

and reflect that amidst the scenes which it affords the Maritain youth, often reclined unconscious of his future fame, or to mule on the banks of Avon, where young Shakespeare strayed, would by many be thought a sufficient recompence for a voyage across the ocean.

Next in time and in value to childhood is youth, in which the bosom still retains a portion of its serenity. To enjoy these hours whilst they remain, it is necessary that we should not let them pass by in idleness; and I hope that those of my readers, with whom it is not too late, will bethink themselves of the necessity of proper employment in their youth, to which in their age they may look back with pleasure.

As the following lines, which I found in looking over some juvenile papers are apposite to a part of this week's subject, I shall insert them.

Al! why so far, so quickly gone,
Have the bright days of pleasure flown?
Where are the scenes so gay that smil'd
And cheer'd my bosom when a child?
To woe'd thought my soul retires,
And fondly seeks her old desires,
Which one alone by fancy fram'd,
As every moment's wishes claim'd,
Spontaneous came in transient throng,
And bide the hours glide soft along.
But now no more these forms appear;
Cold reason holds her empire there,
And as she spreads her sober sway,
See fancy her retreats obey.
Tis thus we pass the morning dream,
And meditate the shining scheme
Which fiction offers to our eyes:—
We wake, and straight the vision flies.
Ye happy times unharmed by care!
Ye youthful days for ever fair!
Ye scenes where sprightly pleasures dwell!
Farewel, for ever! Oh farewel!
Through darker paths I take my way,
Where dangers and where doubts dismay,
And anxious fears my peace molest,
And hope deludes the eager breast.
Since then, O time, thou bid'st me leave
All that these fleeting moments give,
No longer will the days remain,
When fancy held unbounded reign,
Oh do not this one boon refuse,
Still leave me friendship, and the muse!

RAN AWAY from the subscriber, living in South river neck, a negro man named GEORGE B, about twenty-nine or thirty years of age, five feet ten inches high, large featured, especially the feet, a remarkable good set of teeth, with a simple smiling countenance when spoken to; had on and took with him two osnabrig shirts, two white ditto, one pair trousers, one black coat, and red jacket; he has relations in and near Baltimore town, and has once been to Philadelphia; it is therefore presumed he will make that way; it is probable, if apprehended, he may say he belongs to the estate of JAMES MAYO, of said county, having formerly lived in that family. Whoever takes up, and secures said runaway in any goal, so that I get him again, shall receive SIX DOLLARS, and if brought home all reasonable charges.

RAN AWAY on the 26th instant, and was seen in Annapolis the same afternoon, a negro lad named DAVID, about seventeen years old, had on only an osnabrig shirt and trousers, the trousers narrow and patched in the crotch and knees, his wool is neither long nor short, he is not so black as some, is rather mottled, has a small scar on his chin, and is a great liar; he may say he is free, but is not, when any one talks to him he is apt to turn himself sideways and look down; it is probable he may change his name. Whoever takes up the said lad, and secures him so that I get him again, shall have FOUR DOLLARS, and if brought home one shilling and six pence per mile. I live near South river ferry.
