SUPPORT SO. MARYLAND FARMS

It's good for you, your community and the planet!

Get a FRESH perspective at www.smadc.com.

The Southern Maryland Agricultural Development Commission (SMADC) has created many resources to help consumers find the Southern Maryland farms that fit their needs. Visit the new SMADC Web site to find out more...It's easy to support local farms every day...

Use So. Maryland, So Good resources. Look for the SMSG logo where you shop and dine to find products grown on local farms. The SMSG Farm Guide and targeted mini-directories (available on-line or from participating farms) help you find the farms that fit your needs.

Take the annual Buy Local Challenge. During the last full week in July, pledge to eat at least one thing a day from a Southern Maryland farm.

Explore the Southern Maryland Trails. Plan a family outing at one of the region's agritourism sites or find restaurants that feature farm fresh food. The Trails highlight farms, art studios and galleries, restaurants, lodgings and our region's spectacular natural areas. It's your source for all things hand made, home grown and authentically Southern Maryland.

There's so much more! If you're a farmer, or thinking about becoming one, SMADC's program, Maryland FarmLINK, has valuable resources for you, including a listing of land available to farmers. If you are an educator, SMADC's curriculum and learning resources for children featuring Cornelia and the Farm Band can help you teach kids about the value of farms.

Visit www.smadc.com to find out how your choices matter to your family, your community and the planet...

SMADC and EBTs

SMADC administration assistance and grants to willing farmers' markets in the region encourage the use of Electronic Benefits Transfer (EBT) machines to increase access of local, farm foods to families on federal nutritional assistance programs. EBT machines offer other benefits to markets; the general public can also use the EBT machines like an "ATM" machine with their credit card to purchase tokens to buy foods at the market. This potentially increases sales for farmers and makes the shopping experience for customers more satisfying.

BONUS DOLLARS: SMADC grant funds also allow participating markets to offer "double-dollars" to low-income customers who use federal benefits (FMNP, FVC, SNAP); a dollar-for-dollar match is offered for the amount they spend.

So. Maryland
So Good...

At these regional markets, look for the So. Maryland, So Good logo for genuine Southern Maryland farm products!

Southern Maryland Meats...

fresh from the farm!

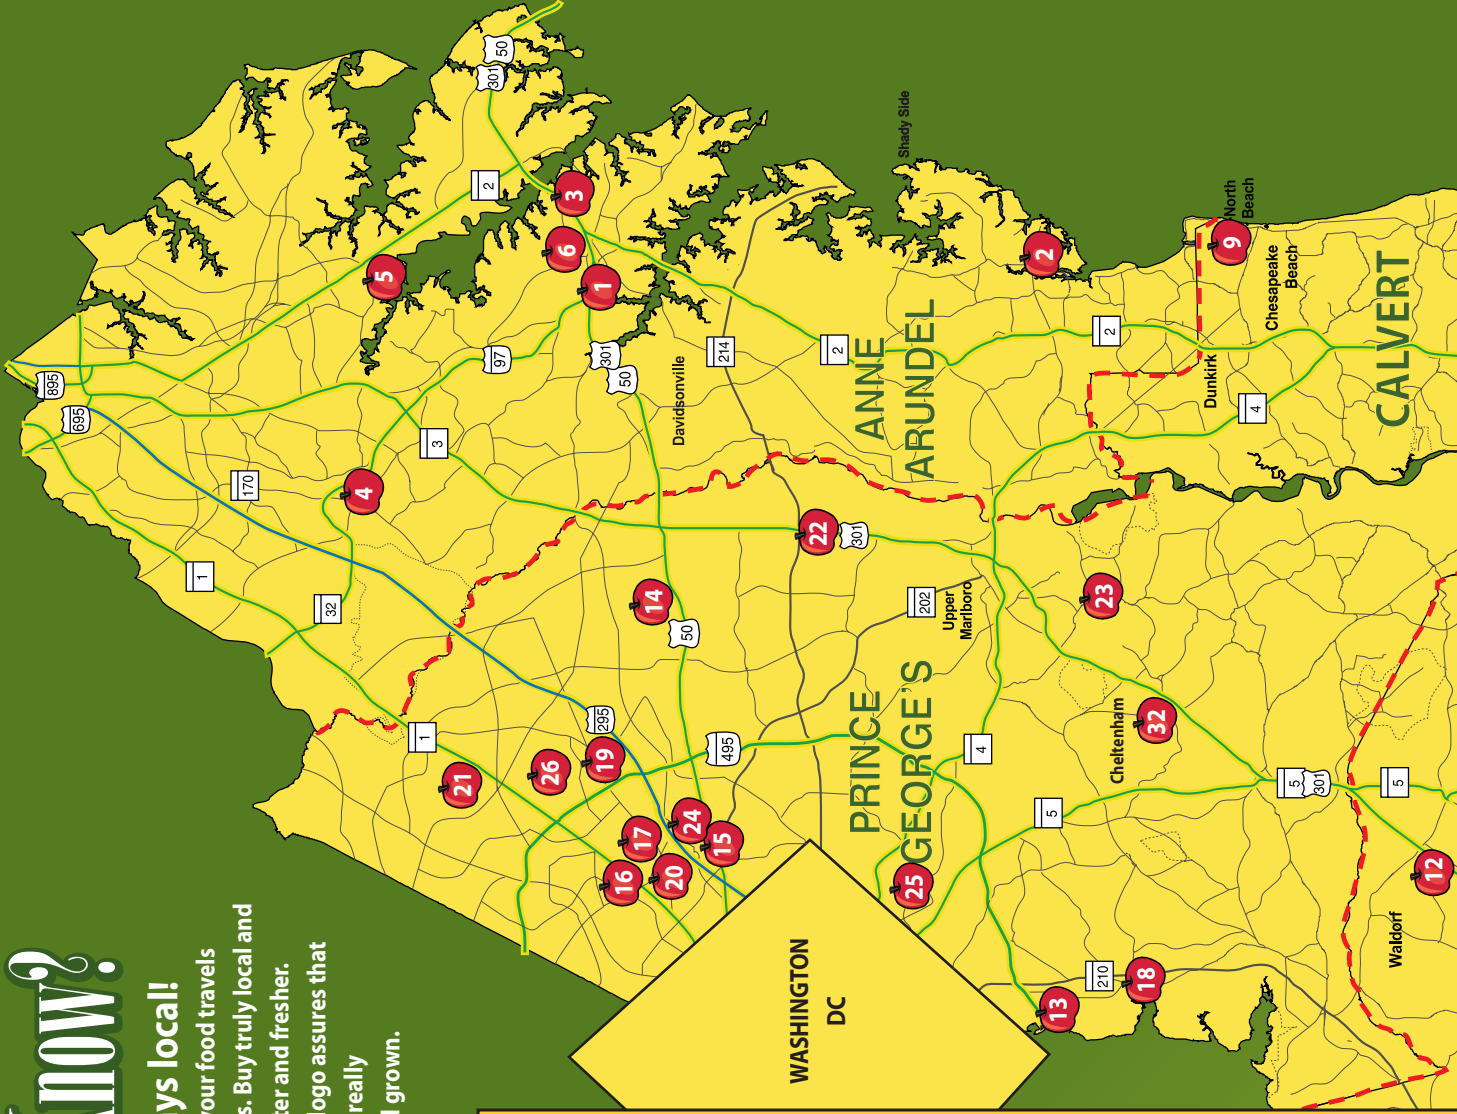

In 2011, SMADC, together with meat producers in the five Southern Maryland counties, created the Southern Maryland Meats brand in response to the growing demand for quality meats that are produced locally in conditions that are safe, humane and environmentally responsible. Producers must meet stringent standards concerning raising, finishing and labeling. Look for truly farm-raised Southern Maryland Meats (lamb, pork, beef, goat and poultry) at a variety of venues, from on-farm sites to farmers' markets and more typical retail outlets. Find out more at www.southernmarylandmeats.com.

Did You Know?

Local isn't always local!

The average distance that your food travels from farm to plate is 1,500 miles. Buy truly local and you can get your food faster and fresher.

The So. Maryland, So Good logo assures that your purchase is really Southern Maryland grown.
