertaking was successful, and the ship, loaded with provisions and everything of which the Shenandoah might stand in need, then obtained a clearance for Victoria. The whole was done quietly, discreetly, and it appears successfully—if we are to believe the American journals. It has also been stated that the vessel cleared for Victoria has not arrived at that port. These stories appear to be incredible, yet nobody can impugn their correctness."

☞ We are obliged to Mr. John A. Barnes, of the Raid Express, for late Southern papers.
