

NEW-YORK, July 18.
PRELIMINARY.—As the Morning Chronicle of yesterday contains an insinuation injurious to the just fame, by attacking the unsuspected integrity of GENERAL HAMILTON, the Editor of the Citizen will consider himself obligated by explicit and definite answers, from correct sources, to the following queries:

When Mr. Burr deliberately took aim, in what relative position did General Hamilton stand?

Did General Hamilton present to Mr. Burr his right side or his front, guarded or unguarded?

Did General Hamilton fire from position, or accidentally, in consequence of the shock, resulting from the lodgment of Mr. Burr's ball?

If the latter, what was the difference of time between the report of Mr. Burr's pistol and that of General Hamilton's?

PHILADELPHIA, July 18.
At a meeting of clergymen of several denominations, convened by public notice, for the purpose of taking into consideration a communication from a respectable number of citizens, who met at the Coffee House in this city, on the 16th inst. in which communication, the clergy are requested to conduct the religious exercises of the ensuing Lord's day, in such a manner as to notice a late mournful event.—There were present clergymen from

- The Episcopal Church, do.
- The Presbyterian do.
- The Roman Catholic do.
- The Baptist do.
- The Associate Reformed do.
- The Hebrew do.

On motion,
Resolved, That the Clergy composing this meeting are sincerely disposed to gratify the wishes of any of their fellow-citizens, so far as it can be done consistently with their view of duty.

Resolved, That as the practice of duelling is manifestly a violation of the most sacred laws both of God and man, and has often been represented and reprehended by us as such, in our public addresses, so we think that every suitable opportunity ought to be embraced to discountenance and discourage this wicked, savage and murderous practice—and that those of the clergy who shall judge that the next Lord's day will present a favorable opportunity for exposing said practice from the pulpit, may do it with propriety; while those who may, from any circumstances, judge it inconvenient or unreasonable to perform this service, may with propriety omit it.

Resolved, That the offering up of such prayers and thanksgivings, as are recommended by the clergy in their meeting aforesaid, or otherwise noticing the circumstances of a late mournful event, (further than has been alluded to in the preceding resolution) would, as we conceive, be, for various reasons, at this time highly inexpedient.

Ordered, That the above resolutions, signed by the Chairman and Secretary be published in all the newspapers of this city.

Signed, agreeably to order, by WILLIAM WHITE, Chairman,
JACOB J. JANEWAY, Secy.

American Printed Goods.

CALICOES, SHAWLS and POCKET HANDKERCHIEFS manufactured by the subscribers near this city, are offered to the dealers in those articles, at No. 13, Calvert-street, two doors above Lovely lane. Their assortment is yet small, but growing—and it was not thought well to decline advertising the public on that account, at a period when so many traders from the country visit the city, to make their usual purchases; and who may, before another season, be informed of the comparative merit and prices of their goods, with those imported.

The Messrs. Lannays who conduct the printing work, have been regularly bred to the business under their father, who held, if not the largest, one of the best esteemed factories formerly in France and they have for several years owned and managed one for themselves from their knowledge of the business, as generally done in Europe, they feel warranted in saying, that work of the like kind shall be as well executed here as there.—The colors capable of being fixed, will be found as permanent, and equal in other respects. The quality of the goods they have recommended them, and trust they will be found cheaper than those imported.

To counteract a prejudice and distrust often existing against new undertakings, and sometimes cherished by men who can feel a national as well as an individual interest to defeat them, they have enlarged more than was desirable or necessary in a simple advertisement.

MCCULLOCH & LANNAYS,
No. 13, Calvert-street.
Two or three boys will be taken as apprentices to the Calico printing business.

Extract of a letter from Washington, To THE EDITORS.

"The Osage Indians who lately arrived in this city, were, on Tuesday, escorted by the President and several officers of the general government to the Navy Yard for the purpose of viewing the U. S. frigates, United States, Chesapeake, Adams, and General Green, now lying in the Eastern Branch. As they were strangers to any thing of the kind, it was expected they would have expressed a great degree of surprise at the sight of a large vessel of war; but it is a trait, very extraordinary, in those men, not to seem surprised at any object, however great, which may meet their eye. Upon their arrival near the Navy Yard, they were met by the Italian band, and conducted towards the vessels, where a federal salute was fired. Immediately upon the discharge of the first gun, the signals and flags of the different nations agreeably to previous arrangement, were hoisted in a moment, but without exciting in them the least emotion, except an expression of satisfaction at this mark of distinction shown them.

They are very much pleased with the attention paid them by the government, and endeavor to evince it by a respectful demeanor to the officers and citizens generally. They are stout, well made men; and though "counted" very ferocious have the appearance of being the most polished savages I have ever seen. You will be able to form a more correct idea of them as they will shortly visit Baltimore, and from thence proceed to Philadelphia, New York and perhaps to Boston.

They have received their presents from government and are friendly disposed.

In order to shew their gratitude to the citizens of this place, for their polite attention, a circular piece of ground was inclosed yesterday afternoon, in which, at the setting of the Sun, they presented the inhabitants with a new species of entertainment—the WAR DANCE. Of this I can give you no idea; therefore I will not attempt it. They were painted and dressed in their war habits. A numerous and respectable company were present, amounting it is supposed to near 3,000, among whom were the President of the United States, and many of the officers of the general government. The sight was novel, and of course gave general satisfaction."

A most extraordinary circumstance, says a late English paper, at present engages the public attention in Cardiff and its vicinity, which will also, we presume, attract the notice of the medical speculatist: A young woman recently died in child bed at Cadoxton, near Cardiff, soon after delivery, and the infant pining for that nourishment which nature designed for it, the mother of the deceased, upwards of 70 years of age, put the child to her own breast, from which it soon drew milk, and a copious supply speedily following, she now continues suckling the infant to the admiration and astonishment of the whole neighbourhood.

A late paper estimates the strength of parties in the N. Y. Legislature, at 83 Republicans, 14 Federalists, and 3 Burrites in the Assembly, and 29 Republicans, 2 Federalists, and 1 Burrite in Senate.

The Berlin Gazette contains the following notice of the death of a very distinguished animal: "On the night of the 17th of April died, of an atrophy, in a good old age of 40 years, the favourite horse of his late Majesty Frederic the Great. It was called COMBE, and was kept in the Royal Veterinary School." An elegy has already appeared on the death of this favourite of Frederic the Great, which reached an age which that quadruped is seldom known to have attained. His memory has also been preserved by drawings and engravings.—This famous horse had been purchased in England in 1770. He was always calm during the heaviest cannonade. Frederic the Great had become very fond of this animal, who was led out before him almost every day, when the King was used to feed him with sugar, and, in their seasons, with melons and figs; he would, in return, follow the King into his apartments. One day His Majesty permitted him to enter into the saloon at Sans Souci, but having injured the fine floor with his hoofs, he was never more admitted. The only hard service which Combe had to perform, was at the Potsdam reviews. Even during the war about the Bavarian succession, in 1778, Combe remained at Sans Souci, and was, by the King, given in particular charge to Count Schwerin, the master of the news, who was obliged from time to time to report to his master the state and condition of his favourite. This was the horse on which the King made his last attempt to take a ride in July, 1786.

Among the excellent toasts given by the Republicans who celebrated the late Anniversary of our Glorious Independence, in Boston, was the following, by that confident Democrat, Republican, B. AUSTIN, junr. "DEMOCRACY; accurately defined and virtuously practised." The terms Democracy and Democrat have been so hackneyed of late, that one would think they must now be perfectly understood. But it is very common for people to talk a great deal of what they know nothing about, and those persons in general who prate against Democracy betray a total ignorance on the subject. There are some however, who are perfectly acquainted with the true import of the term democracy, who nevertheless endeavor on all occasions to render it odious. The reason is because they abhor the thing itself. Now if it can be made to appear that what these persons hate, is precisely that which as true Americans they ought to respect, and as friends to the constitution of their country they are bound to support; what must we think of their patriotism, of their boasted attachment to the constitutions of their country? We regret the many honest well meaning citizens who have been seduced into a dangerous and unwarrantable prejudice by the arts and intrigues of ambitious and designing men. We will however, endeavor to remove the odium that has been so industriously attached to every thing DEMOCRATIC, and let these good citizens who have been mistaken, see what this pretended dreadful thing Democracy really is.

The best writers on the subject of Democracy, accurately define it to be a government of the people, not as the Tory federalist falsely define it to be, a government of the people en masse, (which is in fact no government at all) but a representative government like that of the United States.

The characters of Democracy says an excellent writer, "are popular elections, temporary seats, and access to all citizens to stand candidates." The sovereignty of the people notwithstanding it has of late been so much derided by Tories, Aristocrats and monarchists, is a doctrine founded in truth and the nature of things. On this principle was the independence of the United States effected and established. It was a principle which was repeatedly recognized in its utmost extent, by the founders of our revolution and constitutions of government. "The fair famed social compact," says Dr. Ramsay in his history of our revolution, "between the people and their rulers, did not apply to the United States: The sovereignty was in the people:—In their representatives, they agreed on forms of government for their own security, and deputed certain individuals as their agents to serve them in public stations agreeably to constitutions, prescribed for their conduct." Numerous questions might be adduced from other eminent writers to the same effect, but we presume enough has been said to satisfy the candid and unprejudiced enquirer concerning the accursed definition of Democracy. He will discern, that to be a true American and friend to our established federal and state constitutions, he must be a DEMOCRATIC REPUBLICAN."
