MISCELLANEOUS.

ON THE LILY OF THE VALLEY.

Fair modest flower that shuns parade, Whose sweets all other sweets excel, Oh have I sought thee in the shade, And watch'd thy slowly opening bell.

In life's fair morn, when I was blest, And sigh'd like others to be gay— Pale flower! I placed thee near my breast, And threw the blushing rose away.

Yet 'twas not hatred that did guide My infant choice, and move my scorn; Methought the rose was swoln with pride, And thou neglected and forlorn.

May pity ever thus prevail, And softly all my soul incline, To listen to the plaintive tale, And make the cause of sorrow mine.

And when I see misfortune sink, 'Neath cruel pride's sarcastic rail, I'll raise thy drooping head, and think On thee, sweet lily of the vale.

ODE TO MEMORY.

"Man getteth up the Ghost and where is he?"

And where is he? Not by the side Whose every want he loved to tend; Not o'er those valleys wandering wide, Where sweetly lost he it would wend; That form belov'd he marks no more, Those scenes admird' no more shall see, Those scenes are lovely as before, And she as fair—but where is he?

Not, no, the radiance is not dim, That used to gild his favourite hill, The pleasures that were dear to him, Are dear to life and nature still; But, ah! his home is not as fair, The lilies that his garden bed, The flowers that bloom and wither there, And seem to whisper, "where is he?"

His was the pomp—the crowded hall, But where is now the proud display! His riches, honour, pleasures all Desire could frame—but where are they! And he, as some tall rock that stands Protected by the circling sea, Surrounded by admiring bands Seem'd proudly strong—and where is he?

The church yard bears an added stone— The fire-shed shows a vacant chair; Here sadness dwells and weeps alone, And death displays his banners there; The life is gone—the breath has fled, And what has been no more shall be; The well known form—the welcome tread— Oh! where are they, and where is he?

THE CHURCH YARD.

You have saunter'd, perhaps, of a moon-light evening, out of the precincts of the living and moving world, to linger and contemplate among the grass grown memorials of those who are gone—

"The body to its place, and the soul to Heaven's stairs, And the rest in God's own time"

An appalling chill shoots through the current of life at the undisturbed and universal silence of the scene—the stars tranquilly shining on the white marble, and freshly illumining the name which friendship had cared for the slumbers beneath—here the grass waving in rank luxuriance, as if to hide the triumphs and the trophies of death—and there a human bone unheeded from its timeworn sepulchre, a ghastly visitor to the realms of day—a wooden tablet marking the repose of the humble—a cross, the sign of the sleeping believer—and lofty and magnificent memorials over the relics of the wealthy and the great. Ah! who, in such an assemblage as this, can be accounted great?—What gold survives the crucible of death?

We can learn nothing from the living which the dead do not teach us. Would Beauty be modest and unpretending, let her quit the ball and festival for a moment, and carry her toilet to the tomb. Would the proud learn humility—the resentful good nature—the penurious charity—the bigoted philanthropy; would the scholar ascertain the true objects of knowledge—the man of the world the true means of happiness here and hereafter—and the ambitious the true source of greatness—let him retire awhile from the living, and commune with the dead. We must all come to the mournful silent level of the grave. Our bones must mingle in one common mass. Our affections should travel in the same path, for they must terminate in one fearful issue.—Life is full of facilities of virtue and of happiness; and when you would neglect or abuse them, go and purify your affections, and humble your pride, and elevate your hopes at the tomb of a friend, when the stars are shining on it, like the glorious beams of religion on the mansion of death. (Charleston Courier.)

EXTRACT.

Consider, would it not wound thee to thine heart, to come upon thy death-bed, and instead of having the comfort of a well spent life, and the merits of the Lord Jesus Christ, together with the comfort of his glorious spirit, to have, first, the sight of an ill-spent life,—thy sins flying in thy face,—thy conscience uttering, of itself, with the God-claps against thee,—the thoughts of God terrifying of thee,—death, with his merciless paw, seizing upon thee,—the devil standing ready to scramble for thy soul,—hell arising herself, and ready to swallow thee up; an eternity of misery and torment attending upon thee, from which there will be no release. For, mark! death doth not come alone to an unconverted soul, but with such company, as wert thou but sensible of, it would make thee tremble.

The University of Maryland.

ST. JOHN'S

WASHINGTON

COLLEGES.

The reputation and welfare of Maryland have been deeply afflicted by the fall of this University, and although it is the common duty of every man in the state to endeavor to reconstruct it, there seems to be something more than an ordinary obligation upon those who claim to be the Alumni of the Institution, to co-operate, and to make one vigorous, united effort, to resuscitate and to restore it to its ancient usefulness and fame, that they may be the special means of transmitting to their descendants, and to posterity generally, the benefits of an institution which the wisdom of their forefathers had created for them.

It is therefore respectfully suggested to the Alumni of this University, wherever residing, to hold a meeting on the first Friday in December next, at St. John's College in Annapolis, (by permission of the Visitors and Governors,) to take into consideration the practicability of reviving this University, the plan, and the ways and means necessary to effect it.

As the Chancellor of the state is upon the spot, and is always one of the Visitors & Governors of the University, it is also suggested that he be invited to attend as President of the Convention.

Should this proposition meet with the approbation of those to whom it is directed, it may be useful to insert short paragraphs in the several newspapers of the state, and of the District of Columbia, favourable to the plan, and urging a general attendance at the Convention—as it is not only desirable that our once distinguished and venerable "Alma Mater" should be re-animated and restored by her Sons, but particularly so that they should form a Brotherhood of every surviving member of the family to undertake the noble work, to which gratitude and duty equally invite.

ALUMNUS.

P. S. The Editors of newspapers throughout the state, and in the District of Columbia, are requested to give this publication a few insertions in their respective Journals.

A Farm for Sale.

The subscriber offers for sale a tract of land lying in South River Neck, containing upwards of 300 acres. This land, (from the subscriber's own experience) is susceptible of being brought to a high state of improvement, by the application of clover and plaster; a considerable part of this land is adapted to the growth of wheat, and other grain, and other parts to the cultivation of tobacco. There is a small dwelling house upon the premises, (which will receive an addition sufficient to accommodate a large family by the expiration of the present year, at which time possession will be given;) also other out houses suitable for the purposes of farming and planting.

It is deemed unnecessary to give a further description of this land, as it is presumed that persons wishing to purchase will survey the premises before they determine to buy. This land will be sold on very accommodating terms; the purchaser, by paying a part in cash, can have their own time to pay the balance of the purchase money. Persons wishing to purchase will please to make application to the subscriber at Williams's Hotel, Annapolis. Mr. R. Thorn, the present tenant, will show the land to those wishing to purchase. Should the above land not be sold at private sale before Wednesday the 4th day of September next, it will on that day be offered at public auction on the premises, and will positively be sold to the highest bidder.
