Drawn this day, 200 Tickets—Gain of the wheel, 450 dollars—Total gain, 3890 dollars.—Adjourned to Saturday, 10 o'clock.

A laboring man by the name of Donaldson, who lives at Irwin, in Scotland, and who had been deaf for upwards of twenty years, was, a few days since, struck to the ground by lightning, while working in the fields; recovery, however, in a short time, he found, to his surprise, that the only injury he had sustained was the recovery of his hearing.

During the month Messidor, between the 20th of June and the 20th of July no less than 66 persons committed suicides at Paris, of whom twenty two were women. Eighteen drowned themselves, eight hanged themselves, thirty poisoned themselves and ten shot themselves. Among them the most remarkable was Josephine Barre, in the rue St. Dominique, who in a fit of jealousy, poisoned her lover and afterwards herself; but apprehensive that the poison would have no effect, the shot herself through the heart. A letter upon the table explained the cause of this rash act. She was just turned of seventeen, and an only child of a rich wood merchant, who has been mad ever since. Her mother died of convulsions on the day of her daughter's suicide. Another suicide, Louis De Fay, aged twenty one, fell in love with his own sister; and his mother having discovered his incestuous passion, he poisoned them both, and afterwards hanged himself. In a letter to the prefect of police, he demanded to be buried in the same grave with his father, which has been consented to. She was not quite fifteen.

[Journal de Paris.]

So great is the scarcity of small change in this city, says the N. Y. Mercantile Advertiser of Monday last, that a person who found a difficulty in procuring it, offered a five dollar bill for sale at auction, on Friday, which produced four dollars and 81 cents.

The uncommon calamities from the prevalence of raging sickness in great numbers, have so far attracted the public attention as to induce enquiries not barely into the animal economy, but into the atmosphere in which life is led. Many advantages have already resulted, but the increase of documents is very favorable to great expectations. A table from Europe, exhibited in our Gazette, gives the temperature from 50 degrees, to 61 North. The annual mean in that distance is from 52 to 43. In January from 42 to 32. In April much as the annual mean. In July from 63 to 55. and in October, from 50 to 40. The observations on evaporation and rain require a more perfect theory to give any precise quantities.—If we give the mean of Salem at 54, still our mean of January is as low as the highest latitude given in that table, which must give us more than the range of that whole table. The next year will certainly arrest the attention of every person disposed to make reflections upon Meteorology, and we are happy to announce the wishes of the Courier of Charleston, S. C. that the facts of this uncommon year may be distinctly noticed, and reported as a collection of them is intended for publication, not barely on their own account, but in connection with the important facts which general history will embrace. The year has had the same distinction in Europe.—In Germany, above 100 houses have been injured by lightning, and many lives have been lost. Great inundations have happened in some parts.—The western have suffered most from the droughts and the eastern from rain. And yet some qualifications should be admitted. In Marcellis, in France, the rains were excessive and continued so long as to require public prayers in the city and adjacent country to avert the judgment. In Malaga, in Spain, the season has been fatal to the inhabitants. Early the destructive fever prevailed, and the mortality seemed to cease. By the last accounts, it had returned, and not a fifth part of the inhabitants remained in the city. Malaga is in lat. 36° 25' 5" N. and in long. from Ferro, 13, 40. It is situated at the foot of a high and steep mountain, on the north side of the Mediterranean. It is an ancient city, one of the first ever established for commerce in Europe. In 1747, its population was given at 31,427, and in 1769, at 41,062. In 1689, it had 49,049 inhabitants, and 5769 houses. It has boated of its climate, but it has been repeatedly visited by fatal fevers. In 1741, it had the fever, then called the black vomit, of which a most distressing account is given in the history of Malaga, by La Lena, and by which 10,090 lives were destroyed. These evils have repeatedly visited the city. It is said that the sickness is in former times, extends itself. At present the accounts are in general terms expressive of general febrile and alarm.

CURE FOR THE STAGGERS.

The staggers have, by farmers, been hitherto considered an inflammatory complaint, and been treated, by blood letting and powerful drenches with what success the melancholy experience of our planters has too well shewn. It is (by some recent cases which have been relieved by a different treatment) sufficiently demonstrated that the nature of the complaint has heretofore been mistaken. By observing the following directions, we hope a more successful practice may be adopted in this formidable disease.

As soon as the symptoms of the disorder are discovered, give two table spoonfuls of the juice of common garlic, and repeat the dose every two hours, till the symptoms are entirely removed. It will be well, even after the horse is apparently recovered, to give a dose of the remedy every morning for a week, to secure him from a relapse. When garlic cannot be found, it is probable that the juice of onions, or that of a larger kind of garlic, which is frequent in gardens, under the name of French Garlic, may be of equal efficacy. Several valuable horses who were apparently in the last stage of the disease, have been speedily and effectually cured by this remedy. We have this information from a respectable gentleman of Jones county, who was a witness to the success of the practice and has entire confidence in its success even in the most extreme cases.—Newbern Gazette.

New Hampshire—Returns from all the towns of this state have not yet been received: it is more than probable, however, that the Jefferson and Clinton ticket has succeeded. The Boston Repertory, which would be happy to announce the contrary, positively asserts that the republican electoral ticket had a majority of votes.

We have a few returns since Friday, which follow: we think there is no doubt but Connecticut and Delaware will be the minority at the approaching determination of the question:

The tickets to be sold in halves, at five dollars each

The Managers respectfully solicit the aid of the public to accomplish the object of the above Lottery—Considerable exertions for several years having been already made by an association of ladies, for the education of poor orphans of all denominations—Teachers in every part of the city have been paid quarterly for the schooling of children, and in some instances assisted with necessary clothes, from the precarious resources of subscriptions, public and private donations, charity sermons, &c.

The legislature of Maryland have been pleased to grant a lottery to raise a fund upon more stable and permanent principles, for the support of this institution; and the mayor and city council, in sanctioning it by an ordinance, have also given a very honorable testimony of their good wishes, by relinquishing the customary tax on the Managers therefore, confidently hope, that the above scheme, as well from the benevolence of its intention, as the principle of advantage, will be inviting to every citizen, in this or any other part of the United States. Adventurers in this lottery, while they feel a conscientious and consoling reflection of having thereby contributed their mite to the permanent establishment of a Free School, for the education of poor children, male and female, of every denomination; will also in a pecuniary point of view, experience advantages superior to any other scheme heretofore offered.

For the convenience of purchasers, the managers have thought proper to strike off the tickets in halves, leaving it optional with the purchaser to take the whole or half ticket.

The managers have given bond for the faithful performance of their trust.

Sixty days after the drawing is finished the prizes will be paid, subject to a deduction of 12 1/2 per cent.—if not demanded within 12 months after the drawing is finished, they will be considered as relinquished for the orphans.
