REPORT. Adjutant-General's Office. Annapolis, June 26th, 1798.

HEREAS the commander in chief did, on the 20th day of February, 1795, by his ge-neral orders, direct that there be a full and complete. return of all the militie of this stare, made and delivered at this office, on or before the 20th of June then next, and that the faid return Thould be agreeably to the forms furnished by the adjutant-general. ion, at twelve o'clock at noon, at the city tavern in In pursuance of these orders, the adjutant-general did, on the 20th day of April following, address the majorgenerals of the feveral divisions, and forwarded to them the necessary blanks for the purpose of facilitating the returns agreeably to the faid orders of the commander in chief, and the act of the general affembly of this ilate.

Few returns being made, the adjutant-general by directions of the commander in chief, did, on the 29th of November, 1796, require of the major-generals, information of the cause or causes which had, or might then exist, to prevent in for extraordinary a degree, the returns from being made.

Several similar directions were thought necessary by the commander in chief, and urged by the adjutantgeneral to the major-generals to expedite a complete return of the miliria.

In this fituation was the militia, on the 7th of August, 1797, when in consequence of a communi-cation from the secretary of war, requiring the detachment pursuant to the act of congress, for the organizing, arming and equiping 5262 men frem this state, to be in readiness to march at a moment's warning, the commander in chief judged it necessary to order that the adjutant-general should lay before the executive of the flate, without delay, a full return of the militia. This order was also immediatel, made known to the major generals.

On the rath of the same month, the commander in chief ordered that the adjutant-general should call on the commanders of division to furnish without delay their quota required by the prefident of the U. ited States, of this state, and agreeably to the proportions fixed by the executive of Maryland. These olders, and the proportions of the quota required from the inveral divisions were also torwarded, with other communications to the different commanders of di-

The adjutant-general, in obedience to the orders of the commander in chief, on the 23d of September, 1797, requested of the mejor-generals, that they would, as early as possible, forward to this office re-turns of the drafts in their respective divisions, mentioning the names, and ranks of the officers thereunto belonging. And on the fecond day of December, 1707, the adjutant-general by farther orders from the commander in chief, repeated the request to the major-generals, that he might be enabled to give the necessary information to the commander in chief, and to the president of the United States. Some of the officers have complied with these general orders.

GENERAL ORDERS.

The preceding orders in various inflances having been ineffectually repeated, it is not without fome degree of concern, that the commander in chief, from a sense of public duty, is constrained once more to renew them. He is sensible of the difficulties to be encountered in effecting their execution, arising from the manifold defects in the militia fyflem, but be had flattered himfelf that the zeal of the officers would have furmounted them long before this time.

As the aspect of our public affairs is extremely hollife, and as a speedy call may be made for this corps of the militia, it is earnestly pressed by the commader in chief, upon all the officers, especially those whose immediate duty it is to exert themselves in completing the drafts, to as to be ready at a moment's warning.

The major-generals of the second and third divifions are directed to Rate to the commander in chief the causes of delay. In their absence out of the state, the eldest brigadier will attend to the discharge of this

The adjutant-general will attend to the foregoing orders.

By order of the commander in chief, HENRY CARBERY, Adjutant-general.
