VS.

UNITED RAILWAY & ELECTRIC COMPANY OF BALTIMORE CITY,
a body corporate

COURT

George E. Johnson, plaintiff, by J. Steward Davis and George W. Evans, his attorneys sues the United Railway and Electric Company of Baltimore City, a body corporate:

For that the United Railway and Electric Company of Baltimore City is a corporation, duly incorporated under the laws of the State of Maryland; and is engaged as a public carrier for the transportation of passengers by means of electrically propelled lines over the streets of Baltimore City.

That on or about the 29th day of September, 1923, the plaintiff was about to board one of the cars of the defendant at the intersection of Franklin St. and Pennsylvania Avenue in the City of Baltimore, State of Maryland, which car was then and there in the control and custody of the defendant's servant; that while the plaintiff was using due care and caution for his safety the servants of the defendant negligently started the car of the defendant thereby throwing the plaintiff violently to the ground.

Wherefore the plaintiff was greatly injured and plaintiff claims therefore $5000.00.
