WASHINGTON IN PARIS.

SOME OBSERVATIONS OF B. T. WASHINGTON.

He writes a very interesting Letter From the City of Paris.

Writing recently from Paris, Booker T. Washington has the following to say:

"One of the things I had in mind when I came to France was to visit the tomb of Toussaint L'Ouverture; but I have just learned from some Haytian gentlemen residing here that the grave of this general is in the northern part of France, and these same gentlemen inform me that his burial place is still minus a monument of any description. It seems that it has been in the minds of the Haytians for some time to remove the body to Hayti, but thus far it has been neglected. The Haytian government and people owe it to themselves, it appears to me, to see to it that the resting place of the great hero is given a proper memorial either here in France or on the island.

"Speaking of the Haytians, there are a good many well educated and cultured Haytians in Paris. Numbers of both men and women are sent here each year for education, and these take high rank in scholarship. It is greatly to be regretted however, that some of these do not take advantage of the excellent training which is given here in the colleges of physical sciences, agriculture, mechanics, and domestic sciences. They would then be in a position to return home and assist in developing the agricultural and mineral resources of their native land. Hayti will never be what it should until a large number of the natives receive that education which will fit them to develop agriculture, public roads, bridges, and thus keep in the island the large amount of money which is now sent outside for productions which these people themselves can supply.

"Although in our effort to secure complete rest, we have tried, as far as possible, to escape attention. Many Americans, and Frenchmen as well, have been very cordial and have shown us attention. The American Ambassador, Gen. Horace Porter, and his wife have not been neglectful of us. Soon after our arrival in Paris, the Ambassador and the first Secretary of the Legation called at our hotel. At Mrs. Porter's reception we were made to feel entirely at home. At the meeting of the American University Club, which is composed of college men of America, ex-President Harrison, Archbishop Ireland, and myself were the speakers. There is a beautiful church here called the American Chapel, where the citizens of my country insisted that I occupy the pulpit (last) Sunday. In the audience were ex-President Harrison and his wife.

"In all the European cities which we have visited, we have compared the conduct of the rank and file of the people on the streets and in other public places with that of our own people in the Southern States, and have no hesitation in saying that in all that marks a lady or gentleman our people do not suffer at all by the comparison. Even at the camp-meetings and other holiday gatherings in the South, the deportment of the mass of the colored people is quite up to the standard of that of the average European in the larger cities which we have thus far seen.

"I should strongly advise our people against coming to Europe and especially to Paris, with the hope of securing employment, unless fortified by strong friends and a good supply of money. Within the last week, three Afro-American citizens have called to see me and in each case I have found them in practically a starving condition, and my purse was the worse off by reason of their call. They were well-meaning, industrious men, who had come here with the idea that life was easy and work sure, but notwithstanding the fact that they have walked the streets for days, they still have no work. The fact that they do not speak the language nor understand the habit and customs of the people here makes their life just no much harder. With the assistance of other Americans, I have just secured passage for one of these men to the United States. His parting word to me was, "The United States is good enough for me in the future."

A MORAL CRISIS.

We Must Get Together and Get To Work.

Among the ugly and humiliating sights in and around Philadelphia today, we know of none more repulsive than the barroom loungers, who gather on the corners these summer nights like flies around a hoghead of molasses. The fact that a number of such loungers are industrious and work hard when they get it to do, but serves to add a more sickening glare to the picture, as one remembers how much of their hard earnings the slick saloon keepers get that really belongs to the home and the little ones in and around it.

That some agency ought to be put in active operation to reach such thoughtless fellows and show them the error of their way, goes without saying. But who is to start such an all-important work? Who is to map out the method to be pursued; to adroitly carry the message of love to such characters, is a question of vital importance. We do not believe that this class of men are beyond redemption. We do believe that a campaign intelligently directed, zealously prosecuted in a proper spirit would do much toward saving hundreds of men who if left to blindly follow the bent of their own minds must eventually swell the vagrant element of our city.

What is true of this class in Philadelphia is true of them in other large cities. Knowing how rum and the rum shop beggars demoralizes it seems as though those in authority in every State are in the league with the rum power to help wipe the Afro-American out of all chances to be placed in a favorable light before the world. This matter cannot be viewed too lightly, nor can the intelligent and highly moral class among us claim absolution from the responsibility of its presence. As long as this class darkens the horizon of our life we may expect to be proscribed against in almost every avenue.

Unfavorable or distasteful conditions in life and manners among white people are changed and are improved upon by the thoughtful, earnest class among the whites. They do not sit down and grumble about this or that, but set themselves resolutely to work to bring order out of chaos, virtue out of vice, intelligence out of ignorance. And if we are to ride the breakers and land safely in port the intelligent men and women among us in every city must get together and get to work.—Phila. Tribune.

Commencement day witnessed the graduation of the fourth colored man from Indiana University in the person of Jas. A. Williams, who received the degree of A. B. The first colored man to graduate from Indiana University was Marcellus Neal, in 1895, who is now connected with the colored schools of Indianapolis. In 1896 A. Y. King received his A. B. degree, and is now connected with the Mt. Vernon, Ill., schools. Prof. E. P. Eagleson was graduated in '97 and is now principal of the colored schools of this city. While a student he was on the football team, and also represented the institution in the State oratorical contest.

It is not generally known that S. Coleridge Taylor, who composed the cantata played at the last festival in Norwich, Eng., is a full-blooded negro. Mr. Bishop declares the composer of "Hawatha's wedding feast" the coming musical genius.

OCEAN CITY.

Owing to the inclemency of the weather church going was quite difficult last Sunday, yet quite a number of friends visited the Congregational Church to hear Rev. D. C. Stewart of Washington D. HERE AND THERE

"Black Patti," a famous colored singer who has been all over this country and Europe, has been granted a divorce by Judge Rogers of the Supreme court. Her name is Matilda S. Jones, and she charges her husband, David, with non-support and drunkenness. She asserted that he denied her the means of existence after she earned the money, sometimes taking in $1000 in a night, which, she charged, David squandered at cards and crap games.—Ex.

Steps have been taken by representative colored citizens of San Francisco toward securing for the race a national academy of music, to be located at Washington D. C. or near the centre of the Negro population of America. At a meeting held at the Starr King African Methodist Episcopal Zion church a committee was appointed to map out the plans of procedure and intrust them to David Lubin, a prominent Sacramento and San Francisco business man, who will travel in the interest of the same.

The Coleman Cotton Factory situated near Concord, N. C. is being fitted up with machinery and will be in operating order by the first part of Sept. 1899. All colored persons who are interested in the welfare of their race are asked to subscribe to stock. For information concerning the same address W. C. Coleman, box 42 Concord N. C. This plant will give employment to four or five hundred Negro men and women.

Congressman George H. White of North Carolina made an eloquent address at the commencement of the Avery College Trades School, Allegheny, Pa., recently. According to the Pittsburg Dispatch, Congressman White offered a common sense solution of the color difficulties in the manual education of his colored brethren. He said that heretofore the exclusive schools for colored youths were conducted solely for intellectual development. This caused a dearth of skilled labor and too many professional men. Before the war, all labor in the south skilled and otherwise, was done by the black man. Since then, however, comparatively few men have taken to the trades. He referred to our new island possessions as affording an excellent opportunity for the development of the negro. He advised the seekers after development to pack their kits and expand with the new territory. The presentation of diplomas was made by Dr. G. G. Turley, president of the Training School. The graduates were: Melissa Bryant and Mrs. Denny, milliners; Earl Wilson, William Williams, Joseph Taylor and George Gould all in carpentry.

Beautiful Western Maryland.

Mr. Thos. E. Jenkins the enterprising and courteous Assistant Passenger Agent of the Western Maryland R. R. has done much to attract attention to the delightful Summer outings afforded by this road. This road is one grand panorama of beautiful and enchanting scenery, and the eye never tires as it takes in the beauties of nature. Delightful and invigorating Penn. Mar, High Rock, Gettysburg, with the famous battle-field and the many historic associations, and the many little villages and groves situated on this road, present most tempting inducements to those looking for an enjoyable outing.

Accept our thanks for the most excellent article that appeared in your paper of July 1st, describing the object of the Eureka Educational and Charity Association of Baltimore City.

The Association was organized Tuesday, March 21st, 1899, primarily, to look after the moral, physical and intellectual condition of the children of North Baltimore. Thousands of children are yearly going to destruction, due to the fact, that their parents or guardians do not very often come in contact with those influences, that would have a tendency to raise their moral standard, and prevent the repetition of such crimes that are frequently perpetrated by the youth of our city. What children need knowledge, text books; they also need to be instructed in the principles of morality. The visitor mentioned in your columns will be secured and put to work as soon as the necessary funds can be secured. We have already benefitted few very needy cases, and are striving to secure more funds which to do more extensive work in the Fall. We appeal to the public to help care for the deprived and homeless of our city. We have on hand derived from a good March by teaching Colored Grammar. We will give donations of any kind and money towards the same.

Re-Action.

To be sure re-action is not a very pleasant thing upon which to dwell. Yet unpleasant as it may seem, it may prove helpful.

It is not only justifiable, but at times urgently necessary, to make members appeal for financial aid for the cause of public good, and it is to be regretted that unprincipled men and women have concluded so largely by their reckless dishonesty by cutting off the lesson from all this.

Governor Lowndes and His Annapolis Speech.

Governor Lowndes has made an excellent Executive of this State, and hence it ought not to create any very great surprise that he, practically, has the assurance of a re-nomination.

We doubt not that Mr. Lowndes is a wealthy man. We doubt not the sincerity of his expressed views with regard to the amelioration of the colored race.

Once there was a poor man who went to Deacon Blank, a very unctious brother, for help from starvation. Notwithstanding Deacon Blank's cellar was teeming with potatoes, he invited the poor beggar to his knees, and the good deacon proceeded to offer up to the Throne of Grace a very fervent prayer requesting the Good Lord to provide for the needs of the man on the verge of starvation.

Although in the City of Baltimore there are many charitable institutions for the commitment of young white youthful offenders the only provision made, so far as we are aware, for Negroes is the Simmons' Home for Friendless children, which, very unfortunately, has been mismanaged, and the property is now advertised for sale.

"The Lloyd Lowndes' Home For Friendless Children." It is not only possible but quite probable that the Governor could interest about a half dozen of his colored friends and about half that number of white friends in the matter, to the extent that such persons might form a new corporation, styled "The Lloyd Lowndes' Home For Friendless Children," in consideration of the Governor purchasing a suitable house for the transferring of the children of the Simmons Home and the further extension of the work.

members of their race from crime and vagrancy, such a benefaction upon the part of the governor of this State would not be without an appreciation commensurate with the gift.

PERFECT womanhood depends on perfect health.
Nature's rarest gifts of physical beauty vanish before pain. Sweet dispositions turn morbid and fretful. The possessions that win good husbands and keep their love should be guarded by women every moment of their lives. The greatest menace to woman's permanent happiness in life is the suffering that comes from derangement of the feminine organs.

Many thousands of women have realized it too late to save their beauty, barely in time to save their eyes. Many other thousands have availed of the generous invitation of Mrs. Pinkham to counsel all suffering women free of charge.

Mrs. H. J. GARRETTSON, Bond Brook, N. J., writes: "DEAR MRS. PINKHAM—I have been taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound with the best results and can say from my heart that your medicines are wonderful. My physician called my trouble chronic inflammation of the left ovary. For years I suffered very much, but thanks to Mrs. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and kind advice, I am today a well woman. I would say to all suffering women, take Lydia E. Pinkham's medicine and your sufferings will vanish."

COMPANION STORIES.
From Youth's Companion: The Companion is pleased to learn from two stories sent to it by valued subscribers in parts of the country were distant from each other, that its issues, besides serving for instruction and entertainment, may, in an emergency, be useful for other purposes as well. The first of the two stories shows how a periodical printed upon firm, glistening paper may serve as an effective weapon of defense.

Judge C., of a flourishing city in southern California, although not a young man is a devoted reader of the Youth's Companion. It has been his custom to have the paper sent to his office, whence, after reading it, he takes it home to his wife. One day business kept him at his office until after midnight.

When at last he started homeward he rolled up the Youth's Companion, which had come that day, and slipped it into the side pocket of his overcoat. It was a moonlight evening. The judge trudged along, his hands in his pockets, thinking deeply upon a knotty problem of law.

Suddenly he found himself confronted by a man with a revolver, who commanded him to throw up his hands preparatory to having his pockets rifled; but the judge did not throw up his hands. Instead, he started back, jerking his hands from his pockets. In his right hand he clutched the rolled-up copy of the Youth's Companion, and the moonlight glistened on the shining paper in such a way as to convince the highwayman that his intended victim held a good-sized revolver. Thereupon the footpad cried out: "Don't shoot! Don't shoot! My gun ain't loaded." So saying the thief took to his heels, and the judge went home in peace.

RACE GLEANINGS.

Some Sensible Talk.
We had just as well acknowledge that after the war we made some great mistakes. We began at the top when we should have begun at the bottom.

We spent time and money trying to go to Congress that could have better been spent in becoming the leading real estate dealer in town. We spent time in making political stump speeches that could have better been spent in operating the finest dairy or truck farm in the country. We spent all this time uselessly instead of laying a material foundation upon which we could have stood and demanded our political rights. Now in conclusion, my friends, there are a good many rights withheld from us, and wrongfully too, yet we must not spend too much time in giving attention to our grievances and neglect the many opportunities that are about us. We are denied the opportunity in many Southern cities of riding in a first class car, even after we have paid for first-class fare, but in Dallas county, and all through the State, I tell you of an opportunity that is not denied up. We have the opportunity of living 365 days in the year in the neatest, most attractive and comfortable house in Dallas county and nobody objects to that. The average colored man has the opportunity of being denied accommodation in a first-class hotel about twice in a year, yet at the same time he has the opportunity all through Alabama of living and sleeping in the neatest and cleanest room to be found, and no law will say he cannot do it. The average colored man is denied the privilege of sitting on a jury about once in two years, but there is no law to prevent our young men and women who are being educated on owning and operating the finest dairy farm from which butter that is eaten by every man who does sit on the jury is raised. What I mean to say is that he who holds the dollars, brains and intelligence will, in the long run, hold the offices.—Booker T. Washington.

One of the most remarkable cases ever tried in a federal court in Kentucky was concluded before Judge Evans in Louisville, Ky., when a jury brought in a verdict for $50,000 damage in favor of a Negro named George Dinning against Joe Moore and four other white men, who constituted a part of a mob which in January, 1897, riddled Dinning's house with bullets and drove him and his family out of Simpson county. In the bombardment of Dinning's home the mob was fired into by the negro, and Jodie Court, white, was killed. When this had been done, the whites became infuriated, and would have lynched Dinning, but he fled. He was shot and dangerously wounded in making his escape. Dinning, according to the testimony in his case, was a thrifty farmer, owning 125 acres good land, well stocked and equipped, and some of the white people of his section despised him because he was prosperous and black. After the incident he was not allowed to return to his own place, and has not been in the county, fearing assassination. His crops had stood were taken by persons who had no right to them. In instructing the jury Judge Evans scored such mobs, and said that the plaintiff was entitled to the full amount sued for if the defendants were in the mob. He also recommended punitive as well as actual damages.

There were 338 colored commissioned officers and 9,861 colored privates and non-commissioned officers serving among the volunteers during the Spanish war. The Ninth and Tenth Cavalry and Twenty-fourth Infantry, of the regular army, composed of colored men under white officers, aggregate about 4,500.

The negro is being forced to open his eyes to the necessity of race enterprises and good fruits are being borne. The founding of a strictly Negro city in this far land may seem as a puzzle to Spain, but to Americans it is very easily understood, of course.

We gave information some time ago concerning colored professional men in Cuba, there being no discrimination because of their color; and now we give Star of Zion's clipping from Tribune. "The Negro in the cigar factories, the shops, the newspaper offices, in domestic service and in all branches of public administration, while white men and women work side by side with black ones, and where the employer, following the social bent of Latin civilization, furnishes the two daily meals all eat at the same table. At the theater are Negro musicians in every orchestra and dark skinned performers can be found on the Havana stage. Racial equality is enforced moreover in the use of all public conveniences and the enjoyment of all popular privileges."

It is a decree of God, already proven, that one race cannot degrade another without becoming contaminated itself. Galileo was imprisoned because he said the earth was round and turned on its axis; Benjamin Franklin was called a crank, because he asserted that electric currents could be conducted from storm clouds and used as a means of communication. The friends of Robert Fulton, foretook him when he presented to them the idea of sailing across the water in a steam boat; Columbus' life was threatened because he tried to convince the Spaniards that Spain was not the whole world. John Brown was hanged because he tried to enforce the fact that one blood God made all men to dwell upon the face of the earth—their own property; William Lloyd Garrison was mobbed because he spoke and wrote against slavery was wrong.

THE TOWER OF LONDON.

Looking Up a Quaint and Ancient Ceremony.
The main guardhouse at the Tower, which has just been pulled down, was hard by the Bloody Tower. It is at this spot, says the London Graphic, that the quaint and ancient ceremony of locking up the tower is nightly performed, as it has been for centuries. A few minutes before 11 o'clock the head warder, or yeoman porter, as he is properly styled, clothed in a red cloak, carrying a portentous bunch of keys, and accompanied by another warder carrying a lantern, appears in front of the main guardhouse and roars out, "Escort, keys!" The sergeant turns out with some of the men, and follows the yeoman to the outer gate, the whole party being challenged by all the sentries with "Who goes there?" and the answer is simply "Keys." The gates being locked the keys are brought back to the main guard. Here the sentry stamps and roars out, "Who goes there?"

"Keys," is the reply. "Whose keys?" "Queen Victoria's keys." "Advance, Queen Victoria's keys. And all's well. "God bless Queen Victoria!" cries the yeoman porter. "Amen," responds the main guard. "Present arms!" cries the officer on duty, and amid the rattle of the scute he kisses the hilt of his sword. The yeoman porter marches off with the keys and deposits them in the lieutenant's lodgings, and from that time throughout the livelong night you can only circulate within the tower precincts if you know the countersign.

The Wear and Tear.
"I suppose you feel that you have a great deal of fighting on your hands," remarked the noncombatant Tagal. "No," answered the leader of the Filipino retreat, "we don't notice it on our hands so much; but it's pretty hard on our feet."—Washington Star.

Stood the Ground.
"Can you hollow grind this razor?" asked a customer who had stepped into a razor-grinding establishment presided over by a hard-headed man with bristling hair and an aggressive look on his face. "You want me to hollow grind it, I suppose?" he said. "No, sir," rejoined the other. "I want you to hollow grind it." "If it's ground hollow ain't it hollow ground, air?" "If you grind it hollow don't you hollow grind it, sir?" "Do you think you can come in here and teach me anything about my business? I've been hollow-grinding razors for twenty-five years—" "No, you haven't. You've been hollow-grinding them." "Do you reckon I don't know what I do for a living?" "I don't care whether you do or not. Will you hollow grind this razor?" "No, sir, I won't! I'll hollow grind it or I won't touch it." The customer reflected a moment. "See here, my friend," he said, "Can you have it ground hollow here?" "Certainly." And they compromised on that basis, each feeling that he was a little ahead.

John Was Ready.
In these days of proposed international alliances it is interesting to read of the little incident in which a Chicago newsboy found himself involved, and how he extricated himself therefrom. He had wandered over into one of the "foreign quarters," on the west side, where one can hear almost every language except our vernacular, and he was set upon by two or three boys. He defended himself bravely and was holding his own fairly well, until the two or three were joined by as many more, and then the battle began to go against him. "Say!" he yelled to a group of boys watching the fight from the sidewalk, "is there an English boy in the crowd?" "Yes," shouted a stockily built urchin of about his own size. "Come yere, then!" panted the young American, laying about him with all his might, "an' we'll clean out the hull gang!" And they did.

Insult to the Bride.
"Such an insult!" she exclaimed. "What?" he asked. "Why, you know what long hair Brown, who married Miss Smith to-day, always has had?" "Of course." "Well, just before he became a benedict he had it cut short. Just think of the natural inference."

Inopportune Times.
"The trouble is," explained the Filipino, "that these Americans always want us to fight at the most inopportune times." "Why are they inopportune?" "Because the Americans want us to fight."

The sea-shore is not the only place where the children's clothes wear out with no apparent reason. When they come from the wash with the colors faded and streaked and worn spots showing where there should be no wear, then something is being used besides Ivory Soap. You can save trouble and expense by using it and nothing else. The lengthened life of one garment will more than pay for the soap.
