Historical Records on Microfilm at the

Historical Records on Microfilm at the Baltimore City Archives

We have microfilmed historical records for preservation and ease of use. This is an ongoing activity, and we will be converting more records to microfilm in the future. In some cases records were accessioned in microfilm format.

Diazo duplicates have been made for many original microfilms to protect the originals from scratches and deterioration from bad environmental conditions. All duplicated original microfilms were placed in environmentally secure storage at Fort Knox Secured Data Center in 1984. Some notations in this guide refer to film stored at the Department of Legislative Reference Library; these items are in fact no longer there, having been removed to the Fort Knox facility. A list of microfilm stored at Fort Knox is on the following page. For more information see the folder labeled "Fort Knox" in the administrative files.

Some microfilmed duplicates of indexes and similar materials have been placed in storage with no duplicate left behind. This was done because the original items are still in use; the microfilm serves only as a backup.
