

THE MARYLAND SCHOOL FOR THE BLIND

2013 ANNUAL REPORT

MISSION

As a statewide resource center, The Maryland School for the Blind provides outreach, educational and residential services for students to reach their fullest potential by preparing them to be as successful, independent, and well-rounded contributing members of their communities as possible.

VISION

The Maryland School for the Blind, a private state-aided school, will become a fully-funded statewide resource center providing best practice outreach, school and residential programs in state-of-the-art facilities, ensuring that each student's fullest potential is reached and parent and local school system expectations are exceeded.

A team of students at The Maryland School for the Blind won first place in the teamwork category at the FIRST® LEGO® League (FLL) robotics championship, with the highest score in the league's 15-year history.

Message from the President

As I see the new LIFE Learning Activity Center and residential cottages take shape on campus, I am reminded of how The Maryland School for The Blind (MSB) has truly been shaped by that innately human desire to constantly improve and seek “higher ground.”

MSB opened in 1853. Today it serves 73% of the 1800 students throughout the state who are blind or visually impaired. However, it is the 160 years in between and the strong tradition of seeking continuous improvement that has sharpened our resolve and positions us well for future growth.

Our story has always been one of students, staff and the school itself being confronted with challenges and everyone rising to overcome them. It is one of constantly moving to even greater heights and accomplishments. Our challenges have served to spur us on further, becoming even more determined to succeed.

Several years ago the Board of Directors approved the “MSB School of the Future” campus master plan to replace and upgrade our aging campus buildings, many of which were unsuitable programmatically. With both satisfaction and gratitude we are proud that the first phase of this project is now well underway.

I am deeply grateful to our donors, the Governor, the General Assembly, the Maryland State Department of Education and the entire Maryland School for the Blind community for making this commitment to the future for generations of young people who every day seek their own unique highest ground.

In the pages that follow, you will meet our most recent graduates. These young women and men have exceeded expectations in their journey to realize their true potential. Their smiles and pride in their accomplishments put a face on our mission and remind us of how valuable our services are. Yet, like our students, we all must continuously seek to improve.

Sincerely

Michael J. Bina, Ed. D.
President

Message from the Chairman of the Board

The Maryland School for the Blind (MSB) is justly proud of its past. Now it can be equally confident in its future.

The first phase of our master construction and renovation plan is underway, which is especially gratifying. As I watch the new LIFE Learning Activity Center and residential cottages rise from the ground, I am filled with appreciation for all of those who have worked so hard to make this project a reality.

Four years ago, Dr. Bina, other members of the Board of Directors and I met to discuss the school's immediate and long-term needs. We recognized that a major upgrade in facilities was long overdue. Our half-century and older buildings were continuing to age and, in the process, were creating problems for our students and staff.

The major challenge was funding. To that end, the Governor, our donors, parents, friends and legislators in Annapolis have visibly demonstrated their unwavering support. We are grateful to the State of Maryland and to everyone who invested in the school's future and the future of thousands of Maryland young people who are blind or visually impaired. Thank you.

Sincerely

Edward J. Veilleux
Chairman of the Board

MSB is a place to grow!

For Jessica Woods, it's hard to single out a favorite memory of her ten years at The Maryland School for the Blind (MSB). "I actually liked everything," she affirms, and that covers an impressively long list of interests and activities.

In addition to participating in MSB's popular drama productions, including The Jungle Book, Mary Poppins and Annie, she also loved singing in the choir, being on the cheerleading squad for nine years and taking part in the Johns Hopkins Art program where she worked on her own arts and crafts. And, as if her days weren't full enough, she served as the Secretary for the Senior Class during her final year.

"Senior year was great," she adds, "especially the Prom, and there was always something to do with friends living on campus during the week. We went on a ski trip too."

Described by her teachers as "a wiz with technology," Jessica has exceptional skills in using a Voice Notetaker and JAWS screen reading technology to access computers. She also knows how to access the internet through a mobile hotspot. With no vision other than minimum light perception, she also knows how to use the Kurzweil text-to-speech reader software, which she found very helpful in her classes.

"It took a long time for Jessica, but she really has become quite proficient at braille and with computers. The one-on-one teaching really made a difference at MSB," notes her father, Thomas. According to Yvette, Jessica's mother, she loved the staff and teachers and worked hard to please them. “They always encouraged her and expected the best out of her. She strived to meet those expectations and exceed them. That’s how everything is at MSB. They expect kids to achieve and they do.”

With courage and determination, independence shines through!

Jessica currently lives at home with her parents and attends classes two days a week at the Providence Center in Millersville, Maryland. The non-profit organization’s mission is to provide individuals with the instruction and mentoring they need to find employment and become as independent as possible.

“I’m taking pottery and horticulture right now,” she notes. “I like them both.”

According to her father, Jessica loved the social life at MSB. She misses the friends and living on campus even now, but is also ready to fully integrate in her home community.

Asked about her plans for the future, she doesn’t hesitate with an answer. “I really want to find a job,” she states, “a job that pays.” With Jessica’s determination that shouldn’t take too long at all. Her years at MSB saw her constantly working to reach a higher ground and she did. There’s every reason to believe that the same thing will be true in the years to come.

Reaching the highest ground!

When Taylor Williams first learned that he was going to The Maryland School for the Blind (MSB), he resisted.

“Taylor was 12 years old at the time, and he still had some vision,” remembers his mother, Beverly. “He said that it was a school for the blind and he wasn’t blind. So we told him, if you attend MSB for two weeks and really don’t like it, we would put you back in public school. The first day he called me and said that MSB was ‘the bomb’. They had a track team and he had already joined it. Could we pick him up later in the afternoon the next day? He had practice.”

Taylor has an endless number of memories about his seven “great” years at MSB, and no wonder. The popular 2013 graduate sang in the choir, played drums with the percussion ensemble and had roles in

The Lion King, The Little Mermaid, The Jungle Book, The Music Man, Mary Poppins and Annie. In his spare time, he was also elected President of the Senior Class and crowned Prom King.

“I really enjoyed school,” he declares. “I made so many friends, had great teachers who made it fun to learn and I was on the track team. I liked track a lot and loved competing with other schools when we went to West Virginia and Massachusetts.”

As Taylor readily admits, his passions are science and working with animals. He won first place in the school science fair and regularly volunteered at the Humane Society in Harford County as part of MSB’s career education program. “I remember one German Shepherd that had to be 180 pounds,” he adds.

Embraced
Educated Empowered!

“He actually shook his pen whenever he stood up.”

“We really felt like we were part of the community there,” says his father, Thomas. “The school was a big help for Taylor, who has no vision now, and a big help for us too.” Beverly, Taylor’s mom, was elected as president of the PTSO (Parent, Teacher, Staff Organization).

Living with his parents in their Baltimore County home, Taylor has been working with several organizations to help find full-time employment, possibly in a community theater or with an organization helping animals. He is also looking into continuing his studies at Harford Community College and several other area schools. “I would really like to learn more in areas like biology, astronomy or engineering,” he states.

Taylor feels the skills he learned at MSB will help him in the future. These include traveling, long cane use, employment skills, solving everyday math problems, braille, shopping and cooking. He is also looking forward to seeing his friends at MSB’s annual alumni events.

“Taylor would not be where he is today if it weren’t for MSB,” affirms his mother. “The school made the students see and believe in the possibilities that were out there in the world for them. He loved everything about his experience at MSB, and he told me he wants to be an active alumni.”
