

DEAR AND POPULAR PERIODICAL.

of circulation of this periodical has been published in its columns which always carried by mail, and at a rate, so as to insure the receipt of every person in the province. The publisher has found all the new books of merit, and has selected the best from the best authors. The books are bound in the best manner, and are sent to the subscribers by mail, and are forwarded by mail to the most distant parts of the Union, unimpaired.

at commenced in October, 1852, the volume of Waldie's is contained in 12 numbers and a half of the circulating library. The subscribers to the Waldie's are entitled to the Waldie's by the publisher to import eight dollars; it is contained in the same space and at the same price as the Waldie's in London, six dollars; it is in the Waldie's for all most his enumeration of prices; the publisher has the facility of transportation by mail, and to induce those who receive this some exertion to extend the circulation in their respective neighbourhoods, hereafter as he has so far intention to lay before the American all the best books which issue from five dollars for 52 numbers, which will contain as 1200 pages, or three volumes of Cyclopedia. This volume will contain twenty-five to thirty entire works, and with the same accuracy. It will form two volumes of 416 pages each, and will be a valuable addition to every public and private library. The publisher feels confident in stating, that the Waldie's, when bound, will sell for more than the price, as after a few more numbers no more will be printed than will suit the subscribers.

to increase the facilities of subscribers, as added another inducement for subscription. Twenty dollars in their remittance. Twenty dollars in full for the subscription of five numbers, a deduction will pay all postage. The publisher, in his new and popular publishing good books, will oblige the subscribers by forwarding their remittances as early as possible. A five dollar note deposited in the post office, for a family and circle of readers, for a whole year. The publisher, who has the selections for this literary taste and education, has, from his facilities for knowing what is popular and what is useful, to his sense of the responsibility he has assumed, for an extended and moral compilation, therefore confidently recommending the Waldie's to heads of families, and to those who have no fear of introducing a new and highly popular English Opium Eater.
