AND what shall we say of Alger? Well, there is this to be said: When a man with a name like that can make a shining success on the campus, such as he has made, he has the real stuff, nothing else can block him.

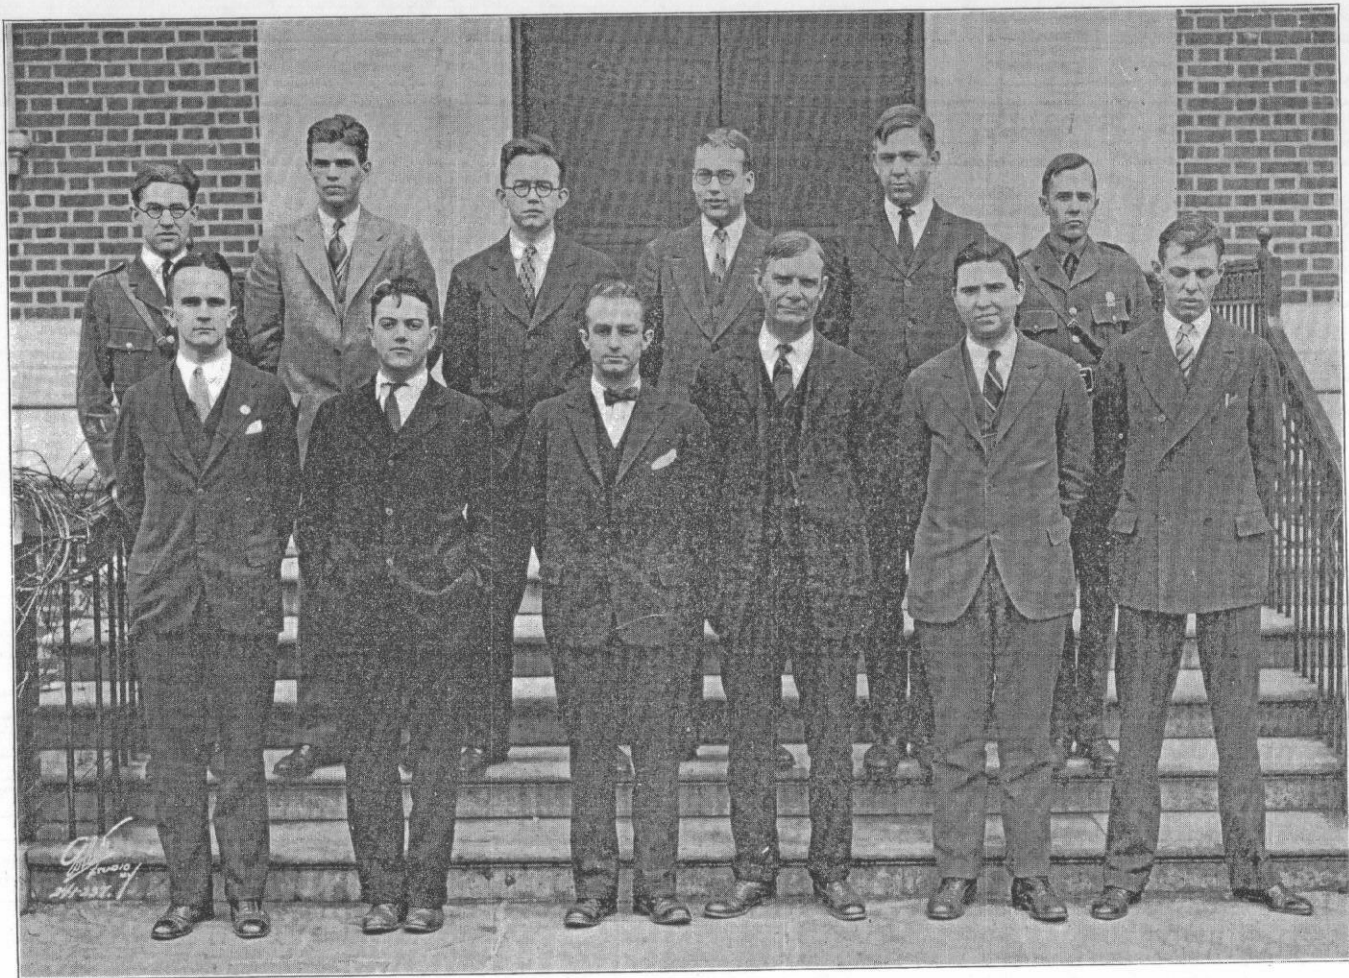

Alger is the epitome of success, and yet he is not the proverbial rah, rah lad, he is not a Hopkins Babbit. Rather not. He goes in for culture, and activities are his side line. Judging solely by the extent of his side line, Alger must be the most cultured, learned bozo around this neck of the woods.

Many are the discussions that we have had with Alger, many and various. The topics ranged from Soviets to styles, from liberty to liquor, from Guelphs to Goodnow. And, like Socrates, we admit our ignorance in the face of his irresistible logic and rhetoric.

To all of which we add the usual pat on the back, but this time it does not nauseate us to give it; Alger is a nice chappie, in spite of his attainments.

The Cane Club

"O golden days,

The sunshine of our happy youth."

ON the Hopkins Campus there will be found a few genial souls who believe in the old, old ideals of chivalry, courtesy and honor. Such men naturally gravitate into the Cane Club. This organization, tho' young in years, is rich in tradition: the white carnation, symbolizing purity; the cane, elegance; the stately carriage drawn by prancing steeds, courtliness.

Their conviviums are unexcelled for their gaiety, wit, and good fellowship. The Presidential Ball is unparalleled in its splendor and stateliness. This ball is an annual affair and is held late in the Spring to celebrate the formal passing out of the retiring president, and is a quaint, old-fashioned ceremony, participated in by all those present.

The Omicron Delta Kappa Society

THE great question of the day is man's relation to his fellowmen. The collegiate period of man's life is the one most fructuous in welding ties of fellowship. The basis of all true friendship is democracy in its purest form, and there is no greater monument to any institution than the fact that it has ever upheld this idea of equality and fraternity. On every campus there should be some organization, which incarnates this theory and makes it a living truth; such an organization the Omicron Delta Kappa Society professes to be.

The Omicron Delta Kappa Society, founded at Washington and Lee University in 1914, chartered the Beta Circle at Johns Hopkins in 1916. Its purpose is to recognize and bring together those men who have attained marked distinction in at least one of the following phases of college life: scholarship, athletics, social leadership, literary, societies and publications.

Only three per cent. of the undergraduate enrollment is eligible for election to the Society during the collegiate year. Admission to the Omicron Delta Kappa Society is respected, locally as well as nationally, as one of the highest honors attainable at college.
