of England—first American edition.
These invaluable relics of the piety of the reformers, owing to the difficulty heretofore of procuring them, are in the possession of but few—they are now rendered accessible to all who are desirous of obtaining them. The first part of the Homilies appeared in the reign of Edward the sixth, and is supposed to have been written by Cranmer, assisted by Latimer. The second part, published early in the reign of queen Elizabeth, is attributed chiefly to Bishop Jewell. A copy of these homilies was given to every parish priest in the kingdom, who was commanded to read them diligently and distinctly, that they might be understood by the people. These discourses have ever been considered as containing the most unexceptionable summary of doctrine, and the richest treasures of scriptural knowledge and genuine piety. 3 leading from McGruder's Tavern, by BOOK, used as a lancet case, in which is a thumb lancet; also containing a note on the Bank of Virginia for fifty dollars, and a small piece of court plaster recollected. It probably might have dropped under a large Cherry Tree, standing near the road on the south side. Any person delivering the above pocket book, and contents, to Wm. Parnell at the City Hotel, in Annapolis, will receive ten dollars reward.

WASHINGTON CITY, JULY 14.
We this day lay before the public, documents lately received from England, relative to the killing and wounding of the American citizens imprisoned at Dartmoor.

Plymouth, 26th April, 1815.
We, the undersigned commissioners, appointed on behalf of our respective governments, to inquire into an report upon the unfortunate occurrence of the 6th of April inst. at Dartmoor prison; having carefully perused the proceedings of the several courts of inquiry instituted immediately after that event, by orders of admiral Sir John T. Duckworth and major general Brown, respectively, as well as the depositions taken at the coroner's inquest upon the bodies of the prisoners, who lost their lives upon that melancholy occasion; upon which inquest the jury found a verdict of justifiable homicide; proceeded immediately to the examination upon oath in the presence of one or more of the magistrates of the vicinity, of all the witnesses, both American and English, who offered themselves for that purpose; or who could be discovered as likely to afford any material information on the subject, as well as those who had been previously examined before the coroner, as otherwise, to the number in the whole of about 80.—We further proceeded to a minute examination of the prisons, for the purpose of clearing up some points, which, upon the evidence alone were scarcely intelligible; obtaining from the prisoners, and from the officers of the depot, all the necessary assistance and explanation; and premising, that we have been from necessity compelled to draw many of our conclusions from statements and evidence highly contradictory, we do now make upon the whole proceedings the following report:

During the period which has elapsed since the arrival in this country of the account of Ghent, an increased degree of restlessness and impatience of confinement appears to have prevailed amongst the American prisoners at Dartmoor, which, though not exhibited in the shape of any violent excesses, had been principally indicated by threats of breaking out, if not soon released.

On the 4th of this month in particular, only two days previous to the events which are the subject of this inquiry, a large body of the prisoners rushed into market square, from whence, by the regulations of the prison, they are excluded, demanding bread, instead of biscuit, which had on that day been issued by the officers of the depot; their demands however having been then almost immediately complied with, they returned to their own yards, and the employment of force on that occasion became unnecessary.

On the evening of the 6th, about 6 o'clock, it was clearly proven to us, that a breach or hole had been made in one of the prison walls, sufficient for a full sized man to pass, and that others had been commenced in the course of the day near the same spot, though never completed.

That a number of the prisoners were over the railing erected to prevent them from communicating with the sentinels on the walls, which was of course forbidden by the regulations of the prison, and that in the space between the railing and those walls they were tearing up pieces of turf, and wantonly peiting each other in a noisy and disorderly manner.

That a much more considerable number of the prisoners was collected together at that time, in one of their yards near the place where the breach was effected, and that although such collection of prisoners was not unusual at other times (the Gambling Tables being commonly kept in that part of the yard) yet, when connected with the circumstance of the breach, and at the time of the day, which was after the hour the signal for the prisoners to retire to their respective prisons had ceased to sound, it became necessary to send a party of soldiers to the yard, and to the railing, to prevent the prisoners from passing the railing, and to

with the sentinels on the walls,
disorderly manner.
