

KILLING DOES NOT BRING JOY ON STRAW RIDE

Many Revelers Unaware that Man Lay Dying Beside them.

WAS PEACEMAKER

Killer says He was "High" with Bootleg.

An innocent peacemaker met death and another man was badly injured when a joy ride to the outskirts of the city ended in tragedy on the Hillen Road, half mile from the county line, Monday night.

The man killed is Scott Ferguson, 37, laborer, 3210 Barclay Street, and the injured man is James Barrett, 3306 Brentwood Street, the two, according to Northeastern district police, were attacked and stabbed by George Norris, alias "Chunky," of Towson, Md., who is being held facing charges of murder.

At Woman's Home

Information concerning the tragedy was first made known when Miss Nancy Payne, 3302 Brentwood Avenue, notified Patrolman Theodore A. White that Ferguson was lying on the floor in the rear room of her home, suffering with several stab wounds of the body. He was taken to the St. Joseph's Hospital, where he died four hours later without regaining consciousness. Physicians stated that death was caused by punctures of the abdominal walls and severe lacerations of the thigh which had severed two arteries.

Acting on information received from questioning Miss Payne, police rounded up twenty persons who had been on a straw ride to the outskirts of the city, during which time Ferguson is said to have been stabbed. Several of those who had gone on the straw ride had in the machine shop and until their arrest were unaware of the fight.

Eleven Saw Fight

Of the score of persons on the trip into the country, police found that eleven had witnessed the fatal stabbing. In their statements the witnesses stated that the machine shop about twenty-four met at 3302 Brentwood Avenue, and got into a truck for a straw ride into the country. After driving several miles from the starting point, the machine shop and crew struck the couple and struck them, to allow the couples to walk around.

While the revelers were leaving the vehicle, James Barrett started hitting Miss Catherine Brown, Resident No. 3306 Brentwood. The young woman is said to have used profane phrases. The couple engaged in a quarrel. Hearing the argument on the side of the road, Norris, who was still in the truck, struck the couple and struck the young woman, knocking her to the ground. Several men who were near by reprimanded the man for his action. Angered by their remarks, Norris started Barrett and Taylor Winder, knocking both to the ground.

Was Peacemaker

Ferguson, who had been standing a short distance away, accused Norris and while trying to act as peacemaker requested him not to fight. Norris turned on the man and struck him twice, knocking him to the ground. While Ferguson was lying on the ground in a dazed and helpless condition, Norris plunged a knife into his back five times.

The injured man was placed in the truck and shortly afterwards the group returned to the city. Several of those who had gone on the trip were unaware as to the man's whereabouts until they were told that he was lying on the ground, apparently he lay in a corner of the truck, apparently he lay in a corner of the truck, apparently he lay in a corner of the truck.

Arrested at His Home in Towson

Norris was turned over to the local police authorities. After being located by police, he denied stabbing the young woman. He admitted engaging in a fight with him. When questioned as to the reason for his unprovoked slaying, Norris stated that he had drunk too much and was "high."

Norris is being held by Northeastern police pending his arraignment before a coroner's jury on charges of second degree murder.

Those who were on the straw ride and witnessed the affair were: Robert Ashby, 3210 Barclay; Catherine Barrett, 3306 Brentwood; Elizabeth Barrett, 3306 Brentwood; Emanuel Billingsley, 3306 Brentwood; Herman Bradford, 1195 Madison Road; Fred Gardner, 1195 Madison Road; George H. James Barrett, 3306 Brentwood; Gaylord Bond, 3245 Barclay; Elizabeth Bradford, 1195 Madison Road.

Robb's Buddy's Home, Youth Faces Jail Term

Accused by Asa Jones, 1033 W. Saratoga Street, of breaking a lock and forcing entrance into his home, and stealing articles worth $54, Joseph Wheeler, 19, 254 Bruce Street, was held for the action of the grand jury, under $2,000 bond, Tuesday.

Wheeler entered the home of Jones, while the latter was at work. A neighbor saw him leaving with the lock and identified him.

Under $1,500 Bail for Applauding with a Gun

Members of Stepteanu Band say John Deshields Used Pistol. Members of Harold Stepteanu's Orchestra heard a particularly discordant war-upton other clubs and young men's organizations in the Northeastern section. Several weeks ago the two groups met in Harmon Square for the purpose of a battle during which two youths, one from each faction, were stabbed.

Residents of the neighborhood stated that the two youths, one from each faction, were stabbed. Residents of the neighborhood stated that the two youths, one from each faction, were stabbed.

The orchestra was leaving the club rooms of the Stepteanu Band when Deshields is reported to be a member.

Hampton Registrar Mum on Teachers who Broke Rules

The names of two Baltimore teachers said to have been asked to leave the Hampton school recently because they were out on the evening of July Fourth with students living on the campus, were withheld by the registrar of the school, this week.

"We will make no statement about the matter," the official said.

Were Sent Away

The two young women asked to leave, it is said, were not accused of an arduous task, but were said to have broken the rules of the school by having students as their escorts and with staying out after the regular hours for being on the campus.

NO WILL, FOSTER CHILD WILL LOSE ESTATE

Failure of the late Mrs. Rose Fletcher to make a will will result in the loss of a home for her foster daughter, Miss Sarah Savoy, 731 George Street, it was learned this week.

Mrs. Fletcher died one day following the Training School commencement, when Miss Savoy, whom she had raised from a small girl, graduated from that school. They had lived in the George Street home.

Relatives Take Charge

Relatives of Mrs. Fletcher, it is said, took charge of the home and the girl was informed that she would have to give it up. In a recent interview, William L. Fitzgerald, one of the leading realtors, assurance men of the city, stated that much inconvenience and loss is occasioned here in Baltimore by the failure of property owners to make wills while they are living and in sound health.

18 NEW NAMES ON JUNIOR HIGH LIST

Eighteen names of prospective teachers have been added to the list of eligibles as instructors in the junior high schools of the city, through a recent teachers' examination. They are: Charles Johnson, Laura W. Jones, Blanche S. Moore, Theodore Randolph, Harriet F. Roberts, William E. Spencer, Viola C. Arrington, Edna Hill Brown, Gladys A. Fitzgerald, Catherine E. Jones, Clementine E. Murphy, Bryon F. Reed, Powell B. Sheffy, Beulah Shippen, Mary M. West, Dorothy A. Young, Veronica S. Woodward, and Juanita B. Jackson. This list, however, is not complete because of several whose credentials must still be checked.

Hurling Lye Gets 6 Months for Girl

Angered because he chided her during a recent quarrel, Miss Ida Scott, 407 Freedom Street, hurled the contents of a can of lye at her lover, Walter Merritt, causing three persons to be injured by the acid Monday. Swathed in bandages, the three victims of the woman's attack appeared in the Northeastern police court to prefer charges of assault with intent to maim. At the hearing, Miss Scott and Merritt engaged in a quarrel in front of their home, during which the young woman hurled a can of lye at the man's face. Merritt, who was carrying a pocket on the man. Some of the acid flew on Edward Slay, 220 East Street, and Miss Viola Gaines, 426 Nicholas Avenue, who were standing nearby. The three were burned about the neck and arms.

Pleading guilty to the attack charges, Miss Scott charged that Merritt slapped her. Witnesses contacted by the police, however, charged six months in the House of Correction.

Postal Clerk Held on Theft Charge

Cited before the Federal grand jury John W. Roberts, 38, former postal clerk, 1309 W. Mulberry Street, was indicted on charge of stealing United States mail. Roberts was held in custody by the grand jury on June 26. At his arrest two alleged decoy letters are said by inspectors to have been found in his locker. At the jury hearing, the confession of the man was offered as evidence. Roberts, who is well known in fraternal circles, is at large on $3,500 bail. He will face trial on the charges early in the fall.

Struck Estranged Wife, Man Sent to Jail

A sentence of ten days in jail was imposed on William Sharp, 25, 815 Warner Street, when he was held into the Southern police court, Tuesday, on charges of striking his estranged wife, Mrs. Gladys Sharp, during a domestic quarrel, Sunday afternoon.

Inquiring Reporter Last of Comments on Common-Law Marriages Show Wide Differences of Opinions of Many Baltimoreans

Continuing the inquiry among people of various walks of life as to the propriety and validity of common-law marriage, the following opinions were elicited:

CLARENCE REED, 1028 Edmondson Avenue, said he is a believer of predestination. I believe that when a child is born, his or her future is destined and every thing that happens in its life daily is that which has been mapped out for it. So, when a woman and man love each other and live together as man and wife in the eyes of God, it is just as binding as if they were married by a priest. I do not believe in common-law marriages, but I do believe in the laws of God and man.

MISS JULIA MAXWELL, 1113 Division Street: "In my opinion such marriages should not be considered binding because they are a violation of the laws of God and man."

MISS JULIA TURNER, 1118 Division Street: "I believe that common-law marriages should be as binding as legal marriages because the woman in such unions submits to such conditions purely because of a faithful love which is more than hundreds of wives possess."

MISS EDITH B. SMITH, 1118 Lantale Street: "I do not believe in common-law marriages. Many people think that a few words pronounced by a minister make a binding union, but personally I feel that the legal ceremony, if it does nothing else, at least gives a definite protection to the wife and to the children of any marriage."

JOHN E. MARTIN, 611 Arlington Avenue: "Broken marriages affect children more than they do the adults, and the husband least, according to my observation, so for that reason I believe that common-law unions should be legalized. If, however, a couple does enter into the common-law union, I feel that it better property they accumulate should be equally divided."

JOHN E. MARTIN, 611 Arlington Avenue: "Many times it is difficult to accomplish this without the aid of the courts. Therefore the court is right in upholding the woman's claim to her share of the property."

JOHN E. MARTIN, 611 Arlington Avenue: "There are a few marriages, or permanent these days, it seems to make little difference whether they are common-law or legal. Neighbors of the children's parents, Major and Mrs. Olivia Gray, have conducted searching parties through the woods near where the older sister was found wandering. It is believed that the man may have killed the younger girl after having violated her.

A description of the man, according to neighbors, is 40 years of age, 5 feet 6 inches tall, 190 pounds, dark skin, woolly hair, pop eyes, high cheekbones, small mustache, broad shoulders, and has one red eye and two prominent scars on his forehead.

PROBE STILL ON IN SHARP ST. FINANCES

A probe into the financial affairs of Sharp Street M. E. Church is still being conducted by auditors, under the direction of the Rev. John Waters, pastor of the church, it was learned this week.

The pastor refused to reveal the present status of the investigation, but declared that in due time a complete airing of the church affairs will be made to the general membership and the public.

Booker Waters has inaugurated a new filing system in the church and has employed an accountant to keep the books of the institution which also includes the Community House and the Mt. Auburn Cemetery.

First intimation that all was not well in the church came when at a special call meeting of the quarterly conference the entire official board was voted out, and a new finance committee appointed to handle the affairs of the church. Since the Sunday school school is irregularly under the old regime have languished, but no definite statement has been issued as yet.

Sub-Deb Chatter

FELICIA'S PARTY
On Thursday evening Felicia Baker entertained some friends at her home on Harlem Avenue. Those who were so fortunate to be present were: Yvonne Thomas, Helen Thomas, Anna Wallace, Roberta Coleman, Pauline Shivers, Edna Lee, Arna DeCampilla White, Elizabeth Mason, Audrey Minor and Betty Stewart.

Also Steve Frazier, Robert Smith, Connie Redick, Lewis Gray, Walter Dymson, Earl Bolden, Joe Edwards, Elmer Soden, Ober Malloy, Doc Shorter.

At 11 o'clock the guests were served with a delicious meal consisting of a turkey, ham, beef, and cake, and, at twelve, happily departed for "Home, Sweet Home."

We must admit that—
1. Roberta Coleman and Walter Dymson looked too wonderful in each other's arms.
2. Steve Frazier will have to admit that he is also in love with Pauline Shivers.
3. Yvonne Thomas and Robert Smith were inseparable. He's been waiting for this break. Has he got it?
4. Elmer Soden and Earl Bolden were having a grand contention over Bea Lindsey's affections. Sorry, you lost out, Elmer.
5. Wallace and Lewis Gray still make the perfect lovers.

6. Jean Day seemed to want some of Robert Smith's affection, but she is a bit of a flirt.

FRANCES'S PARTY
Will some one please tell me the guy who said that thirteen was an unlucky number, so I can tell him what a big mistake he made?
Francis DeMann was the hostess of a party on Wednesday, and oh, what a wonderful time she had. It seems right common, anyway, so I say give the ladies their share of the spoils and be a good sport in any kind of marriage.

MISS C. T. TROWER, 1628 Madison Avenue
"Yes, I think that common-law marriages should be considered as binding as legal ones. But I do not see any reason for two people to live together out of wedlock if both parties concerned are single."

MRS. P. W. NELSON, 1806 North Mount Street
"I think that common-law marriages should be just as binding as legal ones, and most especially where there are children."

ZOLLAR HAWKINS, barber, 855 Druid Hill Avenue
"I don't think a common-law marriage is entitled to any consideration in property, it's, regardless of how long she has lived with a man, but if she has any children I think they should share in their share, even though the parents separate before the death of the father."

JAMES T. MAJOR, confectioner:
"I think that if a woman lives with a man that she is entitled to the same rights of a wife, if she has conducted herself properly during the relationship and helped him accumulate an estate."

Whips Girl who Would Not Pay for His Pig-Foot Breakfast

Refusal of Miss Rosalia Jones, 19, 1802 Etting Street, to pay the check for a pig-foot breakfast, and accompanying refreshments, served at the Blackhawk Club, 1700 block Etting Street, early Monday morning, led to John Vincent, 26, 1725 McCulloch Street, showing his resentment at Miss Jones' obstinacy by administering a vigorous whipping.

The young woman admitted her refusal to "pay off," and acknowledged a passing acquaintance with her lover. The trouble moved from the club to the corner of Druid Hill Avenue and Laurens Street, where a summoned patrolman arrested both. Magistrate Johannsen adjudged them equally guilty, fining each $5 and costs.

900 ABOARD AS DRY AGENTS RAID "AVALON"

Coming back from Brown's Grove on the excursion steamer, Avalon, with the boat under way, was arrested a score of armed prohibition agents in no way dampened the ardor of 900 pleasure seekers who got an increased kick out of the experience of disturbing the peace against both Magistrate Johannsen adjudged them equally guilty, fining each $5 and costs.

The first intimation that the carefree, jovial revelers that all were not well came when the boat docked at the grove. Immediately a swarm of prohibition agents boarded the boat ordering everybody to go ashore.

All Ordered Off
Many of those who had made themselves comfortable for the return trip and fearing to lose their seats went ashore under protest. One matron protested as the prohibition agents were coming from a federal agent. When told that the men were searching for liquor, she told the agents emphatically that liquor was never on the steamer and that they were on a wild goose chase if they were trying to find it all. She finally became aware that she was talking to the "law" and quietly left.

Twenty or more men worked quietly so that the people felt little cause for alarm.

The prohibition excursion was conducted under the direction of Robert Ford, white, head of the local prohibition division, while Harold Maxwell, under-charge of the prohibition division, investigation on the boat by purchasing two points of alleged liquor from the bar of the boat during the trip down the river. Maxwell went about with the excursions, and obtained the evidence.

Captain George Brown was cited to appear before the commissioner of the State Board of Excise and Alcoholic Beverages, was held in $2,000 bond for sale and possession. He will also be given a preliminary hearing.

THINKING IT OVER

By LULA JONES GARRETT
"This Is Your Park—Keep It Clean." So you are reminded these days when you seek a breath of cool air in Druid Hill Park.

IT HAPPENS
Are you letting worry, and lack of luxury, the action of friends over whom you have no control, the falling of rain when you want sunshine, the turn of a foul wind when you expect a fair one, and in this life which is absolutely yours into all that you would not have it be?

Are you letting fear and cowardice keep you from venturing into the realms of happiness that your particular spirit craves?

Are you pondering out your life in a job that your soul shirks with each rising of the sun?

Are you afraid to tackle a problem whose solution will give you a clean sweep to success?

Are you letting your neighbor's opinion be the compass by which you direct the bark of your heart's desires?

GOSSIP
1. Randolph Riggby doesn't mind the heat as long as he can pause for a moment to chin and chat with Vera Cummings, as she strolls down town.

2. They say that Floyd Barts is away on a boat, and what can Elizabeth be doing while her lover is gone?

3. And they say that Wynora Cook has sold her car and is now driving a Club of which she is president, showed the folks at Edgewater Beach what a gang of good girls can do, and get away with.

4. It's being whispered that even this weather of the tropical sort doesn't keep Thomas Wheeden from admiring Margaret Ennis as much as ever. It must be Love.

5. I'm wondering if Marie Wilson and Bernice Corbett are still on the outs, or have they made up "One More Time" says that some certain party got a double kick out of Irene Ford's starring in the tennis racket. But she could't star in any old racket, even if it was tennis.

6. Who'll tell young man that Pauline gets away with so nicely? Do tell it to Pauline, "cause we are gonna find out anyhow."

7. Did the Lila Stanley and James Gaines romance blow into full bloom, or was it nipped in the bud, ere school had closed.

8. And just maybe Hilda Sheffey had a good time at Edgewater Beach Sunday. More power to yuh, Hilda.
