

establish the sequence of the evolution, diffusion, and dissemination of cartographic elements presented on the rather rare map of the new colony.

Characteristic Shape - A) Overall shape of the entire Delmarva peninsula (the Eastern Shore) methodology of this research carries Modelski's study to a natural conclusion using additional best-fit accuracy and reliability of and bulges formation. The incorporation of empirical spatial data furthers the analysis beyond Modelski's C) Specific shoals or low water approaches to research.

Physical Features - A) Double row of trees marking boundary line as a measure in the variation between the Herrman map and a contemporary chart. B) Soundings marking water depths inaccuracies of the Herrman's map the utilization of best-fit comparative mapping C) River confluences employed.

Nomenclature - A) Specific nomenclature location Harley indicated an imp (type placement) for the history of cartography exists in the critical evaluation of maps as historical documents B) Unique spelling in geography use the skills of (incorrect/incomplete) on of source in contemporary studies and research. No previous