Portland Manor
FOR SALE.
The subscriber offers for sale Portland Manor, the residence of the late Bennett Hall, Esq. deceased. This estate lies in Anne Arundel county, state of Maryland, about four or five miles of Herring River, from whence regular packets ply continually to and from Baltimore, and where kinds of produce meet with a ready market. This farm contains about 590 acres of valuable fertile land, in an excellent state of cultivation, and well adapted for the growth of Wheat, Corn and Tobacco, and Plaster of Paris, with excellent pasture land, the buildings consist of a large dwelling house, out of repair, four small houses, also out of repair, a smoke house, and two corn Houses, in good order, a negro quarters, old and out of repair, a pailed yard and Garden attached to the dwelling house, in tolerable good order.
Also another tract adjoining the aforementioned tract, called "Birkhead's tract," containing 112 acres of land more or less, a part of which is in an excellent state of improvement, capable of raising crops of any description; there are houses upon this tract.
Also one other tract, lying about one mile distant from the last mentioned tract, called "Addition to 'Saint-Jeromes'," containing about eighty two and a half acres of land more or less. This tract is improved, and covered with scrumbled trees, there can be made a valuable meadow with little expense.
Also one other tract called "Portland Manor," distant from the first mentioned tract about two miles, and containing about 473 acres of land more or less, the land is naturally good, and improved by the use of Clover and Plaster. There are upon this land a large fifty feet tobacco house, a corn house and quarters, all nearly new. This tract contains a sufficiency of wood and Timber for any exigencies of the farm, and would be a valuable auxiliary to the first mentioned estate, which is a tract of wood and timber.
Also a lot of ground in Pig Point, the seat of which I have not been able exactly to ascertain, but understand that it stands on an excellent fishing ground near the Patuxent River, where herring had are caught in abundance in this month; there is upon this lot an old house, nearly gone to wreck. The whole land is offered entire, or will be divided to suit purchasers, provided by sale the whole estate can be effected by a deed.
There are on the estate sundry superan-tated slaves, which must be considered as property, and purchased with the estate, and it will be required of the purchaser that he shall enter into an obligation, conditioned for the maintenance and human treatment of those slaves in every part of their life.
Should a sale of the land be effected, and without, I shall proceed to sell the whole of the Stock, Horses, Cattle, Sheep, &c. Plantation Utensils, &c. together with whatever remains undispo-sed of at the time of sale—Crops of small value will be sold as usual, which will be returned to the purchaser agreeable to usage.
The whole estate abounds in springs of crystal water, and perhaps is as healthy as any of the neighbouring estates. If this estate is not sold at private sale, before the 1st of December next, in which event nothing will be given, it will on that day be sold at public sale, at the premises, to the highest bidder.—The terms which will be required, to be made known on the day of sale. The purchaser can have possession as soon as the terms are complied with.—There is no doubt but the sale of the whole estate is indisputable, and upon the payment of the whole purchase money deeds will be executed.
Robert Welch, of Ben.
Sept. 23.

SALE.
By virtue of a deed of trust from tion of John Sullivan, Esquire,) lying about three miles above the Waterloo Tavern. The roads from Waterloo Tavern, up the country, and from Owen's Mills to Baltimore, pass through this land. The best judges are of opinion that this land is capable of being made equal to any of the Elk Ridge lands. There are on it a good dwelling house, and convenient out houses, a garden, a spring of most excellent water very near the dwelling, and an ice house.

From the N. York Evening Post.
"LORD BYRON'S CORSAIR." We have hitherto regarded the poem of the Corsair, by Lord Byron, as a work of imagination. It seems, however, that it is founded on fact, if we may rely on a statement in a publication entitled, "The Life, Writings, Opinions, & Times of the Right Hon. Lord Byron, &c. by a gentleman in the Greek Military service, and comrade of his Lordship;" and which has very recently appeared in London. Among an immense store of anecdotes, some of which were never before published, and all of them deeply interesting, which this work contains, the following of the Corsair possesses novelty:
"Whilst Lord Byron was at Constantinople, a Venetian vessel anchored in the port, where a quarrel ensued between the crew and Turkish sailors, and ended in an affray.
The Turks were worsted; but the whole population being ready to back them, the Venetians fled precipitately to their vessel, and got under weigh, unfortunately leaving their captain on shore. Assured of instant impalement if he fell into the hands of the Turks, he entered the residence of Lord Byron, whom he did not know even by sight, and requested his assistance to shelter him and put him in a way of rejoining his friends. There was such an undaunted courage and noble confidence in his manner, as instantly gained him the respect and esteem of his lordship, who promised to protect him at the risk of his life. The Turks however, had seen him enter the house, and no time was to be lost in getting him out of it. A suit of female apparel belonging to a Greek slave, was procured, and the captain decorated with it; and sallying out thus disguised, met with no interruption, as it is the Turkish custom never to look at a female, but rather to turn away on meeting one in their route.
Lord B. followed at a distance, hired a Greek boat in which they got, and ordered it to put them on board the British frigate. They were only just in time, for they had scarce left the hotel, before it was surrounded by the Turkish authorities and searched from top to bottom, but the bird was flown.

Lord Byron threatened to complain to the British ambassador of the insult, and talked loudly; but it was only to stifle suspicion. The Venetian remained on board until the ship sailed with Lord B. and they left it together at the island of Zea. Here as they strolled together about the islands of the Archipelago, gratitude and friendship drew from the Venetian the whole of his most extraordinary history.
He was the heir of a noble & powerful family, and had fallen in love with a young lady of another family, of equal rank, which however, as is too frequently the case in Italy, was at mortal enmity with his own. They often met at church, where for a long time their sole intercourse was confined to an exchange of glances, which soon convinced both of them that love was infinitely more powerful in their breasts than family feud. At length they contrived to exchange billets as well as glances, and the violence of their passions, as well as the importunities of Conrad (for it was he himself!) prevailed on the blushing fair one to admit him into her balcony at midnight. Their love was for a time crowned with every success that the heart could wish for; but it was not so secret as they hoped and believed. The lady was engaged in marriage to a cousin, in whom since she first saw Conrad, she could not bear the sight of. Jealousy is as quick-sighted as
