MARRIED: On Sunday evening the 22d ultimo, at Richlands, the seat of William Campbell, Esq. by the Rev. Frederick W. Hatch, the Rev. Henry L. Davis, of Annapolis, to Miss Jane B. Winter, of Frederick county.

Since the choice of Electors of the Senate, the cat has been again let out of the bag, as the saying is. Influential demagogues have openly and publicly declared themselves opposed to permitting poor men to vote any longer, and most clamorously threatened to call a new convention, to change the constitution, in such manner, as should not only exclude those votes, but also alter the representation of the counties, giving a sweeping influence to Baltimore, and reducing the small counties to insignificance.

State of Maryland. In Council, September 10, 1816. To ALL WHOM IT MAY CONCERN, WILLIAM DAWSON, Esquire, having produced to the Governor an Executive signed by the President of the United States, and sealed with the seal of the said States, recognizing him as Consul from his Britannic Majesty for the State of Maryland.

James Madison, President of the U. S. of America. To ALL WHOM IT MAY CONCERN, WILLIAM DAWSON, Esquire, having produced to me his commission as Consul of his Britannic Majesty for the State of Maryland, I do hereby recognize him as such, and declare him free to exercise and enjoy such functions, powers and privileges as are allowed to the Consuls of friendly powers, between whom and the U. States there is no particular agreement for the regulation of the consular functions.

By the President, James Monroe, Secretary of State. Ordered, that the foregoing be published eight times in the Maryland Gazette at Annapolis, the Federal Gazette and Telegraph at Baltimore, the Fredericktown Herald, and the People's Monitor, at Exeter, Maryland.

absolutely indispensable, in countering the impetuous efforts of the demagogic leaders. We repeat it—the Democrats most probably may be able to attract more newly manufactured votes than they did before, because the general government & the candidates for president, have a more immediate interest in the elections, which are to follow, and because the lapse of a month may give equal attention to those who were too tardily placed in ambush to come out at it before.

Whether the Democrats held their promised convention at Baltimore or Baltimore, whether it be desired to be called a Mutual Convention or a Republican Convention, we make no scruple but they will have, in the important business to do. After they have, in their imaginations, infused the Liberator's Senate; deprived poor men of their right of voting, disfranchised the small counties, made Baltimore the permanent seat of government, with power to elect half the legislature, to whom the rest, they will have performed, but a small part of their task. Several new provisions will become necessary, being loudly called for by the state of things, but to continue in force only as long as the federalists may ultimately keep the reins of government in hand, the doings of the said Convention to the contrary notwithstanding.

For some years ago the fashionable opinion and practice too, of the democrats was that though judges were independent and held their offices during good behaviour, according to the provisions of the constitution, and therefore you could not legally take the judge from the office without conviction of misbehaviour, you might safely and properly take the office from the judge by recalling or re-modelling the judiciary. The Convention will probably enact and declare that experience has shown this doctrine to be a fallacy, sophism and untrue refinement, never hereafter to be repeated, and particularly never to be brought to bear upon any democratic chancellor or judge or clerk of a court of common law; or other officer whose tenure is not during pleasure.

It will also be recollected, that in times past the charter of Baltimore was altered to suit the transient views of the popular leaders, which has unfortunately proved the means of subjecting the enterprising and opulent city to the capricious ferocity of mobs, and of polluting it with civil blood. The Convention will probably provide that the charter and every clause and article thereof, as it now stands, is as sacred and unalterable as Magna Charta. The present districts of the state provided for the election of members of congress and presidential electors, have for a course of years, deprived, as was intended when they were projected, the federalists of any considerable share in those appointments, though their power in the state is now found to be as 7 to 3, compared with that of the democrats. The convention might declare, that the consideration of any change of this Gerry-mandering system should be postponed till they, or their constituents returned to power, if ever that should be, before the end of the world.

Ward Elections. Yesterday (the 27th Sept.) an election was held in this city and the Liberties, for officers to superintend the approaching general election. The result is such as must be gratifying to every true friend of rational liberty, to sound morals, and civil order. Of the 14 wards into which the city is divided, 11 have given federal majorities. In Southward and the Northern Liberties a similar result has crowned the exertions of the federalists.

We hail this success, at the primary election of a certain number of a signal and overwhelming majority at the approaching general election; as well as a strong indication, that the returning spirit of the people, will at no very remote period, rescue the state from the odium of a foul and wicked democratic reign. Earthquake at Montevideo. A letter from Montevideo, dated the 15th ult. says, "This morning, soon after 3 o'clock, there was a severe shock of an earthquake, or rather two shocks—the second immediately following the first, and was infinitely the most severe. Although no injury was done in town, I doubt if the houses would have stood a third as the second was. The weather had been dull and hazy the day previous, and in the evening, soon after the shock there fell some rain, accompanied with a fresh breeze. From the rocking of my house I judge it to have passed from the S. E. to the north-west."

From South-America. Capt. Cook, of the brig Active, (arrived at Salem on Tuesday,) from Rio Janeiro, sailed thence the 4th of July. The expedition from Rio, departed about the middle of June, before Capt. Cook arrived there, consisting of ships of the line, frigates, &c. with, as was stated, about 10,000 troops on board—its destination said to be Monte-Video; but it was understood they would stop at St. Catherine's, and remain there through the rainy season or winter; & go on again sometime in September.

The season had been violently tempestuous, and one frigate had been disabled as to be towed back by an American whaler on-board this frigate it was said there were not more than a dozen real seamen. The English and Americans who witnessed the ordinary fitting of the ships, and the inexperienced and unskillful crews with which they were manned, had little faith in the expedition accomplishing its design; the noise of its preparation, however, had already produced the effect of a stagnation of business in the ports of the river Plata.

Capt. Cook sailed from Rio in company with a squadron consisting of a Portuguese 74 and frigate, and a Spanish frigate, conveying to Europe the two Portuguese Princesses betrothed to King Ferdinand and his brother.

THEATRE PUFFING. The following critique, from an English paper, is a grand burlesque upon dramatic flourishes—It is graduated to suit the style of exaggerated descriptions of men and things so common in this country and Europe.

Yesterday Mrs. ——— about whom all the world has been talking, exposed her beautiful, adamantine, soft and lovely person, for the first time, in the Theatre Royal, in the bewitching, melting, and all fearful character of Isabella. This house was crowded with hundreds more than it could hold, with thousands of admiring spectators, that went away without a sigh. This extraordinary phenomenon of tragic excellence, this star of Melpomene, this comet of the stage, this sun in the firmament of the muses, this moon of blank verses this queen and princess of tears, this despot of the poisoned bowl, this empress Rusty Fusty of the pistol and dagger, exceeded expectation went beyond belief, and soared above all description—She was nature; she was the most exquisite work of art; she was the very daisy, primrose, tuberosa, wall flower, and cauliflower too, sweet brier, furze blossom, gilly-flower, and rosemary.

In short, she was the very bouquet of Parnassus. Several fainted before the curtain drew up—the very fiddlers in the orchestra, blubbered like hungry children for their bread and butter; 109 ladies fainted; 46 went into fits and 95 had strong hysterics. The world will hardly credit the assertion, that 14 children, five old women, a one handed sailor, and six common council men, were actually drowned in the inundation of tears, that flowed from the galleries and boxes, to increase the briny flood in the pit. The water was 3 feet deep and the people that were obliged to stand upon the benches, were in that situation up to their anoles in tears. Nature, surely, in one of her human leisure hours, in one of her smiling days, in one of her sorrowing years, made this human lump of clayey perfection.

The United States and Algiers. A vessel has just sailed for the Mediterranean with despatches for Com. Shaw, which we are assured contain his instructions as to his future conduct towards Algiers; and the explanation of our government respecting the dispute with that regency. The following is stated to be the grounds of the controversy. The original treaty with Algiers negotiated by Com. Decatur was lost in the Epervier: An authenticated copy being prepared, was ratified, and signed by the president, and transmitted to Algiers:—This document the Dey refused to acknowledge, alledging to Com. Shaw that it was a different instrument from that which had been agreed upon—a copy of which he had preserved. He insisted, that the original treaty contained an article, by which the U. S. agreed to restore all the Algerine vessels captured during the war; and that a treaty should hereafter be made upon the usual terms.

This avowment is extraordinary. It is recollected that Com. Decatur stated, that he positively refused to insert such an article in the treaty; but that after it was concluded he made the Dey a present of the two vessels captured; one of them however having been taken by the Spanish could not be recovered for the purpose.

When Com. Shaw was acquainted with this situation of things, it became his duty to consult his government, and it is understood the Dey of Algiers, in a letter in Arabic, has addressed the President on the subject—whose answer forms part of the despatches sent out. Boston paper.

COMMUNICATED. Departed this life, on Saturday 21st September, at Boonborough, on his return from the Springs, JAMES STRAIN, Esq. of this city, in the 57th year of his age. It has seldom been our melancholy duty to record the death of a man who will be more extensively and sincerely regretted, than the death of one whose memory will be more tenderly cherished. In all the most endearing relations of life, as a husband, father, brother and mother, his value had long been most fully proved and warmly felt, by a numerous train of relatives and dependants. A full and complete list of his family, and the names of his children, and the number of his grandchildren, and the consanguinity of his numerous and tenderly loved relations, would exceed the compass of the paper. He was a man of a truly christian spirit, and was in the regard of all who knew him. His going and diffusing himself which brought on his dissolution, was full of benevolence, with that mild and patient fortitude which eminently marked his character, and which was the fruit of a truly christian spirit, and was the gentlest virtues of our nature. The recollection, that this spirit shined with him, at that awful hour, when all human consolations fail, and ceased the void of pain with its holy influence, will be a relief to his surviving family; this had all been the memory of his life and honorable fame, and virtuous and useful life, and of his kind and gentle nature, which delighted to flow in the noblest objects of affection, through all the channels of domestic tenderness, may serve to mitigate the bitterness of that grief, which the loss of a person of such a character, and whose influence of affection in a better world, can alone remove.

Departed this life on the 15th inst. after a short illness, in the 60th year of her age, Mrs. ELIZABETH DOWSON, of Washington City. Of the deceased much might be said with truth, if her virtues should receive their merited eulogy—Those who knew her (and she had a large circle of acquaintance) can best appreciate her worth, and duly estimate so serious a loss. In short she possessed and practised all the charities and virtues of the christian and moralist, the neighbour and mistress. Thus has the death of this excellent lady caused an irreparable void in her mourning family, and in that of a very extensive society. Peace be to her mans! Bos. Intel.

Letter from General Jackson. Being an answer to the one written by the Committee appointed to present him with the VASE subscribed for by the Ladies of S. Carolina.

"Nashville, Aug. 12, 1816. Gentlemen, I hasten to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 11th ult. and to express my regret that public duties will prevent my interview with you as early as disposition prompts. I am now on the eve of departing southwardly, as one of three commissioners to hold a convention with the Chickasaw Indians, and shall probably be detained on that service two months. As soon after my return as possible, you shall be notified when and where I shall be prepared to receive the grateful present of the Ladies of S. Carolina.

With sentiments of respect, I remain, gentlemen, your most obedient servant. ANDREW JACKSON. John S. Richardson, Thomas Bennett, and Thomas Lee, Esqrs."
