MEMORANDUM OPINION AND ORDER

Factual Background

Ricardo Parker ("Parker" or "Petitioner") filed a Petition for Post Conviction Relief (the "Petition")<sup>1</sup> pursuant to the Post Conviction Procedure Act, Md. Code Ann., Article 27, §§ 645A - 645J (1988 & Supp. 1993).<sup>2</sup> In his Petition, Parker claims that his guilty plea to the offense of use of a handgun in the commission of a crime of violence was involuntary because his attorney, Walter Balint, and the judge, Elsbeth Bothe, both failed to inform him that the charge carries a mandatory minimum sentence of five years without eligibility for parole. A hearing was held on the Petition on November 4, 1993, and the relevant facts follow.

On October 25, 1990, Petitioner pleaded guilty before Judge Bothe to several offenses: assault with intent to murder (Case No. 290213034, first count; the "AWIM charge"); use of a handgun in the commission of a crime of violence (Case No. 290213034, fifth count; the "felony use charge"); possession of a handgun (Case No. 290221060; the

<sup>1</sup>Parker filed his original Petition pro se on August 2, 1993, and filed an Amended Petition through his attorney, Norman Yankellow, on October 26, 1993.

"HGV charge"); and possession of heroin (Case No. 290221061; the "heroin charge").<sup>3</sup>

Pursuant to plea negotiations, Judge Bothe imposed concurrent sentences of ten years for the assault charge, five years for the felony use charge, three years for the HGV charge, and two years for the heroin charge.

The commitment order was timely prepared; it did not indicate that Parker was ineligible for parole with respect to the felony use charge. Furthermore, the transcript of court proceedings with respect to the guilty plea establishes that Parker was not formally advised that the use of a handgun in the commission of a felony carries a mandatory minimum sentence of five years without eligibility of parole, as required by Code § 36(B)(d)(1).

Parker's trial counsel was not called as a witness at the post conviction hearing. However, it is undisputed that he informed Petitioner, by letter dated February 5, 1991, that he would be eligible for parole in the ordinary course. In his letter, Balint said that the handgun charges "are not the mandatory no-parole type of cases."<sup>4</sup> Moreover, on May 25, 1993, the commitment record was amended to conform with the statutory requirement of five years without parole for the felony use charge.

In his Petition, Parker raises several issues:

1. Parker was neither present nor given an opportunity to be heard when his sentence was modified, in violation of Md. Rule 4-345(c);

<sup>3</sup>Petitioner does not challenge the plea or the sentences for the HGV charge or the heroin charge.

<sup>4</sup>A copy of Balint's letter was attached to the pro se Petition as an unmarked exhibit.

2. Because he was not told that the felony use charge carried mandatory restrictions on parole eligibility, Parker did not knowingly and intelligently plead guilty to that charge, in violation of Md. Rule 4-242(c)(1);
3. Parker was denied the effective assistance of counsel with respect to the felony use charge, in that Parker's attorney advised him that, if he pleaded guilty, he would be eligible for parole in forty months; and
4. Parker did not knowingly and intelligently waive his rights with regard to the above issues.

At the hearing, Petitioner withdrew his claims related to ineffective assistance of counsel.

Discussion

Code § 36(B)(d)(1) leaves no room for judicial discretion. Rather, upon a conviction for the felony use charge, Judge Bothe was statutorily obligated to impose a sentence of at least five years without eligibility for parole. As Petitioner argues, Rule 4-345(c) requires that when a court chooses to modify, reduce, or vacate a sentence, it must do so "only on the record in open court after notice to the parties and an opportunity to be heard." What is not so clear is whether the amendment of the commitment qualifies as a modification for the purposes of Rule 4-345, or a mere correction of an illegal sentence, pursuant to Rule 4-345(a), in order to conform with Code § 36(B)(d)(1).

Regardless of whether or not Petitioner had a right to a hearing with respect to a correction of the commitment, if his plea was not given knowingly and voluntarily, then the plea and sentence must be vacated. For the reasons discussed below, the issue of whether Petitioner was entitled to a hearing to correct the commitment is moot.

Resolution of the voluntariness issue turns on the question of whether Petitioner freely, knowingly, and intelligently pleaded guilty to the felony use charge. Indisputably, accepting a guilty plea without a showing that the defendant's waiver of fundamental rights was both knowing and voluntary constitutes reversible error. Boykin v. Alabama, 395 U.S. 238, 242 (1968); Holloway v. State, 8 Md. App. 618, 620 (1969). Pursuant to Md. Rule 4-242(c), before accepting a guilty plea, the court must determine that "the defendant is pleading voluntarily, with understanding of the nature of the charge and the consequences of the plea" (emphasis added). While a showing of voluntariness cannot be presumed from a silent record, Boykin, 395 U.S. at 242-44, a guilty plea is not necessarily unknowing or involuntary merely because the court failed to recite a trivial or remote consequence. State v. King, 71 Md. App. 229 (1987); modifying Bryant v. State, 47 Md. App. 551 (1980), (only when the bargain does not specify what defendant will serve or when the bargained sentence is close to the maximum must the court make certain that the defendant knows the maximum possible sentence). Whether the court needs a showing that the defendant understands a given consequence depends on the nature of the consequence.

The test for whether a consequence is direct or collateral was established in Daley v. State, 61 Md. App. 486 (1985), adopting the criteria of Cuthrell v. Director, Patuxent Inst., 475 F.2d 1364 (4th Cir.), cert. denied, 414 U.S. 1005 (1973). In Cuthrell, the Court reasoned that the matter turns on whether the consequence in question "represents a definite, immediate, and largely automatic effect on the range of the defendant's punishment." 475 F.2d 1364, 1366. Where the consequence satisfies those criteria, it is direct.

The Cuthrell Court considered examples of consequences that are collateral and direct. Specifically, the Court noted as a direct consequence the circumstance where pleading guilty to a particular offense makes the defendant ineligible for parole.<sup>5</sup> Id. What the Court said is pertinent here: "The reason for this conclusion is that the right to parole has become so engrafted on the criminal sentence that such right is 'assumed by the average defendant' and is directly related in the defendant's mind with the length of his sentence." Id. (quoting Moody v. U.S., 469 F.2d 705, 708 (8th Cir. 1972)). See also Paige v. U.S., 443 F.2d 781 (4th Cir. 1971) (plea to second indictment vacated because defendant was not told that pleading to the second indictment would constitute a second conviction, and that a second conviction would make him ineligible for parole).

In the case sub judice, it is abundantly clear that while Parker understood the length of the sentences he was to serve, he was not told that the felony use charge carries mandatory parole ineligibility. The record establishes that he was not so advised, and the original commitment record, which does not indicate that the sentence carries parole ineligibility, buttresses the conclusion that it was not discussed in court. Coupled with the information provided to Parker by his trial counsel, it is clear that Petitioner was either not informed or was misinformed as to a material and direct consequence of his plea.<sup>6</sup>

<sup>5</sup>The Court cited the possibility of losing "good time" credit after pleading guilty to escape and the possibility that pleading guilty could subject the defendant to deportation proceedings as examples of collateral consequences. 475 F.2d 1364, 1366.

<sup>6</sup>As to the appropriate remedy, Petitioner argued at the hearing that if this court were to vacate only the plea for the felony use charge, a new trial solely on the felony use charge would effectively deny Petitioner a fair trial. Unless the plea to the AWIM were also vacated, Parker contends that a conviction for the felony use would be a virtual certainty. The State would merely enter the AWIM plea and the proof that a handgun was involved. To obviate any issue on this particular claim, Petitioner and the State agreed at the hearing that the State would close the felony use charge by operation of law once the court vacated the sentence, in return for which Petitioner would request only that this court vacate the felony use charge. The agreement of the parties permits the State and Petitioner to enjoy the bargain actually contemplated.

Based on the foregoing, this court must conclude that the plea taken on the charge of using a handgun in the commission of a felony was not given knowingly and intelligently.

It is, therefore, this 22nd day of November, 1993, by the Circuit Court for Baltimore City, ORDERED that the five year sentence in Case No. 290213034 for the use of a handgun in the commission of a felony be vacated. The Clerk has already prepared an Amended Commitment consistent with this Order.
