From all which it appears that the financial legisla ion of Maryland has not only evinced a wise forecaste but has been calculated to elicit her resources and afford the means of your sub-stantial prosperity in future time. And the appropriate response to an invocation from the pa-triotic advectes of internal improvement— "laissez nous faire?" would seem to be the encouraging language of "go ahead"—for it needs not the faculty of second sight to depict the injurious consequences of incalculable depth and breadth which would certainly ensue from "an adverse course of policy" by which the adopted system of amelioration would be deranged or retarded, and consequently deteriorated or destroyed. "We are," indeed, "so far stept in that going back were worse than going o'er."
