From the Grenada Gazette.
Demerara, Trinidad, St. Vincent, Barbados, Dominica, and St. Kitt's papers have been received by us to late dates, since the issue of our last number they all contain accounts of the official communication by the respective Governors of those Islands to the proper authorities, of the Circular of Mr.
Stanley accompanying the lately passed Resolutions of the Imperial Parliament respecting the Abolition of Negro Slavery, and in every one of the chartered Colonies, to meetings of the Legislature, especially called together for that purpose.

It would appear from the proceedings of a meeting of those connected with the West India Colonies, held at the Thatched House Tavern, St. James street, that ministers have already violated the professions and solemn pledges given by them in parliament of the manner in which they ostensibly proposed to accomplish the emancipation of our labouring population, by their avowed determination to legislate over the Colonial Assemblies. This unlooked for circumstance forces upon the astounded mind a strong suspicion of treachery in a quarter where of all others its appearance even should be guarded against, if the cordial co-operation of the Colonial authorities is at all valued or expected to carry the emancipation scheme into execution; for, if our assistance is neither sought for nor valued on the occasion, we have but sorry security on the questionable faith of a powerless Whig Ministry to persuade the British Reformed House of Commons to advance twenty million of money to remunerate the pecuniary victims of senseless clamour raised by a faction and sanctioned by the lawless rulers of England who so completely govern and direct the measures of His Majesty's Government; besides, the manner in which the proposed pecuniary remuneration is to be paid—namely, at the convenience and termination of the Government's funds, or labourers,—with the example of a similar action on the part of our rulers before us, naturally creates a doubt of the honest intentions, and even of the capability of Mr. Stanley and his colleagues (should the government of England be in existence 12 years hence) to fulfil their promises, and make advisable under all the unpromising appearances of the affairs of our common country to insist upon the immediate transfer of £20,000,000 sterling into some intermediate and less interested parties, and more secure funds, than that of the British Public.

From the St. Vincent Gazette.
The bill for giving effect to these resolutions, [the resolutions to abolish Colonial Slavery,] was to be introduced into the House of Commons immediately, and will probably be received here by the new packet. The Colonists have, therefore, to prepare themselves in earnest for the change that must now inevitably take place in colonial society, for no change of ministry can or will affect the question of slavery, indeed after all that has occurred, the proprietors of slaves will see the propriety if not the necessity of putting this dangerous question at rest. There is among the West India body in London a serious difference of opinion as to the basis for distributing the compensation of £20,000,000.
The government plan (the equitable one) is to apportion the gift among the colonies according to the value of their exports; to this persons connected with the barren colonies are opposed, and wish the gift distributed equally according to population. This latter plan would be any thing but equitable. But at the barren Bahama Islands, Tortola, and some other places would receive in reality more than the full value of their slaves, while Demerara, St. Vincent and other fertile spots would not receive half the value of theirs.
We trust that those connected with this Island who are resident in London will look after its interests, and not suffer so much injustice to be meted out to us without offering all the opposition in their power. It is, however, a subject of the first importance for the consideration of the Island Legislature, and will, without question, receive the attention it merits. As far as we have been able to collect public opinion, there seems to be a general feeling for acquiescing in the government plan, and even going beyond it, so far as the freedom of the slaves is concerned most persons agreeing that it would be better to emancipate these people at once upon receiving fair compensation, than to continue them in bondage under the long, tedious and embarrassing apprenticeship proposed by the resolutions,—giving them a fair remuneration for their services, they, however, being compelled, under salutary regulations, to remain at their present employments.

Our own opinion is decidedly in favour of this plan for we see nothing in the proposed apprenticeship but endless appeals to the Magistracy. But as this is a point on which a diversity of opinion may and very probably does exist, we recommend that the representatives in the Assembly should collect the opinions of their constituents on the subject, either by public meetings or otherwise.

From the Barbadian.
We have received since our last, Southern Colonial Papers. In none of them do we find any thing worthy of particular notice, except the Despatch from Mr. Stanley to His Excellency Sir James C. Smyth, in the Demerara papers. The Government notice introducing the Despatch is as gentlemanly and conciliating as in those times every document of that kind ought, in policy, to be; it is in the same spirit as Mr. Stanley's communication. The Right Honourable Secretary will find that such language is far better calculated to ensure a cordial co-operation of the Colonial Legislatures with His Majesty's Government in this great work now so seriously commenced, than such an intemperate ebullition of Anti-slavery feeling as he entertained the House of Commons with on the 14th May. We understand that the same Circular Despatch to our Governor was read in our Legislature yesterday, and that both Houses unanimously passed resolutions to the effect that they are ready to adopt the five resolutions which have passed the Imperial Parliament, provided the compensation of £20,000,000 be fairly (distributed to the proprietors. They protest against the proposed plan of paying this money according to a ratio compounded of exports and imports in the respective colonies as most unjust in principle, and contend for the per capita system, as being the only fair mode of remuneration. A joint memorial of the two Houses, founded on these resolutions, is to be drawn up and forthwith transmitted to His Majesty's Government. The Council and the Assembly have done what we are sure the whole country will applaud them for, and we trust His Majesty's Government will give their memorial the attention it will justly deserve.

Never in our short editorial career has it been our lot to feel or to communicate any thing that we are sure will be responded to with such heartfelt satisfaction by all classes, in this community, Free and Slave, White and Black, as the communication of Mr. Stanley the Secretary of the Colonies. It must be remembered, that the measures already adopted are only preparatory, but none can doubt that in due time, and that as short as the necessary forms of parliament will permit, all that is requisite will be embodied in a law or laws to effectuate the noble ends, which every right thinking man will do his utmost to bring to a prosperous issue. Those ends are the simultaneous partial compensation of the Master, and the abolition of Slavery. Twenty million sterling will be granted for the former purpose and such regulations adopted to render the latter safe, as may prevent the possibility of all available suffering. We refer to the resolutions of the House of Commons of the 12th June. One only point gives a shadow of dissatisfaction, that is the apprenticeships. We have conversed pretty generally on the subject and can say without hesitation, that Masters in this island at least, think that the freedom had better be early, simple and unrestricted, and feel convinced that every thing will soon find its own level.
Abolitionist and West Indians in England express themselves similarly, and we have no doubt that when matters are perfected this part will be left to be modified in the manner each island may think best. Mr. Stanley has proudly redeemed his claim to be considered an honest and able statesman, for among all the good that is promised, our constitutional privileges are not only uninjured but confirm-

FOREIGN.
From the New York Journal of Commerce.
LATEST FROM SPAIN.
We have received Madrid papers to July 23d inclusive. They furnish nothing of interest relative to Spain itself. The following paragraph from Lisbon, indicates no great alarm for the safety of the capital.
Lisbon, July 18.—The last report of the Board of Health announces a material abatement in the ravages of the Cholera. The number of new cases yesterday was only 36.
Social relations begin to be re-established, after being interrupted for several days, and people are again to be seen in the streets; but Lisbon will never forget the terrible calamity it has experienced. Many distinguished persons have fallen; in some houses all have perished, including servants. The great numbers who are seen dressed in mourning, indicate the extent of the ravages caused by this epidemic. The whole number who have died is 3,403, while 3,831 have been cured.
In the Provinces, if we except Algarve, the greatest tranquillity has existed ever since they were cleared of the bands of rebels who committed, especially the foreigners, every kind of violence in the towns momentarily occupied by them.
The Commandant General of the Province of Beira on the 9th inst. had his head quarters at Niza. The appearance of his troops on the left bank of the Tagus, by expelling the bands which had entered sunny villages of Alentejo, has restored order to the country. Brigadier Raimundo Josef Puiheira on the 15th passed from Portalegre to Castello de Vide, with 50 horsemen, to surprise a gang of rebels posted near the frontier of Spain.
On the 16th, the column commanded by Brigadier Taborda, arrived at the head quarters of Viscount de Moleiros, who was at Beja.
In Algarve, parties have been formed under the name of Cuerpos de Ordenanza, in favour of Don Miguel. They have already sustained and repelled an attack of rebel troops at Loule, killing a Lieutenant and two soldiers, making two other prisoners, and getting possession of their provisions and part of their baggage.
A ship from the squadron of the rebels has presented itself to blockade the port of this capital; but this demonstration creates very little anxiety. Both in Lisbon and throughout the kingdom, a great part of the population have demanded arms, being determined to defend their King and their independence.
There is the greatest harmony between the troops and the inhabitants.

Extract of a letter, dated Lisbon, 4th Aug. 1833.
Our last was dated 11th July, since when Montezuma has dispersed the rebels in the town of Victoria, making prisoners of the officers; so that the civil war in this state is at end. There are still some parties out in the vicinity of Mexico, but as at the last dates they were flying before the troops of Santa Anna, we trust the next advices will state all tranquil.
Business is dead here—we sell nothing.—

FROM PORTUGAL.
We learn from Captain Baker, of the brig Nestor, that when he left St. Ubes, July 20th, it was still in possession of the Miguelites.
Of course the reports brought to London, July 31st, by the steam boat African, that Villa Flor had landed a body of troops, who had immediately taken possession of the town, is without foundation. The African is stated to have got this information from the Pedroite fleet, which she spoke six miles from the mouth of the Tagus, on the 23d. The fact is, that as late as the 20th, the Pedroite fleet had never been in sight from St. Ubes, and on the 21st Capt. Baker saw it, consisting of 12 or 13 sail, including a steamboat, about two miles (not six) from the mouth of the Tagus.
He passed within a mile of some of the ships, showed his signals and proceeded. Capt. B. further states that there was no actual blockade of St. Ubes, when he left, nor was it then known there that the whole Miguelite coast was declared to be in a state of blockade.
The people of St. Ubes, particularly the higher orders, were decidedly favourable to Don Pedro, and nothing was wanting but the landing of a few of his troops, to secure a movement in his favour. It was perfectly well known there, that Miguel's fleet had been captured, and that the whole territory south of St. Ubes was in the hands of his opposers.
St. Ubes is separated from the province of Algarve only by an estuary about three miles wide.
The distance from Lisbon is about 15 miles.
A considerable number of persons were arriving from Algarve, many of whom were priests. More than 100 men from the fleet of Don Miguel had landed at St. Ubes, and others no doubt at other places along the coast.
It was understood that Admiral Napier had relaxed, without condition, all those men belonging to the captured fleet who had refused to join him. Much the greater part of them, however, were supposed to have enlisted under the banner of the Queen.
The confident expectation at St. Ubes was, that the whole kingdom would soon be under the dominion of Donna Maria.
P. S. From further conversation with Capt.
Baker, we learn that the Pedroite fleet was under weigh at the time he saw it, July 21st, morning, two miles from the mouth of the Tagus, bound in. This leads us to suspect that there may have been a mistake in the date when it was spoken by the steamboat African, and that it was the 24th instead of the 23d.
