LITTELL'S MUSEUM OF FOREIGN LITERATURE, SCIENCE AND ART.

PRICE.—Six Dollars a year, in advance—seven dollars and a half, if not in advance.

POSTAGE.—Five sheets, under 100 miles 71 cents; over 100 miles, 121 cents.

ENLARGED SERIES OF THE MUSEUM.

MR. LITTELL has much pleasure in announcing to the patrons of the Museum, that he has made arrangements for the future publication of the work in a style much superior to the present—and nearly approaching what he always desired that it should appear in. The circulation of the work is now so large, as to make it important to the proprietor that he should be able to give his whole attention to it. This has hitherto been prevented by the care and labour attendant upon a multifarious and widely extended business. With the view of completing more quickly the publication of Lodge's Portraits and Memoirs of Illustrious and Noble Characters, (a splendid work now in hand)—of effecting a settlement of accounts extending over the whole of the United States—and of making arrangements in all parts of the country for the vigorous prosecution of the publication of the Museum, he has made a contract with Mr. Adam Waldie of this city to print the work, attend to its distribution, and manage all the financial concerns appertaining to it after the present year.

MR. WALDIE is a practical printer, not surpassed in taste by any other in the country; and as he is advantageously and generally known as the publisher of the Select Circulating Library, it is supposed that he will have it in his power greatly to promote the sale of the Museum. He has contracted to issue it promptly, and thus will be corrected the greatest fault which has heretofore attended its management. The changes in the appearance of the work will be as follows:

1. It will be regularly and promptly published.

2. Will be uniformly and handsomely printed.

3. On better paper.

4. Will be considerably enlarged.

As the sale of the work has increased, Mr. Littell has always been desirous of devoting the enlarged profits to its improvement—and although he does not wish the appearance of the next volume to be considered as entirely carrying out his plan, he trusts that the subscribers will be convinced, upon comparing it with any other work, that it is richly worth the price asked for it.

We shall not have satisfied our own wishes, in respect to this work, until it shall be so far enlarged and improved as to make it clear to every purchaser that he will hereafter receive all that is desirable to an American reader from all the Foreign Periodicals. That reader from all the Foreign Periodicals, by making it contain four or five times as much matter as an ordinary periodical, we have no doubt, a great part of most of the Reviews and Magazines is composed of inferior articles, and we confidently appeal to those readers of the Museum who have been in the habit of looking into the British Journals, whether we have not already, in a very great degree, succeeded in copying all that was worth preservation.

As the work will now be considerably enlarged, we shall be able more fully to accomplish this object.

In order that he may, by frequent journeys from home, be the earlier able to finish all other business, and devote himself exclusively to the Museum, Mr. Littell has made arrangements with the Editor of Waldie's Library to edit this work after December, 1834. However deficient the proprietor may be in other qualifications, he has always felt so zealous an affection for the Museum that he would not be willing to commit it, even for a time, to the care of another, were he not confident that the facilities, the experience and the ability of the new Editor, will render it more worthy of the patronage of the public than it has heretofore been. No change takes place in the Proprietorship.

Philadelphia, April 9.

THE GENTLEMEN'S VADE MECUM, OR, THE SPOKING AND DRAMATIC COMPANION.

Interpreted with a multitude of Engravings, including Portraits of celebrated Winning Horses, Philosophical and Natural Phenomena, Geography, &c.

It is now six months since this publication was commenced in Philadelphia—and although the publishers have used no extraneous means to circulate a knowledge of its merits, yet such is the satisfaction manifested by that portion of the public who have been made acquainted with its character and contents, that its list of patrons continues constantly and rapidly to increase.

This paper is now distributed weekly every week over a wide portion of the Union, and the most satisfactory assurances are received that it will eventually become one of the most popular among the numerous excellent periodicals which issue from the American press. No exertions will be spared to establish its permanent reputation more extensively; and if the liberal sanction of those for whom it is especially designed shall warrant its future improvement—both as regards typographical neatness and embellishment—it will be materially advanced.

The different Plays and Farces that will appear in the year, of themselves, will be worth more than FOUR times the amount of subscription. The following is a list of those which have already appeared:

Charles the First, R. P. Smith, J. S. Knowles, The Hunchback, J. R. Planché, The Deep, Deep Sea, F. Reynolds, Cheap Living, F. Reynolds, Shakespeare's Early Days, R. P. Smith, Henri Quatre, J. S. Knowles, Beggars of Bethnal Green, Thomas Holcroft, William E. Burton, Humbugs and Wives, Mrs. Inchbald, Man of Ten Thousand, Benjamin Webster, The Golden Farmer, F. M. Reynolds, Speculation, Planché & Dance, Olympic Devils, W. T. Moocroff, Englishman India, M. G. Lewis, Shakespeare Festival, J. R. Planché, The East-Indian, H. M. Milner, My Friend the Governor, The Omnibus, Mrs. Inchbald, The Child of Nature, W. Barrymore, The Banquet, The Sisters, The Doctor, Hernani, James Kennedy.

The most of the Irish Ambassadors, the favourite and highly interesting drama, in which Tyrone Power so successfully amused the Public, as Sir Patrick O'Connell, has been obtained by the publishers, and will be published forthwith.

The interesting Intelligence, at home and abroad, occupies a considerable portion of our columns, and is collected from the most authentic sources. Among the Portraits of celebrated Winning Horses which have been given are:

The American Trotting Horse, Edwin Forrest, The Imported Racing Horse, Messenger, The Favourite Racing Mare, Arab, and her foal, by Ed. Bond's celebrated Trotting Horse, N. K. L. Phenomenon.

The well known English Race Horse, Touchstone. A correct Picture of a Race Course, occupying the width of a column.

Among a variety of other Embellishments of subjects of interest, which have been published, are the following:

A complete Treatise on Riding, with fourteen Illustrations, for the improvement of Ladies in that most useful of all exercises.

Explanation of the Automaton Chess Player, illustrated by elevating engravings.

The subjects which are particularly embraced in the Vade Mecum, will be more distinctly understood from the following summary of them:

The Turf and all matters connected therewith. The Modern Actor's Drama, or the Character of the Horse. On the Improvement of Horned Cattle. Rules for Novices in Shooting. Methods for Feeding and Training Dogs. Biographies of celebrated Horses, with their Portraits.

Hunting, Fishing, Fowling, &c. Approved Games, from Hoyle and others. Criticisms on Plays and Actors. Musical Notation, set to music. The art of Legendeum illustrated. A variety of Recipes adapted to Domestic Economy. An Epitome of important passing and the Fashions.

The Vade Mecum is printed on large imperial paper, of a beautiful white texture, and is published every Saturday, at Three Dollars per annum, in advance. Orders from abroad, postage paid, will be promptly attended to, the paper carefully packed to prevent it from rubbing by mail.

The Modern Acting Drama, a volume of about 300 pages—containing the Plays, Farces, &c. which appear in the Vade Mecum, neatly printed, and bound in elastic covers, for transportation—is published every six weeks. Eight volumes will constitute a set, or one year's subscription, the terms for which is Three Dollars, payable in advance.

Subscribers to the Vade Mecum are entitled to a deduction of one-third. An order for four sets will be thankfully received, and the work forwarded to any direction, by enclosing a ten dollar note—postage paid. A premium, consisting of two volumes, 500 pages each, of the Novelists Magazine, containing eight different Novels, by the most popular authors, will be presented to the Agent, who shall procure four names to the Modern Acting Drama, or the Gentlemen's Vade Mecum, and remit the amount of one year's subscription for each.

Gentlemen wishing to subscribe to either of the above works, will address CHARLES ALEXANDER, No. 3, Athenian Building, Franklin Place—Philadelphia. July 30.

POETRY. SATURDAY-AFTERNOON.

I love to look on a scene like this, Of wild and careless play, And persuade myself that I am not old, And my locks are not yet gray;

I have walked the world for four-score years; And they say that I am old, And my heart is ripe for the reaper Death, And my years are well nigh told.

I am willing to die when my time shall come, And I shall be glad to go; For the world, at least, is a weary place, And my pulse is getting low;

I am willing to die when my time shall come, And I shall be glad to go; For the world, at least, is a weary place, And my pulse is getting low;

had heard of an inn that a young sailor had been hurt, and was lying in bed. The captain said that the ship had been suddenly ordered, and he had taken in her cargo, and was ready to sail with that afternoon's tide. There being no time to lose, the mate wrote a letter to the surgeon which he left unsealed on the table, and in which he said all that was necessary, including an intention to visit them on his next voyage, a carriage was then procured, and he, though feeble, went to Liverpool, and that evening sailed in his old vessel for New York. The letter left by the mate, unfortunately was never received by those for whom it was intended, being, as was supposed, obtained read, and destroyed by a young lawyer, who had made Mary an offer of marriage, and had been refused, but who will visit the house—These on their return home, Mary and her brother were still without the least clue to the "local habitation or name" of their preserver, with this exception that the lawyer, in the course of an incidental conversation, had once observed that the mate was "a poor mean Yankee," but denied knowing his name. Mary fretted and pined away, and at last took to her bed, for almost unconsciously she had become deeply attached to the sailor; her illness assumed at last a serious character, and it being evident that she would not long survive unless she again saw the object of her affections, her brother (at her urgent request) took ship for North America, and landed at Boston a few days ago, whence they came on to this city on Sunday night. The passage, and the hope of meeting with the one she loved restored her to comparative health and strength, and they put up at a private boarding house in Pearl Street. Thus had Mary travelled double the distance of Becker's mother, without knowing even the christian or surname of her beloved. In the mean time the mate arrived at New York, was transferred to the command of a merchantman in the southern trade, was cast away, fell ill, wrote to Europe, his letter miscarried—he sailed himself for England, went to the surgeon's house, was told all about Mary, and that she had then sailed about seven days for Devon. He took passage in the first vessel, came on to New York, and without knowing that they were in the house actually put up at the same place, and slept beneath the same roof with Mary and her brother on Sunday night. In the morning when he descended to the breakfast table, when he found the family already assembled, the first object that met his view on entering the room was the form of the fair traveller. She saw his face—uttered no exclamation, but sprang from her seat towards him, and would have fallen had he not rushed forward and caught her in his arms, exclaiming, "Good God! Mary, is that you?" she was faintly aware. When she recovered, mutual explanations and greetings took place, and we are happy to say that they were married yesterday afternoon, and set off the same evening to spend the honeymoon at Albany, and by this time doubtless know one another as well as though they had been acquainted for years.
