I know the general Objections against the same; and I doubt not but will be against this, viz. That many ingenious Men have sought after the same, and mist thereof: Which, I must acknowledge, Men of far better Parts, and greater Study than my self, have sought to discover it; and yet, so far as I can understand, have fallen short of their Expectations therein. Nevertheless, who knoweth, or who can limit the great Discoverer of all Secrets? To whom he will distribute his Knowledge, that it might be known that all Knowledge proceeds from him, and that he disperseth it at his Pleasure; that all Men might know that all Wisdom, Strength, Power, Understanding, and Knowledge, proceeds from him, and not from any inherent Right in us.

But lest I should be thought (by some) to derogate from the Subject intended, I shall conclude; only saying this, that what I have attained, I acknowledge God to be the Giver of, (and not Man) and therefore unto God I return my Thanks for the same. So be it, faith

GO forth my Muse, and be not thou dismay'd;
Since Truth is on thy Side, be not afraid
To face thy Foes, tho' they should shoot at thee,
Thou hast a Helmet that will keep thee free
From all their fiery Darts and Arrows keen,
Fear not their Malice, nor regard their Spleen.
Unto thy Friends be affable and kind,
And shew to them, thou hast a generous Mind;
To shew to them, that all the World might know
Thou hast a Secret on them to bestow.

Laus Deo.

Mr Parks,

I Am inform'd that several of the most considerable People in the Country, have subscribed a Letter, (which I hope soon to see in Print) in Answer to the two general Letters from the Merchants, lately published in your Papers, which contains their Sentiments in Terms becoming Freemen, wearied with continued Oppression, and groaning under the Consequences of repeated Mismanagements (to use no worse a Term.)

I heartily congratulate with my Countrymen, on this so necessary a Step towards their Relief.

Methinks I see the Time approaching, when we shall emulate one another, in doing every Thing that becomes Men born to the Enjoyment of Liberty, and of the Benefits of equal and just Laws. When we shall unite as one Man, to remedy the Evils and Inconveniencies, under which our Trade has too long laboured: When we shall unanimously concur in encouraging our Friends and Benefactors, and in excluding those who have betray'd us from the Management of our Affairs. In a Word, when we shall exert ourselves in removing all Obstacles to our Felicity.

Could we once join with our Neighbours and Fellow Subjects as well as Fellow Sufferers of Virginia; and they within proper Measures were to promote the common Interest of both Countries, I am certain it would be of extraordinary Advantage to both. Such an Union, the Friends of both must heartily and earnestly wish for, and the Enemies of both dread. Of this more hereafter. I am,

Your humble Servant,
